House Group Votes 15 to 8 To Reject Home Rule

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

By a decisive 15-8 vote, the House District Committee yesterday killed the Senate-passed Washington home rule bill for this year at least.

The action, taken at a special closed session, ended all possibility the District suffrage issue would reach the House floor for a vote before Congress adjourns.

Home rule advocates on the Hill and downtown immediately announced that the full committee's first positive vote against the measure was their signal to start a petition to discharge the House District Committee from further consideration of the legislation.

Yesterday's vote sustained the Harris subcommittee's decision Tuesday to table the Kefauver bill which passed the Senate by voice vote May 31.

Other Proposals Pending

Two other home rule proposals still are pending before the District Judiciary subcommittee, but its head, Chairman Harris (D., Ark.), made it clear he would not hold further hearings or meetings on them this year because "adjournment is expected in the near future."

Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) said yesterday's full committee meeting would be the last of the current session.

Though McMillan declined to disclose the roll call vote on the motion to table the Kefauver bill, members said the line-up was as follows:

Voting to sustain the Harris subcommittee (vote against the home rule bill): Representatives McMillan, Harris, Abernathy (D., Miss.), Smith (D., Va.), Teague (D., Tex.), Jones (D., Ala.), Davis (D., Ga.), Morrison (D., La.), Redden (D., N. C.), Jones (D., Mo.), Bates (R., Mass.), Simpson (R., Ill.), O'Hara (R., Minn.), Miller (R., Neb.), James (R., Pa.).

Voting to override the Harris subcommittee (vote for the home rule bill): Representatives Klein (D., N. Y.), Kennedy (D., Mass.), Granger (D., Utah), Miller (D., Calif.), Buchanan (D., Pa.), Auchincloss (R., N. J.), Allen (R., Calif.) and Wadsworth (R., N. Y.).

Representatives Beall (R., Md.) and Talle (R., Iowa) were the only members absent who did not leave a proxy vote, it was said.

House Refuses $3,000,000 For Sesqui

The House yesterday afternoon voted down an appropriation of three million dollars for Washington's Sesquicentennial celebration in 1950.

Following a two-hour debate, the House knocked the funds from the 75 million-dollar first supplemental deficiency appropriation bill after economy-talking Republicans, abetted by some Southern Democrats, criticized it as a needless expenditure.

The House voted on the Sesquicentennial appropriation three times.

On an initial voice vote, Representative Forand (D., R. I.), who was in the chair, ruled the appropriation had been voted down.

Roll Call 150 to 129

At the demand of Representative Rabaut (D., Mich.), a leader in the fight to secure the appropriation, a division, or standing vote, was taken in which the appropriation was turned down, 121 to 63. When a roll call vote was taken at Rabaut's insistence, the measure was defeated, 150 to 129.

Denial of funds—recommended by President Truman—is believed to doom any hope of a Sesquicentennial celebration unless the National Capital Sesquicentennial

Priest Frees Mt. Rainier Boy Reported Held in Devil's Grip

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

In what is perhaps one of the most remarkable experiences of its kind in recent religious history, a 14-year-old Mount Rainier boy has been freed by a Catholic priest of possession by the devil, Catholic sources reported yesterday.

Only after 20 to 30 performances of the ancient ritual of exorcism, here and in St. Louis, was the devil finally cast out of the boy, it was said.

In all except the last of these, the boy broke into a violent tantrum of screaming, cursing and voicing of Latin phrases—a language he had never studied—whenever the priest reached those climactic points of the 27-page ritual in which he commanded the demon to depart from the boy:

"I command you, whoever you are, unclean spirit, and all of your associates obsessing this friend of God . . . give me your name, the day and the hour of your exit, together with some sign . . . I command thee to obey in all these things nor ever again in any manner to offend this creature of God . . ."

In complete devotion to his task, the priest stayed with the boy over a period of two months, during which he said he personally witnessed such manifestations as the bed in which the boy was sleeping suddenly moving across the room.

A Washington Protestant minister had previously reported personally witnessing similar manifestations, including one in which the pallet on which the sleeping boy lay slid slowly across the floor until the boy's head bumped against a bed, awakening him.

In another instance reported by the Protestant minister, a heavy armchair in which the boy was sitting, with his knees drawn under his chin, tilted slowly to one side and fell over, throwing the boy on the floor.

The final rite of exorcism in which the devil was cast from the boy took place in May, it was reported, and since then he has had no manifestations.

A priest here voiced the belief that it was probably the first casting out of the devil through the ritual in at least a century of Catholic activities here and perhaps in the entire history of the church in this area.

The ritual in its present form goes back 1500 years and from there to Jesus Christ.

But before it was undertaken, said a priest here, all medical and psychiatric means of curing the boy—in whose presence such manifestations as fruit jumping up from the refrigerator top in his home and hurling itself against the wall also were reported—were exhausted.

The boy was taken to Georgetown University Hospital here, where his affliction was exhaustively studied, and to St. Louis University. Both are Jesuit institutions.

Finally, both Catholic hospitals, said the priest, reported they were unable to cure the boy through natural means.

Only then, said a priest here, was a supernatural cure sought.

The ritual was undertaken by a St. Louis priest—a Jesuit in his 50's—who devoted himself to the task through prayers and fasting.

The details of the exorcism of the devil from the boy were described to The Washington Post by a priest here.

The ritual began in St. Louis, continued here and finally ended in St. Louis.

Slept in Same House

For two months the priest stayed with the boy, accompanying him back and forth on the train, sleeping in the same house and sometimes in the same room with him.

The priest witnessed many of the same manifestations reported by the Protestant minister this month to a closed meeting of the Society of Parapsychology. It was at this session that Dr. J. B. Rhine, director of the famed parapsychology laboratory at Duke University, who came here to study the case, was quoted as saying it was "the most impressive" poltergeist (noisy ghost) phenomenon that had come to his attention in his years of celebrated investigation in the field.

Even through the ritual of exorcism the boy was by no means cured readily.

The ritual itself takes about three-quarters of an hour to perform.

First the priest says mass and himself prays for divine strength successfully to fight the diabolical influence. Previously he has engaged in a period of fasting.

Then follow prayers and psalm recitation and the sprinkling of holy water on the afflicted person.

Repeatedly, each time the ritual was performed, the violent reaction would come from the boy at the passages in which the priest ordered the evil spirit out of him:

"I command you, whoever you are, unclean spirit, and all of your associates obsessing this friend of God, that by the mysteries of the Incarnation, Passion, Ressurrection and Ascension of our Lord Jesus Christ, by the mission of the Holy Spirit and by the coming of the same Master for the Judgment, give me your name, the day and the hour of your exit, together with some sign and even though I am an unworthy minister

'48 Population For D. C. Area Hits 1,402,000

The population of Greater Washington on July 1, 1948, was 1,402,000—a 44.9 per cent increase since 1940, the Census Bureau estimated in figures released yesterday.

Greatest growth has been in nearby Maryland and Virginia, the statistics showed.

The latest estimate indicates the population of the District is 863,000. This is some 200,000 more than in 1940, a 30 per cent increase. In the same period the suburban areas saw a 234,000 increase in population, a 77 per cent jump.

The bureau includes in the Greater Washington area the District, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland, the city of Alexandria, and Arlington and Fairfax Counties in Virginia.

"The total population of the metropolitan area increased steadily from 967,985 on April 1, 1940, to 1,386,000 on July 1, 1944," the bureau reported.

"Largely because of a decline in the number of persons in the armed forces stationed in the area, the population declined by about 3 per cent between July 1, 1944, and July 1, 1946.

"After July 1, 1946, however, the population again began to increase, although at a rate lower than that between 1940 and 1944, to reach a high point of about 1,402,000 on July 1, 1948."

Greatest growth in population was in Arlington County. It gained about 64,000 civilians to more than double its population.

Fairfax County also benefited

Lost Mute Boy, Feared in D. C. Car, Safe at Home

New York, Aug. 19. (AP)—Eight-year-old Richard King was found today on the grounds of a Staten Island institution which reported him missing yesterday.

Before the boy—who can't speak—was discovered, police sent out a 15-State missing persons alarm and called in bloodhounds.

Police said officials of Willow Brook State School for Mental Defectives told them Richard was found, apparently unharmed, on a catwalk between two buildings.

The little boy, who lives in Long Island City, Queens, has been at the institution for two weeks.

For a while it was feared he might have climbed into the trunk of a Washington, D. C., car near which he was last seen yesterday.

Congressional Library Ends Awards, Due to Pound Dispute

Librarian of Congress Luther H. Evans announced yesterday afternoon that the library will give no more awards in the arts.

The action is an outgrowth of the dispute that followed the award of the $1000 first annual Bollingen Prize in Poetry to Ezra Pound, a mental patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital. Pound is under indictment for allegedly treasonable broadcasts made from Italy during World War II.

Dr. Evans said the library's action was in compliance with the recommendation unanimously approved by the joint committee of the library at its meeting yesterday morning. Senator Green (D., R. I.), is chairman of the House-Senate committee.

Beside the Bollingen poetry prize, the library since 1932 has been giving the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Medal for "eminent services to chamber music," and for the past five years three awards in connection with the Annual National Exhibition of Prints—"the Pennell show."

Prior to the Pound award there had been no dispute over the awards.

FCC Rules End to Radio Giveaways

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday acted to halt radio and television giveaway programs with their annual windfall to listeners running into the millions.

Response from the broadcasting industry was immediate and vigorous. The American Broadcasting Co., producer of the highly lucrative Sunday night "Stop the Music" show, announced it would challenge in court the FCC's right to prohibit the programs.

"No changes will be made in the ABC programs as a result of the FCC regulation," the network, according to the Associated Press, declared in New York.

Ruling by 3 Members

Justin Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, said he felt the commission had overstepped its authority and pointed out that the ruling was made by only three of the seven-member organization. Three were out of town and one dissented.

ABC's challenge probably will be to seek an injunction in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, where orders of Government agencies are reviewed.

The commission acted under the antilottery laws, which specifically forbid broadcasting schemes depending on "lot or chance." It said applications for license renewals would be turned down in the case of stations that broadcast such programs after October 1.

It appeared, from the wording of the commission's order, that giveaways to studio audiences would not be affected. But it struck the boxtop and telephone deals a body blow. The commission said each case would be considered on its merits, but that any of these four conditions brought any program under the lottery law:

1. The winner is required to have in his possession anything of value or any product made or distributed by the sponsor.

2. The winner is required to be listening to or viewing the program.

3. The winner is required to answer a question to which the answer or aid in finding the answer has been given in a previous broadcast.

4. The winner must answer the telephone or write a letter in a prescribed manner or with a prescribed phrase if the phrase previously has been broadcast.

Woman Dissents

Miss Frieda Hennock, only woman member, dissented from the ruling, on the ground that "I do not believe it proper for an administrative agency to broaden the interpretation of a criminal statute any further than has been done by the courts." She pointed out that the lottery prohibition had been deleted from the present act governing the FCC and said yesterday's action was "unwarranted" without "a specific mandate from Congress."

The majority finding was made by Commissioners Paul A. Walker, Edward M. Webster and George E. Sterling. Chairman Wayne Coy and Commissioners Rosel H. Hyde and Robert F. Jones were absent.

Jurisdiction in lottery cases, the majority said, was based on the belief that the statute prohibiting broadcasting of lotteries was "an important declaration of public policy by Congress in the broadcast field." The commission was, it said, "under a duty to give ef-

Ship Steward Seized in Huge Cocaine Ring

U. S. Agents Crack $500,000-a-Month U. S.-Peru Drug Trade

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Narcotics agents seized a ship's steward today and labeled him the "brains" of a huge illicit drug ring plying a $500,000-a-month cocaine trade between Peru and the United States.

Authorities said that cracking the international ring here and in Peru has laid bare a fantastic story of political intrigue and plotted revolution, with control of Peru as the prize.

They said this is the first high point in the greatest Government antidrug smuggling drive in history.

The ring apparently attempted to spread its operations to Italy through attempted contact with Charles (Lucky) Luciano, exiled one-time vice czar.

The steward was identified as Eduardo Balarezo of Long Island, a naturalized United States citizen of Peruvian descent, sought by authorities for eight months.

Balarezo, Assistant United States Attorney Joseph P. Martin said, was arrested today aboard the liner La Guardia, which runs between New York and Italian ports. He was held in $100,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy to smuggle cocaine from Peru.

Martin told this story of the alleged dope ring:

The illicit trade, with Balarezo as its "brain," has been smuggling about 50 kilograms of pure cocaine a month, worth $9000 a kilogram, into the United States. Arrests made last June in Peru through the United States and the U. N. shut down nine bootleg drug factories and drove the ring to seek new fields—but not until the ring had tried to seize all Peru.

There have been more than 80 arrests in Peru, and 50 to 60 persons in this country are believed tied up with the ring's operations.

Capt. Alfonso Mier de Teran, chief of the Peruvian Department of Investigation, told how Balarezo allegedly was taken from here to Peru by a Peruvian warship in March, 1948, as the guest of Victor Haya de la Torre, chief of the now-outlawed Aprista political party.

Balarezo, Captain Mier said, took with him $60,000 in cash and a quantity of ammunition. The

First 'Saucer' Is Located By Air Force

The battered remnants of what may have been the original "flying saucer" and possibly the first successful helicopter were uncovered in a Maryland tobacco shed yesterday.

Attached to their discovery by State police is the story of a 60-year-old inventor who was enjoined from selling stock for the "Grey Goose Airways" and disappeared some 10 years ago.

Air Force investigators were assisted by Maryland police in locating the two rickety craft on the Lewis Pumphrey farm about 11 miles south of Baltimore near Glen Burnie.

The Associated Press quoted the Air Force last night as saying there is "a good chance" that the craft are "prototypes" of mysterious "flying saucers" that pilots have reported seeing from time to time.

The Air Force said Bolling Field had been advised that "some flying discs have been located in Maryland," and that Army special agents made an investigation.

The first plane was described as looking like a helicopter. It had a device on top resembling two huge saucers, 16 feet in diameter, covered with airplane cloth.

Its fuselage, less than 16 feet long, had no wings and was powered by a nine-cylinder radial engine.

The other craft resembled a large wooden tub or round cheese-box 14 feet in diameter, made of plywood and with an engine and cockpit inside.

It had four blades extending around the top and four around the bottom. They rotated in opposite directions, according to the Air Force description.

John W. Ganz of Harundale, chief repairman at the Glen Burnie Airport, wasn't surprised to hear the two machines had been found. In fact, he helped inventor Jonathan E. Caldwell build them, he said.

Ganz said he couldn't enlighten Air Force investigators on the whereabouts of Caldwell. He said he understood the Securities and Exchange Commission was interested in Caldwell's stock deals about 1940. Ganz said he last saw Caldwell about 1939, when the inventor disappeared.

In 1936 or 1937, Caldwell staged

Senators Feel Arms Plan Can Be Saved

But Hopes Are Dim Full $1,450,000,000 Can Be Restored

Senate leaders yesterday expressed belief that a large part of the damage done in the House to the Administration's foreign arms program will be repaired in the Senate.

As a result of the $580,495,000 cut made in the $1,450,000,000 program by a rebellious House Thursday, however, no responsible official would predict the full amount can be restored.

Senate hearings on the bill ended yesterday, after testimony in which Henry A. Wallace declared the arms plan threatens world peace and will lead to "economic disaster."

Closed Session Tuesday

Senator Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the joint Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services Committee which is considering the bill, announced that the committee will meet in executive session Tuesday to start final consideration of the measure.

Senator Dulles (R., N. Y.), who has joined with Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) in proposing numerous revisions in the bill and a $160,990,000 reduction in the requested $1,160,990,000 for western European members of the North Atlantic Treaty, said:

"The House action makes it likely there will be a greater cut (in the Senate) than that suggested by Senator Vandenberg and me."

Only the European cash fund was cut by the House, which sliced it exactly in half.

Left unchanged was authority to send pact nations "surplus" weapons which originally cost 450 million dollars (charged to the program only at 75 million dollars rehabilitation cost); $211,370,000 cash arms aid for Greece and Turkey, and $27,640,000 for Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

Sees "Same Feeling"

Dulles interpreted the House slash as reflecting the "same feeling on the amendments that Senator Vandenberg and I introduced" to prevent "plunging into this program before it is geared into the policy of the North Atlantic Treaty."

A series of amendments by the two influential foreign policy spokesmen are keyed to assuring that arms aid plans for western European members of the treaty will not affect the supremacy of

150,000 Put As Number On Strike In Nation

Premier Calls Emergency Talks Of Inner Cabinet; Killing Protested

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Finnish Army units tonight were put on a continuous alert to meet the threat of a spreading Communist-formented strike the government fears might turn into a bid to seize power by a coup.

Gen. Aarne Sihvo, Commander in Chief of the Army, toured strike areas of Helsinki in an armored car.

Premier Karl A. Fagerholm and members of his inner cabinet held an emergency meeting with President Juho K. Paasikivi, considering the advisability of calling Parliament into extraordinary session.

Helsinki Communists shouted, "Hang Fagerholm," and "Down with the Bloody Cabinet" at a mass meeting here.

They protested killing of a rioting striker yesterday at the lumber port of Kemi. They demanded withdrawal of troops from Kemi, release of all strikers arrested, and the right to hold mass meetings there. Resolutions demanded the resignation of Interior Minister Aarre Simonen and denounced governmental strike policy.

The Finnish Federation of Trade Unions today issued an ultimatum threatening to expel all Red-led unions unless the strikes end by Tuesday.

[The Associated Press said Communist leaders were being arrested.]

It was estimated that 150,000 workers now were idle here and in other cities and lumber areas.

Army units in all trouble centers were put on a 24-hour-a-day alert.

The situation at Kemi was reported quiet. Troops armed with tommyguns guarded the lumber-floating area where 500 workers, ignoring Communist threats, tried to break up the biggest log-jam on record in Finland.

Communists here reported that police had raided their headquarters.

The Lumbermen's Union and some 10,000 food workers today joined the walkouts which earlier had paralyzed 15 of Finland's 17 principal harbors and crippled the baking, brewing and building industries.

The strikes nominally were called to support demands for wage increases ranging up to 30 per cent, but a government spokesman yesterday charged they actually were the entering wedge of a Communist drive for power.

Tito Warns Greece to End 'Persecution'

Belgrade, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Yugoslavia today warned Greece that if persecution of Yugoslavs there "does not cease immediately," the government "will undertake measures to protect the interests and lives of its citizens."

This official announcement came as a surprise to observers here who had thought the old feud between Yugoslavia and Greece was being patched up.

The government said it issued the communique to straighten out "distorted" reports on the recent meeting in Athens between the Yugoslav charge d'affaires there and the deputy Greek foreign minister.

The announcement said the Yugoslavs were incensed over the Greek government's sentencing to death in July of two Yugoslavs.

The Unwed Mother

Loneliness in Washington Contributes to Illegitimacy

(Nearly every tenth child born in Washington last year was illegitimate. Six years ago, one of every 14 was illegitimate. This is the last of a series of articles devoted to some of the problems of unwed motherhood, as related by local officials whose agencies deal with this growing social condition.)

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

About 25 years ago, a four-year study was made in Washington of the mothers of children born out of wedlock.

It showed that 41 per cent were employed as domestics; 20 per cent were factory workers; only 9 per cent worked in offices; 7 per cent were clerks, 12 per cent were students and there were 11 per cent in miscellaneous classifications.

A recent sampling of a group of 80 girls in one Washington maternity home showed that 45 were office workers or of professional status, six were either in high school or college, and the rest were employed in semi-skilled or unskilled jobs.

Although this sampling is small, most social workers agree that among known U. M. cases, the intelligence level is going up. Of those who come for agency help, more than 50 per cent are Government girls.

Washington adds its own particular factor to unwed motherhood: loneliness. In a town where there is a preponderance of women over men, a woman is in heavier competition for a social life. If she has no opportunity to "date," she may become involved with a married man.

Another current factor which social workers believe adds weight to the U. M. problem is the period of mass psychological confusion from which Washington—and the world—suffers.

Maragon Helped Arrange Victory Fete for Senate Foe

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

John Maragon, who "knows his way around Washington," is no narrow-minded partisan.

He usually is pictured as a friend of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan's and a habitue of the White House, but he has been known to mingle with Republican big shots, too. Indeed, he has been known to lend them a hand in throwing a victory party.

Maragon, it was recalled yesterday, was one of the guests at a party in honor of Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) in this city early in January, 1947.

Not only that, but Maragon helped out by suggesting the place for the party, the Old New Orleans Restaurant at 1214 18th st. nw.

McCarthy, who demanded at the 5-percenter hearing Wednesday that Maragon be indicted for perjury, had just come to Washington after his triumph in the 1946 election.

He had conquered Senator Robert M. La Follette, a veteran of 24 years on Capitol Hill, in the GOP primary, and then had gone on to beat Howard J. McMurray, Democratic nominee, by a landslide majority of 215,000.

Some of his friends and supporters in Wisconsin thought a

Arnold Says Russia Fears Bombs Most

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold said today that the one thing Russia "fears the most" is American strategic bombing and therefore the Air Force should come "first" in defense planning.

The wartime Army Air Force Chief told a House subcommittee that "covered wagons and Mississippi gunboats' must be ruthlessly eliminated from the Nation's armed forces to permit concentration on new weapons. Otherwise, we'll go bankrupt, he said.

Arnold also advised Congress not to attempt to settle such broad military questions as whether the Air Force or the Navy should be charged with atomic bombing. One of the questions on the agenda of the current B-36 probe is whether the decision to cancel the Navy's super aircraft carrier—a potential A-bomb carrier—was a wise one.

Members of the House Armed Services Committe flew here to take Arnold's testimony in the B-36 investigation. The general, now retired and in ill health, was unable to come to Washington to be heard.

He told the group that the B-36 is the "outstanding bomber in the world" and that the country "should be proud of it." Under questioning by Committee Counsel Joseph Keenan, he backed the judgment and integrity of the top officers of the Air Force who decided to cut back other plane orders to build more B-36s.

"Why, I brought up most of them," he explained.

Outlining the detailed processes of Air Force procurement, Arnold said there was "no chance" of political pressure or corruption influencing USAF officers.

Then he discussed broader problems of national security. Keenan asked him who decided such questions as whether the Air Force or the Navy should be given the job of delivering the atomic bomb. Arnold replied that it "used to be the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

"But I now see it has gotten beyond the Joint Chiefs and they're trying to get Congress to decide," he added. "Frankly, in my opinion, if Congress ever takes on such a decision they'll listen to testimony and do nothing else, 365 days a year."

Then Arnold agreed with Representative Leroy Johnson (R., Calif.) that Russia fears the United States Air Force more than anything else. The general put it this way:

"The thing people fear most is something they don't understand. The one thing that Russia doesn't understand is strategic bombing. Therefore that is the thing they most fear . . .

"The Air Force plus the A-bomb is the winning combination to maintain peace today."

Representative John R. Walsh (D., Ind.) asked Arnold if he believed we should have a land, sea and air "team" for defense. He agreed, but then went on:

"Somewhere along the line someone must make an evaluation of what composes your armed forces team. You can't continue with your covered wagons and Mississippi gunboats.

"You have to be ruthless and throw them out. I don't care whether it's a B-36, or a battleship or a tank, if new modes of warfare and new ideas of how troops shall be employed dictate that those things shall not be used, then by gosh, you have to throw them out, because the equipment today has become so expensive that, if you don't, you're going to bankrupt your Nation."

Arnold told the subcommittee he knew of only one case where the Air Force plane procurement procedure was "influenced' from the top. He said he and Gen. Carl (Tooey) Spaatz visited a plant where the P-51 fighter was under construction for the British. They liked it so much they overruled the Air Materiel Command experts and bought it. He said he'd never been sorry for the decision.

The retired air chief revealed Air Force engineers once had come to him with a plan to spend 2½ million dollars apiece to strengthen many air bases to handle the heavy B-36. He said he told them to cancel the order before doing that, but suggested they modify the landing gear instead. This was worked out, he noted.

The general was asked if he knew about the so-called anonymous document charging wrongdoing in the Air Force. The House committee is investigating the charges. He said he couldn't understand why anyone pays any attention to such things.

"I get one every once in a while," he added, "and if I allowed myself to get wrought up by them I'd have none of the serenity that the Valley of the Moon now offers."

Arnold now lives in Jack London's Valley of the Moon in Sonoma County near here.

GIs Kayoed After Taunts To General

New Orleans, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Two husky Air Force privates today tried to realize their ambition by whipping a general. Both privates were knocked out.

The "victim" was Brig. Gen. Raymond Hufft, State Adjutant General. He was a commando and infantry officer in the war.

On Bourbon st. this morning Hufft, his wife and another couple passed two men in civilian clothes. One, noting Hufft's uniform, said: "I have always wanted to whip a general."

"They continued to make insulting remarks. We ignored these. I was putting the ladies in the car," Hufft said.

"They kept up the insults and the big boy came toward us with his fists raised. There was nothing to do but fight."

The general and his guest, Hugh M. Wilkinson, jr., knocked out both soldiers in a brisk battle. Then Hufft and Wilkinson got in the automobile and drove away. As they left, a police car picked up the two soldiers.

The police said the soldiers were from Keesler Field, Miss., and let them go. Hufft said he wouldn't ask their commanding officer to discipline them.

AF Curbing Contracts in 'Danger' Spots

By Ruth Cowan
Associated Press Staff Writer

An informed Air Force official yesterday said "strategic vulnerability" of areas in the United States to air attack by Russia is considered in placing contracts for high-priority combat planes.

His remark was in connection with the proposed trip of Secretary of the Air Force Symington, Air Force officers and Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.).

The group plans to fly to Seattle, Wash., in September to discuss the proposed move to the Boeing-operated plant in Wichita, Kan., of the subassembly work on the B-47 bomber now being done at the Boeing-owned plant in Seattle.

Since Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, this week told the B-36 Senate Investigating Committee that Russia is the "one major military threat to the United States"—a remark he said had been cleared with the State Department—the Air Force has been more frank in discussing production matters.

"We have no desire to fold up existing plants, but we do not propose to expand activities in areas which in time of war would be considered vulnerable," the Air Force representative said. This especially holds true in regard to high-priority combat planes.

The Air Force regards the B-47 bomber as second to the giant B-36 bomber.

Asked whether the Seattle area was considered "vulnerable" in event of war, the answer was a blunt: "Yes."

a test hop of the helicopter-type craft in Washington, Ganz recalled. The "cheesebox" never flew successfully, as far as Ganz knows.

Newspaper files show Caldwell incorporated Grey Goose Airways in 1928 in Nevada. Maryland enjoined him from selling stock in two corporations to perfect his inventions.

Ganz said Caldwell was at "at least 10 years ahead of his time" in knowledge of counter-rotating propellers, slow sustained flight, and other phases of aeronautical engineering.

Records show the first successful helicopter flight with pilot was made in 1939 in Germany. Caldwell's plane only got up to 75 feet, Ganz said, because of an "inexperienced pilot."

Snyder to Head Financial Parley Here on Sept. 6

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday named Treasury Secretary Snyder to head the United States delegation at the American British-Canadian financial conference here September 6.

Snyder's appointment coincided with reports hte United States has decided to press for devaluation of the pound sterling as the first step toward solving the British dollar crisis.

Top Administration leaders are reported convinced that the pound, at its present rate of $4.03 to the dollar, is overvalued and that this is one of the main reasons the sale of British goods abroad has fallen off so sharply in recent months.

Snyder is known to have held this view for several months.

Foreign Minister Bevin of Britain will attend along with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps. Canada's Foreign Minister, Lester B. Pearson, will sit in along with Douglas Abbott, the Canadian Minister of Finance.

Freezer Episode Seen by Hoey 'Magnified Out of Proportion'

Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) said yesterday that in his opinion the home freezer episode in which Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and other Washington notables figure "has been magnified out of all proportion to its importance."

Hoey is chairman of the Senate Special Investigations Subcommittee which is checking into whether improper influence has entered into the handling of Government business.

Hoey expressed his views about the freezer incident in a telegram to a Kansas City home appliance dealer who asked whether it would be proper for him to go ahead with plans to present a television set to President Truman.

Hoey's wire was addressed to John A. Passler of the Passler Appliance Co., Kansas City, Mo., it said:

"I have your telegram in regard to the gift which you intend to make—of the television receiver—to the President for his home. Needless to say, I think this gift entirely appropriate and should not be the subject of any criticism.

"In my opinion the deep-freezer matter has been magnified out of all proportion to its importance. It is not an uncommon thing for gifts to be made to public officials as well as officials of private corporations and others in the public mind, without the desire or expectation of receiving any favors or rewards in return."

Passler had wired Hoey Thursday as follows:

"I am offering Harry Truman today a television receiver for his home as a gift.

"Kansas City will have television in the next month or so and only through friendship is this offer made. Whether it is accepted or not, I want to go on record as making this offer publicly so it will not be footballed around as the freezer deal was.

"If the committee has any objections I would appreciate hearing from you by return wire or mail."

Asked to explain why he believes the freezer incident has been magnified out of proportion to its importance, Hoey told newsmen:

"My reason for saying that is that it tends to overshadow the real purpose of the investigation, which was to develop the question of whether or not influence is being exerted to obtain privileges and favors from Government agencies that could not otherwise be secured.

"The home freeer incident is only one matter in the investigation, whereas the purpose of the investigation is to cover the various classes of abuses with a view to correcting them and making it easier for small businessmen to deal with the Government and secure satisfactory results."

John Maragon Helped Party

celebration was in order as the Eightieth Congress prepared to meet. They decided to move on to Washington to see their hero take his seat in the Senate and to throw a party worthy of the occasion.

The arrangements all were made in Milwaukee in advance. For a time there was a problem—where the party was to be given. None of the McCarthy boosters was familiar with Washington.

Otis Gomillion, head of a Milwaukee detective agency and a McCarthy man, told the Washington Post over the telephone yesterday how the problem was solved.

"Milton Polland," he said, "thought John Maragon could advise us where we could have the party. I have forgotten who called him in Washington, but it was either Polland or Harold Townsend. Maragon gave us a list of likely places. We settled on the Old New Orleans.

"Naturally, Maragon was at the party. He was invited in consideration of what he had done to help us."

Polland, a Milwaukee advertising man, was a witness at the Senate's 5-percenter inquiry Wednesday, the day Senator McCarthy called for Maragon's indictment. It was Polland who, when asked how he met Maragon, replied:

"It's not a question of meeting him. It's a question of getting rid of him after you've met him."

Actually, as the testimony showed, Polland met Maragon and General Vaughan in the fall of 1946 at a party at the Schlitz ("The Beer that Made Milwaukee Famous") brewery.

Polland, according to his story hired Maragon to help out his nephew, Harold Ross, head of Allied Molasses Co., Perth Amboy, N. J., paying him $500 in cash and another $500 in the form of a check.

Senator McCarthy, who had nothing to do with arranging the 1947 party in his honor, said yesterday he remembered seeing Maragon there.

"I got the impression that he was an important fellow," McCarthy said, chuckling. "He was there, but I don't know how he got there—whether he was invited or not. There were some newspaper men at the party and at first I thought Maragon was one of them. I hope someone will let me know who invited him."

Maragon, who is waiting to be called before McCarthy and the other senatorial investigators, is not talking much these days unless he is directed to by Myron Ehrlich, his attorney.

Asked about the McCarthy blowout yesterday, he would only say: "No statement."

Pension Laws Called Unfair To Big Families

Mrs. Marie Jordan of Falls Church, Va., a pretty young World War II widow, told Congress yesterday that present pension laws are unfair to big families.

Representing the Gold Star Wives of America, Inc., she testified before the Senate Finance Committee in favor of a House-passed bill that would increase benefit payments to servicemen's widows with one or more children.

Mrs. Jordan said that since the first World War, monthly pensions for widows without children have been increased 200 per cent to keep pace with rising living costs. But in the same period, benefits to widows with one child have gone up 186 per cent, and benefits to widows with two children, 142 per cent.

Baruch Resigns Post of Envoy to Netherlands

The White House yesterday announced the resignation of Herman B. Baruch as Ambassador to the Netherlands.

Diplomatic authorities speculated that he would probably be replaced by Selden Chapin, 50-year-old veteran diplomat who was formerly American Ambassador to Hungary.

The White House published an exchange of letters between Baruch and President Truman in which the President expressed "sincere regret" at the resignation of the 77-year-old Ambassador. Prior to his assignment to the Netherlands in March 1947, Baruch had served for two years as Ambassador to Portugal.

He is a brother of Bernard M. Baruch, the New York financier who for many years served periodically as an adviser to the late President Roosevelt and other White House occupants.

New York, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Rush Clarke, 51, Rochester, N. Y., sales engineer, won $52,000 in cash and merchandise June 25, the largest prize in radio giveaway history, the Columbia Broadcasting System said today.

CBS said the prize was won on "Sing It Again." Clarke identified the program's "phantom voice," which was that of Gertrude Ederle, who once swam the English Channel. He also guessed within half an hour the time it took for her to make the swim.

Vote Put Off On Restoring OHE Fund Cut

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate last night put off until Monday a vote on reconsidering a slash in funds for rent control which Housing Expediter Tighe Woods says will curb activities of his agency seriously.

Woods predicted in a recent speech in Cleveland that the cut, agreed to by a joint House-Senate conference, would force either a one-third reduction in the staff of his agency or decontrol of about 30 per cent of the areas now under rent ceilings.

Woods last night suggested he may call for citizen volunteers to police rent controls in some areas.

Group Sees Truman

"Under the law," Woods declared, "it is impossible for us to indiscriminately remove ceilings. They can be abolished only in regions where the demand for rental housing has been reasonably met."

Woods' statement was made after a labor and tenants group visited President Truman to oppose the rent-control cut. One member of the group, Leo Goodman of the CIO, criticized Woods' administration of rent control as well as the slash.

An immediate storm of protest arose after the fund slash. Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) asked the Senate to reconsider its action and restore part of the cut.

The Budget Bureau originally asked $26,750,000 for the agency. The Senate Appropriations Committee cut that figure to $24,075,000 and on the Senate floor the figure was cut to $21,667,500. Later, the joint conference agreed on $17,500,000.

Woods said he could not at this time say what form additional reductions in rent control would take. He declared cutbacks would have to come if the slash were not restored.

"The slash in our budget makes it necessary to lop off the housing staff from 5600 to 3000 persons," Woods told a reporter." And that means we just won't have manpower to do the job—so we'll have to cut the work load."

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) urged the Senate to adopt the motion to reconsider.

Sparkman said it was obvious that with such a severe slash rent control operations would have to be curtailed drastically.

"And this," he added, "would be coming along right at a time when cold weather is setting in and the people must have shelter."

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), commented that if the expediter exhausted his funds before the time set he could ask for a deficiency appropriation.

Senators Knowland (R., Calif.), and Wherry (R., Neb.), also members of the Appropriations Committee, promptly served notice they would oppose such action.

Ferguson Critical of Woods

They contended that such a request on the part of Woods would violate the antideficiency law.

O'Mahoney replied that, although as a member of the conference committee he would oppose an increase, he did not believe the law would be violated if the agency spent its funds in a period shorter than a year and asked Congress for more funds.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), another Appropriations Committee member, criticized Woods for his statements about pending slashes as "pressure and lobbying."

Even the President, Ferguson said, uses his ability to be front page news to issue propaganda attacking Congress when it tries to cut appropriations. If Woods has the will to operate his agency on curtailed funds, Ferguson said, he can find a way to do it.

fect to such public policy in its licensing functions."

In deciding which programs constituted "lotteries", the majority said legal definitions of a lottery involved a "consideration contributed by the participant." Then it called attention to the "benefit" accruing to the sponsor or broadcaster. It said:

"Where such a scheme is designed to induce members of the public to listen to the program and to be at home, available for selection as a winner or possible winner, there results detriment to those who are so induced to listen when they are under no duty to do so.

"And this detriment to the members of the public results in a benefit to the licensee who sells the radio time and 'circulation' to the sponsor, and to the sponsor as well, who presents his advertising to the audience secured by means of the scheme.

"When considered in its entirety, a scheme involving award of prizes designed to induce persons to listen to the particular program certainly involves consideration furnished directly or indirectly by members of the public who are induced to listen."

Fred Allen Happy

Not everybody in radio business was chagrined by the commission's order. Fred Allen, who long feuded with the giveaways and once offered $5000 insurance to anybody who missed a giveaway jackpot by listening to him, was very happy.

"It has taken radio away from the scavengers," he told the United Press, "and given it back to the entertainers."

Nevertheless, Allen wasn't hopeful for the future. He said the FCC ruling probably would be upset and "they'll be back again."

The ruling followed an investigation that has been going on for a year, and during which the radio industry bitterly opposed the action taken yesterday.

Elder Statesman?

Baruch at 79 Says He Feels In Top Shape

New York, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Bernard M. Baruch said today, on his 79th birthday, that he "hasn't the slightest idea" what an elder statesman looks like.

Baruch, an erect 6 feet 4¾ inches, said he felt fitter than ever as he prepared to celebrate by sitting on his favorite bench in Central Park.

"Actually, I've never looked on myself too seriously," he said. "When I'm called an elder statesman, or this or that, I look around and wonder if they're talking about me."

Baruch, known as the "adviser of Presidents," admitted he got most of his information by listening to other persons.

'Plenty' of Deceivers

"I like to listen to men whose opinions I respect, for I get most of my information that way," he said.

But he added "I've got no use for a man who deceives his fellow man, and there are plenty of them around."

Baruch said there would be no birthday parties and that he just planned to take a day's vacation from advising on the problems of the world. Anyway, he said, he was almost convinced by a columnist's comment that his advice "is either no good or nobody takes it."

He said a doctor examined him recently and pronounced him fitter than he ever has been in the past decade.

The tall, lean Baruch, who still has a fine head of hair, said he was chagrined to learn that most people think of his physical appearance as entirely different.

"I don't know how many people have told me they pictured me as pot-bellied and bald," he said. "They think I'm a squat little man, too."

Rates Father at Top

Baruch says most of the world's great figures he has known boil down to second-raters when he compares them with his father, Dr. Simon B. Baruch, a surgeon in the Confederate army.

He remembered his father's advice when Baruch, as a youth of 19, prepared to launch a Wall Street career.

"Let unswerving integrity ever be your watchword," the father said.

Baruch is confident he will live to 100. He said the Baruchs were generally a long-lived clan.

One of his uncles, he said, sold out his business at 75, bought it back at 85, boosted its output threefold in a reorganization at 99 before he died at 102.

Baruch said he is building a new hunting lodge in South Carolina and expects to use it a lot "during the next 20 years."

3 Youths Held In Holdup of Beltsville Man

Three Bowie, Md., youths, one of whom is said to be on probation, were arrested last night and charged with the holdup and robbery last Wednesday of Virgil Howard Jones of Beltsville.

Picked up at their homes by Prince Georges County Detective Earl J. Huber and Parole Officer John M. Collins were Cleveland James Moore, 20; William H. Harrison, 18; and William Roger Gantt, 18.

Police said they were led to the trio from descriptions by the victim. They were accused of striking Jones, knocking him unconscious and robbing him of $6, a wrist watch and a diamond ring. The watch was recovered, according to police, who said the youths admitted the robbery.

Harrison is currently serving a two-year probation on a charge of assault and battery, police said. The trio was lodged in Hyattsville jail.

11.5 Millions To Help 'Voice' Beat Jamming

By the United Press

The House yesterday voted to give the State Department radio, "Voice of America," an additional $11,500,000 to help it overcome Russian jamming of American radio-casts to Iron Curtain countries.

The money is in a $72,790,000 supplemental appropriation bill passed by the chamber and providing extra funds for several government agencies for the current fiscal year.

The increase in "Voice" spending was approved after military officials told the House Appropriations Committee the broadcasts were "badly hurting" Communist regimes.

Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said the Russians had invested tremendous quantities of equipment and manpower in a campaign to drown out the "Voice."

Includes Housing Funds

The money bill also includes funds for public and farm housing and for further work on a proving-ground for guided missiles.

Meanwhile the Senate was temporarily stalled in its drive to pass the 590-million-dollar Interior Department appropriation bill. Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), objected to a vote before Monday on an amendment to reduce funds for Federal power activities, and staged a delaying action to prevent a ballot.

Thomas is supporting the amendment, which would reduce funds for the Southwest Power Administration from the House-approved figure of four million dollars to $1,616,000. He claimed opponents of the cut would have won yesterday because several of those on his side were out of town.

Guided Missile Funds

Among items in the House-approved bill were 5 million dollars to continue work on the 75 million-dollar guided-missile proving ground. Secretary of Air W. Stuart Symington also would be permitted to transfer $7,500,000 more to this project from other Air Force funds.

The bill would authorize the Agriculture Department to borrow 25 million dollars from the Treasury for farm housing loans under the new housing law, and it provides $4,125,000 for public housing construction.

Other items are $7,500,000 for the 1950 census, $4,342,000 for the Postoffice Department, mostly for foreign air mail and star route service, and $28,650,000 for the State Department.

McGrath to Resign From Senate Tuesday

Senator Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) announced yesterday he will resign from the Senate Tuesday and will be sworn in as an Attorney General Wednesday.

He will take the post to be vacated by Tom C. Clark, who will step into the Supreme Court vacancy caused by the death of Justice Frank Murphy.

Clark attended his last Cabinet meeting yesterday. Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman will serve as acting Attorney General until McGrath takes over on Wednesday.

States' Rights Bolters Given Further Slap

By the United Press

The Democratic National Committee, in a further slap at States' Rights Democrats, indicated yesterday that "rump" committee members from Mississippi will be admitted to next week's meeting called to choose a new party chairman.

At the same time, William M. Boyle, jr., committee vice chairman, who is likely to succeed Senator J. Howard McGrath as national chairman, said he does not know yet whether Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) will be invited to attend.

Maybank accepted the national committeeman post from his State Thursday after the resignation of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond was accepted by the South Carolina State Democratic Committee. Thurmond ran against Mr. Truman last year on the States' Rights ticket.

Invitation Expected

It was assumed that Maybank would be invited, but Boyle said he was "not familiar with the details and will have to look into it."

But a committee spokesman said that Clarence E. Hood and Mrs. John A. Clark, recognized by the National Committee as committeeman and woman from Mississippi, have been "notified" about the meeting and probably will attend.

Hood and Mrs. Clark were named committee members at a "rump" session of the Mississippi Democratic committee last year. They supported President Truman, in contrast with the States' Rights stand of the regular State Democratic committee.

They may not be eligible under Mississippi law to become formal committee members, however, and may have to attend as "observers" or "acting members," the spokesman said.

Left Out Southerners

McGrath, confirmed by the Senate Thursday to be the new United States Attorney General, pointedly left out committee members from the South who opposed Mr. Truman in issuing the committee call last week.

No one has been formally invited so far from South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana—three of the four States whose delegations walked out of the Democratic convention when it was apparent that Mr. Truman would be nominated.

Only Committeewoman Mrs. John A. Clark, who backed the President, has been invited from the fourth bolter State, Alabama.

Some of the uninvited members may show up anyway and the whole question of who is entitled to attend the meeting will be threshed out Tuesday when the credentials committee meets.

British Plane Hits Hill; 24 Killed

Manchester, England, Aug. 19 (AP).—A twin-engine transport plane of the government-owned British European Airways (BEA) crashed on an instrument approach in thick weather today and killed 24 of the 32 aboard. All were believed to be British.

The Dakota (C-47) smashed into a hill 1300 feet high and exploded on a regular flight from Belfast, Northern Ireland.

An hour later a light plane crashed while being tested at nearby Baildon, in Yorkshire, and killed all four occupants.

Factory workers and farmers heard the BEA plane crash and hurried to find the plane smashed open and burning with dead and injured strewn about.

BEA said the plane carried 3 crewmen, 16 women, 7 men, 3 small children and 3 babies. Among the survivors were three members of one family, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Evans and their 5-year-old son; another son was listed among the dead.

Two farmers, first on the scene, pulled out some of those still alive before being driven back by flames.

Mother's Plea

Poverty Held Reason for Killing Baby

Chicago, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—A young mother confessed today that she strangled her 6-day-old baby with the infant's only diaper because "We were too poor."

Mrs. Skeoch

Mrs. Dorothy Skeoch, 22, sobbed that she strangled the infant girl, Susan Elizabeth, because her husband was out of work "and I didn't want her to grow up without the best things life can offer." She had brought the baby home from the hospital only two hours earlier.

Last night she had told police a prowler had robbed her of her watch and strangled the baby.

But Police Capt. George Enright said the watch was found concealed in a traveling bag and she confessed after five hours of questioning.

The husband, Thomas Skeoch, 21, lost his job as a laborer at a loading dock two months ago and had been unemployed since.

Skeoch was placed on Federal probation after he admitted failing to deliver mail as a substitute postoffice carrier last Christmas because he was "too tired."

Family Sails For Italy to End Housing Woes

New York, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—A New York family sailed for Europe today to beat the housing shortage.

The Draghi family—92-year-old Ceciliz, her daughter Maria, 70, and grandson Enrico, 48—embarked on the liner Sobieski for Italy and a home of their own.

Spokesman Enrico Draghi, a chef, said they were "fed up" with housing conditions in New York and tired of landlord troubles.

Draghi said their landlord tried to evict them from their four-room apartment on Manhattan's East Side. A court ruled they could stay in the apartment.

But Draghi said he had had enough of landlords and was going to Parma, where the family owns a house.

35 U. S. Airmen Escape In Plane Plunge in Bay

St. Johns, Nfld., Aug. 19 (AP).—Thirty-five American airmen returning from duty on the Berlin airlift escaped death last night when a U. S. Army transport plane plunged into St. Georges Bay on Newfoundland's west coast.

The big airliner skidded off a rain-drenched runway at Harmon Field and wound up in the bay. Thirty-two officers and three enlisted men reached shore safely after scrambling into dinghies and life rafts. Eight were slightly injured.

The plane was en route from the Azores to Westover Field, Mass.

Union Official Fined for Carrying Gun, Wild Driving

Albert G. Gray, 38, of 27 Maryland ave., Parkland, Md., was fined $50 for carrying a concealed weapon and $75 for reckless driving today in Prince Georges County Police Court.

Gray, secretary-treasurer of the Washington Meatcutters Union, told Trial Magistrate Allan Bowie that he needed the .32-caliber automatic because he often had to collect up to three thousand dollars in union funds. He said he carried the gun in the locked glove compartment of his car.

County police said they had received a call on June 9 from Gray's wife, telling them that Gray was driving with a gun.

Court Won't Free 'Lonely Hearts' Killers on Writ

New York, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Counsel for "lonely hearts" killers Martha Beck and Raymond Fernandez, was rebuffed today in an attempt to free the pair, who are being kept under close guard in separate prisons.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff of Washington, D. C., refused a writ of habeas corpus seeking to liberate the convicted murderers. Holtzoff said the action was premature because Mrs. Beck and Fernandez have not yet been sentenced.

They are to be sentenced to the electric chair Monday for the hammer-and-scarf slaying of an Albany, N. Y., widow, Mrs. Janet Fay.

Woman Ends 'Round World Plane Flight

London, Aug. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Richarda (Dikki) Morrow-Tait, 26, a red-haired former artists' model and mother, completed her single-engine plane ride around the world early this evening.

It took her a year and a day to fly the long way from London back to London—25,000 miles—but she is the first woman to girdle the globe at the controls of an airplane.

With her was her navigator, Michael Townsend, 26, of Cambridge.

Her husband, Norman Morrow-Tait, an engineer living in Cambridge and doing the dishes and baby-sitting these last 366 days, rushed to Croydon Airport to greet her. He took along their daughter Anna, now nearly three years old.

Richarda phoned him from Prestwick, Scotland, where she had landed to gas up after the overwater hop from Reykjavik, Iceland, earlier in the day.

Only a few people were at Croydon to greet the pretty flier.

Morrow-Tait kissed her fervently. When she made a motion of protest lit up by a smile, he said "damn the lipstick."

Richard then picked up her little girl who was scared by the propeller noise and was sobbing.

The aviatrix said she is going to join the women's arm of the Royal Air Force after setling down for a while to housework at home in Cambridge.

She began her tour here August 18, 1948, in a British Proctor named "Thursday's Child" and finished it in the American Vultee valiant named "Next Thursday's Child."

Dikki flew eastward to Alaska in 10 hops and then, November 22, cracked up the Proctor near Fairbanks. United States backers bought her a new plane and she flew across North America in easy stages, finding trouble here and there.

Avery Estate Totals Almost $200,000

Walter B. Avery, building contractor who died here Sunday at the age of 61, left a net estate of almost $200,000, it was learned yesterday in District Court probate papers.

His holdings were placed at $277,500. Debts were listed at $79,000.

His widow, Mrs. Ximena B. Avery, receives three fourths of the income from a trust fund comprising the bulk of the estate. Her interest terminates upon her death or remarriage. She also gets a life estate in their residence at 5120 Loughborough rd. nw.

A son, John B. Avery, of Dover, Del., reecives his father's stock, no value listed, in the Good Humor Ice Cream Co. and the one quarter of the trust. He recives the remainder of the estate when Mrs. Avery's share expires.

Sister of Lead Poisoning Victim Is Recovering

Little Elizabeth Garver, 3-year-old sister of the girl who died Saturday from the effects of chewing painted furniture for more than a year, was recovering from her attack of lead poisoning at Casualty Hospital yesterday.

She was taken to the hospital Thursday when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Garver of Hyattsville, told police she, too, had started to gnaw tables, chairs, bannisters and porch railings. Doctors there found that she was suffering from the same condition that killed her 4-year-old sister.

Meanwhile, a representative of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, took possession of the desk and chair on which the two girls used to gnaw. Mark Westgate said his association was interested in determining which of the many coats of paint on the furniture had proved fatal to Claudette Garver.

Police Seek Cafe Thief Cut Leaving Job

A housebreaker who found himhelf on the inside looking out and who cut himself in escaping to the street was being sought by police yesterday.

According to Leon Rosin, 923 Farragut st. nw., owner of Leo and Marty's restaurant, the thief took $250 in bills and $85 in change from an unlocked safe at the cafe about 2:30 a. m. yesterday. Two wrist watches were also stolen.

A white man about 5 feet 5 inches tall, wearing a khaki shirt and tweed slacks, was seen to emerge bleeding from the restaurant after breaking the glass in the front door.

Police believe the man secreted himself in the restaurant earlier, robbed the safe after the place was closed and then had to smash the pane to get out. Hospitals were alerted.

Cut Circus Prices Lures Crowds Despite Rival Plea

Seattle, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Cut-rate prices lured thousands of circus lovers to the Cole Bros. opening matinee here today despite huge Ringling ads in the newspapers advising fans to "wait for the big show positively coming September 9, 10 and 11."

The cut rate was Cole Bros. answer to Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey's advertisements, asking circus fans to wait for it three weeks hence.

Cole Bros. clipped prices to 83 cents for adults and 42 cents for children for its three-day stand here.

D. C. Woman Is Among 44 Hurt in Wreck

Canaan, N. H., Aug. 19. (U.P.).—Forty-four persons including a Washington woman were injured late today when the Boston & Maine Railroad's crack Boston-to-Montreal Express, "The Ambassador," crashed head-on into its southbound sister train on a siding here.

A railroad spokesman said an incorrectly turned switch sent the northbound train hurtling onto the siding on which the Boston-bound "Ambassador" had halted to permit the Montreal express to pass.

Three cars of the northbound train were derailed and both diesel locomotives were damaged heavily, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said injuries generally were minor.

Among the injured was Miss Ella Harllee, 32, 1753 Lamont st., Washington, D. C.

Miss Harllee suffered face bruises and was released from the hospital after treatment. She was on the train northbound on the single-track main line.

"I was sitting there with my mother," Miss Harllee said, "and the next thing I knew I was in the aisle of the train."

(Miss Harllee, who has been active in Washington social circles, is the daughter of the late Brig. Gen. William Curry Harllee, US MC, and Mrs. Harllee, and the sister of Commander John Harllee.)

Green Planned Klan Revival, Official Says

Atlanta, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—The revival of a Nation-wide Ku Klux Klan organization was being planned by Dr. Samuel Green, imperial wizard of the Georgia Klan who died here last night, it was revealed today.

Green, 59, died unexpectedly at his home following a heart attack.

Alabama Klan boss William Hugh Morris, in jail at Birmingham for contempt of court, revealed the unification plans today when he learned of Green's death.

Morris, imperial wizard of the Alabama KKK, said he and Green had conferred over plans for joining "all Klan forces in 28 States."

Who Green's successor will be and how he will be chosen remained a deep secret today. Georgia men rumored to be high officers in the Klan all denied that they even belonged to the organization when questioned by newsmen.

Morris, now serving his thirty-fourth day in jail on an indefinite sentence for refusing to furnish Klan membership list for a Jefferson County grand jury, said he would work with Green's successor toward "joining the forces."

Morris said the Georgia and Alabama Klans are "the two largest Klans in the Nation." He would not name any other States witn Kan organizations.

The Georgia Klan claimed 100,000 members active in 120 Georgia and Tennessee counties. Morris claims the Alabama Klan has 7500 members in Jefferson (Birmingham County) alone.

Green, an obstetrician and gynecologist, will be buried here following funeral services tomorrow morning.

Governor Herman Talmadge today sent a message of condolence to Green's widow, extending his "deepest and hearfelt sympathy."

'Falsies' Slapped Down Again by 'Miss America'

Genoa, Italy, Aug. 19 (UP)—Bebe Shopp of Hopkins, Minn., Miss America of 1948, denounced "falsies" again today as not only "indecent" but "positively deceiving."

Defying her father's order to watch her tongue, Bebe told reporters that one of the main reasons for her European tour was to start "an all-out campaign against falsies."

"A cold war?" she was asked.

"An all-out war," she replied firmly.

When Bebe spoke out in France against "falsies" her father cabled her to stay out of cocktail lounges and wine shops and to grant no more press interviews.

Way Cleared For Appeal on Slot Machines

Legal formalities were concluded yesterday for a direct appeal to the Maryland Court of Appeals on the constitutionality of the Prince Georges County slot machine law.

Judge Charles C. Marbury of the county circuit court, who declared the law unconstitutional June 23, yesterday dismissed a petition for a writ of mandamus to force the county commissioners to issue a slot machine license to Hal Bell, 3424 Rhode Island ave., Mount Rainier.

Marbury also overruled a request by Bell that he invalidate the reason for the commissioners' refusal to issue a license. The commissioners refused to grant Bell a license because of Judge Marbury's decision of unconstitutionality.

Bell's attorney, Robert P. McCullough, said he would file an appeal notice within a few days.

Maryland counties were given the right to hold referendums on legalizing slot machines by enabling legislation passed this year. Five counties, Prince Georges, Charles, Calvert, St. Marys and Anne Arundel legalized slot machine operation. Only the Prince Georges law has been found unconstitutional.

Mason Suspends Murdered Dad's Radio Program

Alice, Tex., Aug. 19 (AP)—Burt Mason, 22, gave up trying to carry on with his dead father's radio program today.

Mason, son of W. H. (Bill) Mason who was slain here July 29, said today's broadcast was his last "because the advertising income is not enough to support the show."

He added: "I'll stay around here and see if I can find more advertising revenue. Otherwise, I'll have to leave."

In his final broadcast, he strongly criticized the Jim Wells County sheriff's department.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Smithwick is accused of murdering the elder Mason, a radio commentator.

Man Battles 200 Policemen 3 Hours, Slain

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP).—In the smoky glare of floodlights, the bullet-riddled body of a crazed gunman was hauled from a narrow areaway between two buildings early today. It marked the end of Chicago's "greatest gun battle."

The gunman, Ernest Craig, 28, went on the shooting spree when policemen tried to arrest him for shooting a child. He held off more than 200 policemen in a flaming three-hour siege until finally driven from his barricaded home by fire and tear gas. A fusillade of police bullets cut him down.

The toll was one dead and 10 injured, including eight policemen. Five officers and a woman spectator were shot. Craig's home was burned out by fire.

Thousands of Spectators

Thousands of spectators, who dodged behind cars and in and out of basements, watched the spectacular battle. Nearly 1000 rounds of ammunition and 200 tear gas bombs and flares were used.

Police Commissioner John C. Prendergast, who narrowly escaped being shot, called it the "greatest and toughest" gun battle in his 43 years on the force.

Police said Craig took a shot last night at Lawrence Mack, 17, a neighbor. He accused Mack of stealing one of his pistols. The shot went wide, the bullet slightly wounding Drake Atkins, 2-year-old child.

When detectives went to Craig's home, he fired at them and missed. Some 40 squads of reserves were called in and the siege was on.

Craig, armed with two pistols, ran wildly from the front to rear of his home, firing from the windows. Police poured a steady fire into the windows from machine guns, rifles and pistols. They dumped in tear gas, but Craig held out.

Flare Sets House on Fire

A flare set the house on fire, but Craig continued shooting.

Craig continued his pot-shots and police laid down a curtain of fire so firemen could train their hoses through the windows. A fire department light wagon fixed its searchlights and floodlights on the house.

When the shots inside stopped, Commissioner Prendergast led a party of five high police officials into the burning house. Craig opened fire on them from the second floor. Prendergast and the others flattened against the wall. When Craig dropped into the areaway between houses a few minutes later and tried to flee, he was killed instantly, hit by nearly 20 bullets.

4 More Bogus Bills Found in Petersburg

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—Four more counterfeit $10 bills turned up in Petersburg at a local bank yesterday. Previously one bogus bill had been discovered here.

All the bills bore the same serial number, B-87930136-E. Another series of the bogus bills have the number B-05730062-D, Secret Services agents said.

Merchants have been advised to examine closely all $10 bills.

Rescue Squad Chief guides boat ashore with Chick Warner, Thomas Lawler and Benton Lawler

Two men and a boy were rescued from Potomac River rapids yesterday after clinging three and a half hours to bushes upon being cast overboard as their boat was swept over Little Falls Dam.

Rescued by members of the Glen Echo Fire Department and Rescue Squad were Thomas Lawler, 46, and his son, Benton, 14, of 6307 Potomac dr., Brookmont, Md., and Chick Marner, 36, of Ridge dr., Brookmont.

Marner said they were fishing above the dam and their outboard motor-powered rowboat was washed over the 20-foot drop about 4:30 p.m. before they realized it.

The swift current rushed the three downstream for 100 yards before they were able to obtain a handhold to stop their headlong progress. The two men were separated from the boy and managed to brace their feet on submerged rocks about three feet below the surface and grab a small bush growing above the water level.

Young Lawler, about 100 yards away and abreast of the men, managed a similar handhold.

The first indication that their shouts had been heard came, Marner said, about an hour before they were taken from their precarious perch when he observed a light flashing in a house window ashore. This signal was given by a fireman who raised and lowered the window blind in a lighted room after the rescue team arrived.

The boy, nearer the Maryland shore, was rescued first.

With the launching of a 15-foot, nonsinkable metal boat, the rescue maneuver was accomplished by Capt. Charles P. Kocher of the Glen Echo Rescue Squad, and Capt. Howard Brubach and Pvt. Edward Deebo of the Glen Echo Fire Department.

Kocher described the method of reaching the stranded trio as "island hopping."

The boat was maneuvered through the turbulent current from one of the small islands with which the river is dotted at that point to another, pausing momentarily in calm water just downstream from each until it reached a point directly above the boy.

The boat was allowed to drift to the bush where young Lawler clung and he was pulled aboard.

The same method brought the boat to a point 40 feet distant from the two men from where it was necessary to throw a rope. Kocher made five casts before the elder Lawler managed to grab it. Because the men could not release their uncertain hold to reach for the flung rope, Kocher had almost to lasso his target. Marner was rescued in the same manner.

Little Falls Dam is a feeder dam for the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. The river at that point is half a mile wide and 20 feet deep below the dam.

Krug's Optimism

Secretary Krug's address to the U. N. Conference on Conservation and Utilization of Resources sounded a note of optimism. It contrasted with the rather gloomy tone of the remarks of President Osborn of the Conservation Foundation, who stressed the drain on natural resources resulting from "an explosive upturn in population in virtually all countries." Mr. Krug refuses to view this increase with alarm. Rather he regards it as a challenge to find solutions for the problems created by increasing demands for decreasing reserves of foods, fuels and materials.

Speculation about the world of the future has its value, of course, but we think Mr. Krug is right in concentrating on the problems of the world's present needs and the steps that can and should be taken now to improve living conditions. He mentioned some of the methods by which science and invention can contribute to more effective utilization of existing resources, such as the development of substitutes for materials in short supply, improved agricultural methods, improved utilization of foods and feed, etc. But the greater part of his address was devoted to discussion of the immediate objectives of sound programs of resource development and conservation.

A good part of Mr. Krug's advice was intended for domestic consumption. For example, he stressed the importance of coordinated plans for internal development, proper timing of public improvements, the responsibility of individuals in a competitive society for avoidance of wasteful practices that injure their fellow citizens. He also pointed out that outside financial assistance is necessary in backward and capital-poor areas as well as technological skill and scientific knowledge to enable such regions to raise living standards by increasing production. Coupled with the reminder that President Truman has plans for assisting areas that "have been bypassed in the world's industrial growth," Mr. Krug's speech was well calculated to lift the spirits of delegates oppressed by their knowledge of the destruction wrought by wars and political turmoil and the effect of population increases in face of already inadequate means of subsistence.

The only hope of confounding the gloomy predictions of pessimists lies in assuming that material progress can be achieved in the face of such obstacles and then courageously facing the question of just what can be done to improve the lot of the undernourished and underprivileged millions of the world. That Mr. Krug has undertaken to do with signal success.

Test For The Finns

News from independent Finland indicates a renewed test of strength for a country which has managed to keep intact all its essential freedoms along a thousand-mile border with Russia. An allegedly Communist-inspired strike has been called with a view, it is said, to overturning the Social Democratic government. The government has responded with the same vigor with which it put down the Communist move last year inside the cabinet. To the great indignation of the liberty-loving Finns, a Communist Minister of the Interior, who had accumulated a secret police, handed over to Russia, without due process of law, several persons on Moscow's wanted list. Instead of leading to an overturn a la Czechoslovakia, the incident resulted in the extrusion of the minister, and in the subsequent election a severe decline in the Communist vote, together with the removal of Communist ministers having executive portfolios. The fresh outbreak among the organized workers in the great lumber regions appears to be a sign that the Communists still nurse hopes of forcing communism on Finland.

In relations with Russia the Finns have maintained a correctness which gives the Russians no excuse for intervention. Reparation payments have been met promptly, and the Finns have not indulged in any anti-Russian agitation. They neither nursed the wounds of war nor moaned about their severe losses of territory and resources, but simply went back to work. And there is no greater worker in the world than the Finn. He has worked so hard that the recovery of Finland has enabled the country not only to feed itself but also to help the neighbor which assisted Finland so open-handedly during its travail, viz, Sweden. Recognition of Finnish progress came when the World Bank last week made a $12,500,000 loan to Finland. Almost simultaneously the House of Representatives passed a resolution to use the so-called World War I debt owed to the United States—in reality, a postwar credit—as an educational fund for Finnish students. The gesture is overdue, and we hope the Senate will follow suit, so as to show Finland what a high rating she has in the American esteem. That she will manage to overcome her latest trial will be the general hope.

Single Market

ECA Administrator Hoffman is walking on eggs throughout Europe as he calls for more attention to be devoted to the creation of "a single market." At any time he might arouse some elements of the jittery Labor government in Britain to cry intervention. They would dearly like to have such a battle cry for use in forcing an election before due time next year so as to insure another term of office. If Mr. Hoffman talks to Europe, however, he can escape this kind of involvement. And he should not stop his "pushing and prodding." A single market requires the demobilization of the national barriers which are stifling intra-European trade. Here is a fresh approach for Mr. Hoffman to the problems of Europe—a move from pushing production to pushing trade, and the switch is warranted by the facts. Production in Europe has come back with a bang, but trade is, relatively, still at a trickle, having been forced along predetermined channels by bilateral agreements.

To show how these agreements work: a British consignment of machine tools to France would have to be paid for in goods from France. France, with her specialties in luxuries, might ship and often does ship champagne. This is not particularly wanted in austere Britain, but sometimes it might be either that or nothing. In the old "multilateral" days, when currencies were convertible, the Swedes might take the champagne, and send the British something they wanted instead of champagne, say, Swedish steel. Under the present lack of system in Europe credits may pile up till appropriate goods can be shipped. Thus trade exchanges are sluggish and minor, whereas prewar trade was brisk and unhandicapped.

Marshall aid for Europe is now blocking intra-European trade by enabling the Europeans to pursue self-containment, or separated markets. Thus every nation seems to be developing its own steel industry, and most of the countries are doing it with Marshall money. Contrast the situation in prewar days when, for example, the great British midland city of Birmingham grew to wealth on the basis of finishing half-finished steel manufactures imported from Germany. The new separatism in Europe encourages tariff and other forms of protection on the part of the European countries, retards the growth of a better living standard which comes from the widening of the market, and tends to make demobilization of barriers the more difficult. For many of the industries that are growing in the new hothouse of Europe are uneconomic and need tariff protection to survive.

To be sure, a single market would not solve Europe's problem. Europe wants most of all to buy the things that America produces, but hasn't the goods at the right price with which to pay. This is what the so-called dollar crisis means. It means that Europe is not in a position to buy a standard of living consisting of things from America. Mr. Hoffman says, "I know of no other constructive way to close a dollar deficit than to earn a dollar income." How? Mr. Hoffman suggests one or two of the necessary answers. One is lower prices; those Americans who have been accustomed to buy European specialties (e.g., shoes and clothes) can testify that these specialties are now out of sight, and have also fallen in quality. Packaging and marketing, also, are not geared to the American market, and the lack of attention to these two items is responsible in some part for Europe's failure to take advantage of American market opportunities.

Mr. Hoffman refuses to admit that the American tariff is responsible for the falling off in Europe's exports to America. It is, indeed, the consensus in Washington that the Europeans, unlike the Canadians, have not taken advantage of last year's 50 per cent cuts in the American tariff. However, when Mr. Hoffman gets back he might do a little pushing and prodding of Americans to ease some of the restrictions other than tariffs that impede the import market. They are called "administrative protections," and the protection is in some cases arbitrary at the customs house, lending warrant to an old idea that a lot of trouble would be saved and trade facilitated by having the American examination done in the loading ports in Europe. This is one thing that could be done in America to ease the crisis that has overcome Europe as a result of the change in world conditions, though it is Europe alone that can develop a competitive position.

Potatoes

In a series of five articles Post Reporter John W. Ball has given our readers an on-the-spot report of what the Government's potato price-support plan has done for Maine growers. In Aroostook County alone the Government paid out 65 million dollars last year to hold up potato prices. At least one, and maybe several, local growers received checks in the neighborhood of half a million dollars for potatoes sold to the Commodity Credit Corporation, while 31 farmers obtained more than $100,000 each. And these stupendous figures take no account of the returns from non-Government sales at the artificially high prices resulting from Government price support operations.

To be sure, some of these returns are skimmed off by high production costs. In the days of the California gold rush miners had to share their riches with purveyors of tools, clothing, and services. Similarly the growers of high-priced potatoes have to share their returns with labor. Last year, for instance, pickers' earnings averaged from $20 to $25 a day. This spring potato planters made $15 to $25 a day. Nor does a grower have to be a big landowner or capitalist to get a sizable portion of the golden harvest. Mr. Ball cites the case of a man with a 30-acre farm that cost him $3000 in 1930. All but two acres of this holding were in potatoes, for which the Government paid $20,000. Outlays for fertilizers, insecticides, and labor cost $7000, leaving the farmer with a net profit of $13,000. Not a bad return on an investment of less than a fourth that sum!

For the country as a whole payments to growers on the 1949 potato crop will be considerably less than those on the 1948 crop, owing to the fact that the support price has been cut from 90 per cent to 60 per cent of parity, and acreage allotments have also been reduced. Nevertheless, the program is expected to cost from 50 to 100 million dollars. Even at these lower levels, the support program is an incentive to overproduction, which forces the Government to take supplies off the market and sell them for a song to starch mills, alcohol plants, etc. Acreage restrictions, too, have failed to solve the problem of overproduction. For growers have been encouraged by high prices to use more fertilizers and insecticides and to plant closer. As a result, despite a reduction this year of nearly 25 per cent in planted acreage, Maine's potato crop will probably be only 10 to 12 per cent below last year's.

If potatoes were to be sold for what they would bring in the open market without price supports, there is no knowing where they might end up. For per capita potato consumption has been steadily declining, and the demand for them as food is relatively inelastic. Hence, it is doubtful whether lower prices would stimulate increased buying to any considerable extent. If growers were to be paid the difference between a so-called fair price for potatoes and prices ruling in the open market (so-called production payments advocated by the Secretary of Agriculture), the cost of the program might far exceed outlays under the present system, unless severe restrictions were imposed on production and sales. Yet to cut off all supports would entail dreadful hardship in one-crop areas, like Aroostook County.

We don't know the answer to the potato problem. But as Ralph Trigg, head of the Commodity Credit Corporation, recently told Maine potato growers, "It is perfectly obvious that the sound answer does not lie in unlimited purchases to support the market. We need a better approach," he said, "and the authorization to develop such an approach, if we are to avoid a program collapse which could threaten the whole farm price support structure."

Skid-Greasing Business

It was President Truman's charge of unfairness on the part of the Senate Investigating Subcommittee that caused the release of the secret testimony reflecting upon his military aide, General Vaughan. When the President accused the committee of holding most of its sessions behind closed doors, "particularly if they were friendly to General Vaughan," the committee rightly concluded that the only effective reply was to release the testimony. Instead of being friendly to the meddlesome general, the testimony is highly damaging. The committee had sought to withhold it until the full story could be told. Once more the President's stubborn attempts to shield his aide have boomeranged and given the expose prominence it would not otherwise have had.

The story of the seven deep-freeze units given to General Vaughan at a cost of $2574, plus crating and shipping charges, lacks completeness. But what has been made known is a rather ugly tale. A few weeks after the first freezers were delivered, three business associates of David Bennett, president of the Albert Verley Co., who paid the bill, were taken to Europe by the Air Transport Command. The trip was arranged, according to the testimony, by General Vaughan's good friend John Maragon. It came only two months after VE-Day, when other businessmen found it impossible to get to Europe. Someone, as Senator Mundt pointed out, obviously greased the skids.

One of those who made the trip was Mr. Maragon himself. He came back with what he designated for the customs inspectors as "four bottles of champagne," one addressed to Miss Truman and another to George Drescher at the White House. Mr. Maragon claimed they were gifts "sent by the embassy." But the "champagne" turned out to be oil for Mr. Bennett's perfume business. William P. Rogers, counsel for the investigating committee, said that it looked to him as though "they caught Maragon red-handed smuggling the stuff in." The law, he said, calls for confiscation of the property in cases of this kind, but this highly valuable oil was sent on to Mr. Bennett and there was no prosecution. Harry Hoffman, the advertising man who made the trip with Mr. Maragon, still insists that the freezers were not given in return for or in anticipation of favors. But the coincidence of a $2574 gift with such apparent favors certainly requires further explaining. Incidentally, Mr. Hoffman flatly denied that he told General Vaughan that the freezers were "rejects," as the general claimed in his recent statement.

It is time to remind the participants in this unpretty act that the law provides stiff penalties for anyone who gives "any money or thing of value" to an officer or employe of the Government "with intent to influence his action or decision on any question." Government employes likewise must be fined or sent to prison for three years and dismissed from their jobs if they are proved to have received any "promise" or "gratuity" given with intent to influence their decisions. Even though the full story remains to be told, surely enough has been told to indicate to the President that it cannot be tossed off as if it were the exchange of a cigar for a smile.

Home Rule Fable

Once upon a time there was a rich and powerful country called Acirema. Its inhabitants were called Snacirema and for the most part they were loyal, sober and hard-working citizens. They were governed by elected representatives who regarded themselves as the servants of the people, particularly when they were up for reelection.

Now the Snacirema were very proud of their republican form of government and the principle of "no taxation without representation" which had been handed down from the earliest days of their fight for independence.

There was one curious defect, however, in universal suffrage. The residents of the capital city of Acirema were not allowed to have elected representatives or to vote for President or for their local city officials. From time to time this fact was pointed out but the Snacirema and their elected representatives were so proud of the progress they had made in extending the franchise that they paid little attention to this situation.

By 1949, however, the shouting of the residents of the capital city was beginning to be audible in the halls of government. In fact, a number of the people's elected representatives became sufficiently concerned about the voteless people of the capital to introduce a bill permitting a measure of local self-government.

The bill was widely supported in the halls of government until it was referred to one small group of the people's elected representatives. This group was annoyed by the shouting and the suggestion that anything should be done differently from the way it had been done for decades.

Can you guess what this little group of representatives did? They went out and bought a quantity of bees wax, stuffed it into their ears so they wouldn't be annoyed by the shouting and announced that they would do exactly nothing about the voteless capital.

The moral of this story? Don't put bee's wax in your ears when approaching a grade crossing or you may never know what hit you. CRYSTAL GAZER.

Reorganization Plan No. 1

I have just read Agnes Meyer's article column in your issue of August 11 supporting the President's Reorganization Plan No. 1. I wish you could find it possible to change your editorial viewpoint concerning this important matter. In fact, your discussion of the Maryland health plan for the case of the indigent appears to me to be an excellent example of local planning and local financing and certainly has no relationship to the need for an over-all department of welfare which would primarily be a department of social security.

Your article states that "under the leadership of a secretary of welfare, a new vitality, a new zest for local initiative would result." Surely, you do not believe this. On the other hand, there is every reason to believe that just the opposite would be true and that more and more we would be inclined to look to Washington for planning, thereby killing local initiative.

Opera Commentary

It was not until after my third attendance at the San Carlo Opera Company's creditable summer session that I learned the identity of the talented young man whose intermission commentary entertained us so highly. It was good to be told that he was that same Paul Hume whose work with The Washington Post has represented the finest musical criticism to be had in Washington.

What appealed to me particularly about his method of approach to opera-story was the universality of its appeal. It was vastly entertaining to me, and I have been attending these same operas from La Scala to New York and back for years more than this young man has been alive. It was equally appealing to the young, therefore intense, students who accompanied me to these performances and whose first brush with opera they represented. It is an eminently good thing for a music critic to have a realistic, good-humored, but obviously sympathetic attitude toward the basic problem of opera, a problem which I once heard Mortimer Adler describe as the impossibility of recording the ethical-political content of music and drama respectively.

Preserving Landmarks

After the many years of distinguished public service of Gen. U. S. Grant 3d as chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Washington is to be congratulated upon acquiring a worthy successor to fill this most important office in W. W. Wurster.

I refer to recent statements of Chairman Wurster pointing out the desirability and importance of preserving what is left of the traditional "color" and flavor of our Nation's Capital, not only in Georgetown, but in Washington proper.

Even by those that have no appreciation whatever of historic or aesthetic values, it should be borne in mind that the tourist trade is still our No. 1 industry, and tourists do not come here to see the same chain stores, filling stations and parking lots that they have left on their home town Main street.

One of the all too few remaining structures of the kind to which Mr. Wurster refers, that lend color and "flavor" to Washington, is the old Western Market building at 21st and K sts., a beautifully proportioned structure of mellow charm with the kind of excellent brick work that has now become a lost art.

The "If" In Military History

Stuart Barber's communication of August 18 includes forceful arguments for the "air blockade" in modern war.

Unfortunately, his zeal causes him to misread the history of the last war. Unconsciously, it is to be hoped, he adds support to the false contention that our strategic bombing and use of the atomic bomb were unnecessary acts of brutality.

Within three years of the war's end, arrogant Nazi pleaders at Nuremburg were already excusing Nazi barbarism as no worse than our bombing of Hiroshima. This myth will be assiduously peddled by Fascist apologists in Germany and Japan, just as Hitler used the myth that Germany's troubles came from the Allies' "betrayal" at Versailles.

It is important that we do not acquire a false sense of shame for our conduct in World War II. It was to avoid just this that Mr. Stimson published his full account of the decision to use the A-bomb.

Mr. Barber's error—in common with other critics of our strategy—comes from overlooking the "if" in history. Our military strength in the Pacific made it most likely that the Japanese would ultimately surrender without direct invasion of the Japanese homeland. Because this was "most likely," Mr. Barber assumes that it was inevitable.

His fallacy is clearly shown by this paragraph from his letter: "Japan's own leaders knew they could not win the war once they lost Saipan in June, 1944. What is more, our own leaders knew they knew this."

It is true that the loss of Saipan vastly weakened Japan's military situation. But Mr. Barber's assumption that this meant inevitable defeat is nonsense. This is shown by what happened in the Philippines four months after Saipan fell.

Our Philippine invasion in October, 1944, was supported by overwhelming United States naval strength. According to Mr. Barber's theory of history the Japanese leaders certainly "knew" the landings would succeed, and our leaders must have shared that "knowledge." What almost happened should remind us all of the power of the "if" in history. The inferior Japanese fleet was divided into three forces—two to attack the landing forces and one to decoy our Naval support away from the scene.

The human factor, which creates history's "if," entered the scene. Admiral Halsey fell completely for the Japanese decoy, and took his ships away from the landing area. One of the Japanese attack forces was then able to penetrate within gun range of the ships carrying our landing forces. What saved our landing was not the inevitability of victory which Mr. Barber assumes. We were saved by lucky chance. The Japanese admiral canceled out Halsey's error with an error of his own, leaving the scene without exploiting his opportunity to destroy our forces.

"If" the Japanese admiral had destroyed our forces, history might well have run a very different course. We had no reservoir of transports and landing craft in the Pacific; our main strength was 15,000 miles away in Europe. And transfers from Europe were unlikely, for two months after the Philippine landing our European commanders were pleading for more support because of the German offensive in the Ardennes.

Thus, but for the error of a Japanese admiral, our Pacific war effort might have been set back for months or a year. Had that happened, the breakdown of the alliance with Russia might have preceded and prevented victory over Japan. Such a course of events was certainly historically possible. This should remind Mr. Barber that he cannot assume the inevitability of Japanese surrender without use of the A-bomb.

The men of good will who made the awesome decision to use the A-bomb—Messrs. Truman, Stimson, et al.—could not afford flighty assumptions about the inevitability of history. They were real men, dealing with real problems.

Mr. Barber can aid his country by his forceful arguments in favor of "air blockade" as a future strategy. But in doing so, he should avoid gratuitous assertions that our past strategy was needlessly barbaric.

Stay-At-Home Dilemma

By Malvina Lindsay

Summer Pariahs

THE INGLENOOK family, which decided to stay home this vacation, had not realized until August what a rugged project it had undertaken. For August is now the chief vacation month of the year, having, as surveys show, pushed July out of the running. Hence, virtually everyone the Inglenooks knew was "getting away."

Each morning Mr. Inglenook was informed by Mr. Steppit, his neighbor, where the Steppits would be that time next week. The Steppit family on a three-week motor tour was taking in Niagara Falls, Chicago, Yellowstone Park, Lake Louise, San Francisco's Chinatown, Hollywood, the Grand Canyon, the Mammoth Cave and Palm Beach. "Too bad you're not getting out of town," Mr. Steppit always concluded. "You really owe it to yourself to have the rest."

The Scuttles across the street, who were going to take over somebody's cottage at Barbecue Beach, were more direct. "You simply must get away if it's only for a few days," they repeatedly told the Inglenooks. 'You simply can't afford to let yourselves get in a rut this way! You'll stagnate!"

WHEN THE Rambles, who were making a series of overnight stands with relatives and friends they had recently located in places they wanted to visit, began shrieking, "You don't mean you're not getting out of town!" Mrs. Inglenook spoke out.

"Yes," she said, "we're staying home to enjoy the comfort it's taken us 20 years of work and a lot of money to accumulate. We're staying home to enjoy the conveniences that science has made possible for us, the protection it's given us against heat, rain, wind, bugs, and roadside restaurants. Why should I go traipsing around the country living out of a suitcase, accumulating dirty laundry, using other people's bathrooms, or even cramping myself into a hotel room or a tourist cabin?"

"Oh, but you really owe it to yourself to get out of town," Mrs. Ramble persisted with a blank stare.

Mr. Inglenook tried a new tack on the insistent Flitts who were going somewhere in an airplane and thought everyone should do likewise. "You need to get out and go places, broaden yourself by travel," advised Mr. Flitt. "Well you see," said Mr. Inglenook, falling back on his friend Henry Thoreau, "I've traveled a lot in Washington."

"I suppose you have done a lot of sightseeing," said Mrs. Flitt politely. "But," put in her husband, "everything here's old stuff."

Thinking that the Amblers who were only going to the mountains might understand, Mr. Inglenoock said he intended to spend part of his vacation with Sir James Jeans. "A friend?" asked Mr. Ambler, in surprise. "No an astronomer. You see I've always wanted to read his book, The Universe Around Us. What I mean is I'd like to look into some of the newer theories of what's going on in the universe—you know, outside this planet."

"What you need old man," said Mr. Ambler kindly, "is a little whirl down to Mexico City."

MRS. INGLENOOK began to weaken when the Pace family returned from Europe. "Everybody was there," Mrs. Pace reported. "People you'd never dream of! They say over a million Americans booked passage this summer. Really it's getting so it's as bad to say you've never been to Europe as to New York."

On top of that the Inglenooks went to a cocktail party at which everyone was just getting back from or going on vacation. The shrieks of horror over the Inglenooks not getting out of town rent the air.

"Perhaps," Mrs. Inglenoook told her husband, "we ought to do as people did in the old days when they couldn't leave town—shut up the front of the house, live in the back, and pretend we're away."

But the next day Mr. Inglenook came up with a better solution. When he met the Gadds he told them proudly his family was staying home, and listened with composure to their protests.

"Yes," he went on" we're saving our money because we've booked passage on that first trip to the moon. You know the Canadian Rocket Society has announced it will operate a space ship there and back in 1960."

The Gadds were aghast. Was it safe? Perfectly, said Mr. Inglenook. But wasn't it terribly expensive? Yes, the total expenses of the trip would be five million dollars, Mr. Inglenook admitted, but much of that would be underwritten by science. However he was going to sell his house and cash in his insurance policy.

The Gadds stood with open mouths. "You see, after all," said Mr. Inglenook," it'll be worth it. When we come back and people ask us if we spent our vacation out of town we can tell them we've been to the moon!"

A Communication

Cooperative Housing For Medium Incomes

By Harry C. Bates

Chairman, Housing Committee, American Federation of Labor

The intelligent treatment which The Washington Post has given to the question of housing legislation contributed greatly to the enactment of the housing law passed earlier this year. Remembering many fine editorials in support of public housing and slum clearance I was very much surprised by your editorial on August 14 criticizing the cooperative housing provisions of the new bill (S. 2246)), introduced by Senator Sparkman, and approved by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The value of a housing measure, like any other type of legislation, must be judged in terms of the answers to the following three questions:

1. Is there a real need which this legislation is designed to meet?

2. How well does the proposed program meet this need?

3. Are there any alternative, more effective, methods for meeting this need?

The American Federation of Labor is convinced that the cooperative housing program in Senator Sparkman's bill meets all these tests.

THERE IS common agreement that at the present time the housing needs of "moderate income" families are not being met. By "moderate income" families we mean the 40 per cent of American families whose incomes in 1948 ranged between $2000 and $4000, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

The great majority of union members and veterans fall in this group. The average factory worker today earns about $53 a week, equivalent to $2756 a year for full-time work. The average veteran earns approximately the same amount, or a little less. Assuming that no family should be forced to spend more than 20 to 25 per cent of its income for shelter, these families can afford to pay no more than about $50-$60 a month for housing.

The housing problem facing these families is both simple and tragic. Largely untouched by any existing housing legislation, they are too poor to afford the housing constructed by private builders, yet their income is too high to make them eligible for public housing.

According to the Federal Reserve Board, the average price of new houses for sale in 1948 was between $7500 and $8500, requiring monthly payments of approximately $75 to $85. The estimated rental for an average apartment in an FHA rental project is in the neighborhood of $100 a month, including services and utilities. Clearly the overwhelming majority of moderate-income families cannot buy or rent the homes private builders are constructing today.

On the other hand, these families are not eligible for public housing. The average income of families admitted to public housing projects during the latest period for which figures are available was only $28 a week. Existing programs are clearly not meeting the needs of these moderate-income families.

A NUMBER of different proposals have been advanced to deal with this problem. After careful study of these proposals, public interest groups which have been most concerned with this problem, including all the major labor and veterans' organizations, have concluded that the most effective and practical solution is embodied in Senator Sparkman's bill for a cooperative housing program.

This bill makes it possible for cooperative housing projects to be financed by direct loans from the Federal Government at the going Federal rate of interest (now 2½ per cent) plus one-half of 1 per cent for administration for an amortization period of up to 50 years. Experts in the housing field have estimated that this program would make possible the following types of savings compared with the rent for the average FHA-insured 4½-room apartment:

1. Utilizing the nonprofit cooperative type of organization, $5 a month.

2. Allowing very low vacancy rate comparable to that in public housing, an additional saving of $5 a month.

3. Reduction in operating and maintenance expenses made possible by a maximum of tenant maintenance, $11 a month.

These savings amount to $21 a month, and if private ordinary mortgage terms were to be applied, the resulting rents would average $65-$80 a month—still substantially more than the moderate-income families can afford to pay.

THE CRUCIAL savings made possible by the provisions of the Sparkman bill are in the financing terms. The reduction in the effective interest rate from the present 4½ per cent to 3 per cent and the lengthening of the amortization period to 50 years allows a further reduction of about $12 a month. The total savings, therefore, would amount to about $33 a month and would bring the cost down from $85-$100 to $52-$67 a month.

The direct loan feature of the bill has been criticized, but as the Senate Banking and Currency Committee has pointed out, these provisions represent no untried experiment. Direct lending programs by the Federal Government have been in existence for many years and have been of inestimable benefit, particularly to the farm families of our Nation. Direct Federal loans to rural electrification cooperatives at interest rates of 2 per cent and with long amortization periods have been made for many years. Direct Federal loans have also been made to farm cooperatives at low interest rates, and to cooperatives of water users for irrigation projects.

The Government also has undertaken direct real estate loans in the past, and, indeed, provision is made for such loans for other types of housing developments in the Sparkman bill. For the Government to recognize that its lending powers are necessary to meet the housing needs of a large group of families represents simply a continuation of policies which have long been effective in other fields.

THE EDITORIAL asserts that the proposed cooperative housing program involves some element of subsidy from the taxpayers. This is a contention which we vigorously deny. The fact is that all groups working on this program have insisted from the start that any housing program for "moderate income" families must be one which can be carried on completely without subsidy.

For the Government to lend money at the same interest rate at which it borrows it clearly involves no element of subsidy, if it receives an additional amount to cover the cost of administration. In the bill an additional one half per cent interest is included for the purpose, and our calculations indicate that it will be entirely adequate.

Nor do we think that the adoption of this program "might result in substantial losses." The cooperative principle has proved its worth many times over. Unlike a cooperative retail store, for example, families who join this type of cooperative will be continually investing their savings in the housing project. In our opinion, this will assure that losses will be kept at a very low rate.

The American Federation of Labor supports the cooperative housing program contained in S. 2246. To us this seems the only practical solution to a very acute problem, the problem of finding a way whereby the moderate income families can be helped to provide decent housing for themselves.

We feel that there are certain dangers in applying subsidized housing to "moderate income" families. In the cooperative principle, plus the provision for direct loans by the Federal Government at low interest rates, we have a practical solution to meet this pressing problem. It is true that this country has not had extensive experience with cooperative housing, but in the light of foreign experiences, particularly Sweden, we feel confident that a vigorous cooperative housing movement can be successfully organized. We are prepared ourselves to do everything within our power to make certain that this program will be a success.

LARAMIE RESIDENTS PICK UP THE PIECES AFTER TRUCK HURTLED INTO STREET

Laramie, Wyo., Aug. 19 (AP).—Rocketing out of a mountain canyon at 100 miles an hour, a runaway semitrailer truck laid waste to Larimie's main street yesterday.

The grain-laden truck injured five persons, damaged nine automobiles and wrecked two buildings. Damage was estimated at $30,000.

Driver Ernest Kirk, 26, of Beatrice, Nebr., said the brakes failed on the Telephone Canyon Road. It drops 2000 feet in 3 miles. He said the truck was going more than 100 miles an hour when it shot out of the canyon, 5 miles east of here.

The speed had dropped only slightly, he said, when he reached the city limits. The truck sideswiped a highway patrolman's car first. In the next two blocks, the hurtling truck brushed two other cars.

The third collision jackknifed the trailer. The cab went hurtling against four cars. The trailer wrecked two others before plowing into a bar and a cafe.

The brick fronts were torn loose from the buildings.

Kirk was treated for minor injuries. He was charged with reckless driving.

Move Slated To Bring DP Bill to Senate

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) said a petition to bring displaced persons legislation to the Senate floor would be circulated next week.

His announcement was made after he was defeated in a move within the Senate Judiciary Committee to discharge the present subcommittee from consideration of the legislation.

Meanwhile, Ugo Carusi, head of the Displaced Persons Commission, announced that thousands of European war refugees who are now listed for admission to the United States may never get here.

Carusi said two percentage limitations in the present law will bar some of those who expected admission to the United States. These require that 30 per cent of the refugees be experienced farmers and that 40 per cent be from the Baltic nations.

Ferguson was defeated, 5 to 2, on his preliminary move to discharge the subcommittee. Voting with him was Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.).

Opposing him was Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) and Senators James O. Eastland (D., Miss.), William Langer (R., N. Dak.), Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), and William E. Jenner (R., Ind.). Senators Alexander Wiley (R., Wisc.) and Frank Graham (D., N. C.) did not vote.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) has promised GOP advocates of a change in the displaced persons law that the matter will get action this session. A bipartisan petition will be introduced, Lucas said.

Ex-King Carol, Mme. Lupescu Are Married for Second Time

Carol and Lepescu in second marriage in 25-year-romance

Lisbon, Aug. 19 (AP).—Former King Carol of Romania and red-haired Mme. Elena Lupescu were married last night for the second time in their 25-year romance. He gave her the title of Princess Elena.

An aide said the re-wedding would stop rumors that they were quarreling.

Carol and the Romanian commoner who long ago replaced Princess Helen of Greece in his affections and eventually as his wife, took their religious vows in a Greek Orthodox Church ceremony at his Estoril villa.

They previously were married "in extremis" at a civil ceremony in Brazil two years ago when Mme. Lupescu was believed to be near death. Such marriages are sanctioned by Brizilian law.

Only a few close associates attended last night's religious ceremony.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

The Arrogance Of Power

THE CHARITABLE view of Gen. Harry Vaughan's associates that he is merely a good fellow anxious to do favors for his friends has been considerably dimmed by the testimony before the Senate Investigating Committee.

Childs

While the General may be able to refute the testimony presented in open session by witnesses under oath, the picture as it stands now is not a pretty one. The implications of the influence exercised from the White House in behalf of a fixer's client are bad enough. But there is another aspect of the Vaughan affair that is just as reprehensible.

That is the use of coercion and threat against a minor Government officeholder who was reluctant to do a favor for a firm that had flagrantly violated the law. This is an example of the arrogance of power wielded by a party long in office.

General Vaughan has never been elected to anything. It is most unlikely that he ever could be elected to any office. Yet, on the testimony of Henry C. Hathorn, a former officer of the Department of Agriculture, under oath, we see Vaughan arrogating unconscionable powers to himself.

This is a symptom of political unwisdom; yes, of political atrophy, that the Administration will ignore at its peril. The public may be cynical about the gift of deep freezers. But the American people are acutely sensitive to the intimation that the power of office is a permanent and God-given right.

OTHER instances of the same abuse of power have occurred in recent months. One of the most notorious was the way in which Representative Francis E. Walter drove an able civil servant, Roy James, out of office. James' only offense appears to have been that he ran for Congress on the Republican ticket in opposition to Walter who is now serving his ninth term in the House.

The suspicion grows that this arrogance of office conceals something worse. Far too little attention is given to the public interest. All that the public sees are the convenient arrangements of the inner circle glossed by public statements often wide of the facts.

An example is the way in which the confirmation of Attorney General Tom Clark to be a justice of the Supreme Court was put ahead of urgent legislation and of other nominations long sidetracked. This was done even though Clark cannot sit with his eight brethren on the Supreme Bench until October when the sessions of the court are resumed.

It was done in the face of rumors current on the floor of the Senate that the role of the Department of Justice in the 5-percenter investigation would eventually be developed. At the same time the Senate inquiry was postponed.

THIS may have been a most innocent arrangement. But timed as it appears to have been in relation to the Vaughan inquiry, there will be doubts. The action on Clark came as Government departments and the European Cooperation Administration were desperately casting about for some way to stay in business in the face of the Senate's failure to pass essential appropriation bills.

The symptoms of arrogance of a party in power since 1933 had something to do, in my opinion, with the defeat of the Democrats in the congressional election of 1946. That ancient slogan of American politics, "Turn the rascals out," may sound a bit primitive. But it is still a going rule of conduct.

Despite the final outcome, I have always believed that the independent voter at the outset of the campaign last fall was looking for an alternative. Failing to find it, he voted the Democrats back into office.

Perhaps the most baleful effect of the 5-percenter revelations is the example it sets in the Nation. It will encourage the system of fix-and-favor, the graft and the criminality already far too prevalent on the level of local administration.

We hear a great deal of talk these days about the danger of a welfare state. Much of that talk seems to me beside the point. To run a welfare state you must have competence, responsibility and ordinary honesty at every level.

The greater danger, in my opinion, is that we shall get the handout state. Under the guise of social welfare the entrenched politician will pass out pensions and perquisites to the favored. And the handout state can be far more costly in every way than the welfare state.

U. S. Consulate Workers Begin Canton Flight

Hongkong, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—The United States Navy began evacuating American consular employes from Canton today, as Communist columns were reported punching nearer the Chinese refugee capital.

Two Navy planes operating a "shuttle service" between Hongkong and Canton brought the first eight evacuees here with eight tons of baggage, files and other consular property.

Vice Admiral Oscar C. Badger said that the 72 consular officials and dependents remaining in Canton would be brought out within a few days. Six Navy seaplanes were ready to take nonofficial refugees to Manila, Philippines.

The Nationalist Central News Agency reported that China had agreed to allow the American liner General Gordon to pass through the coastal blockade to rescue "several thousand" Americans stranded in Red-held Shanghai.

The Communists already had agreed to allow the Gordon to enter Shanghai.

Chinese newspapers reported Nationalist troops had pulled back to Meikwan, about 150 miles northnortheast of Canton after the fall of Tayu, 175 miles from Canton.

Chile Arrests Communists

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Two hundred members of the outlawed Communist Party, including several leaders and former legislators, have been arrested in connection with this week's bloody riots here, it was announced today.

The government has charged formally that the riots were part of an organized Communist revolt.

Luis Brun, director of the bureau of investigation, said the Communists "sought the total paralysis of national activities in order to overthrow the government."

Among those held are 60 prominent members of the railwaymen's union, Brun said.

Using special powers to meet the emergency, the government succeeded in restoring peace and order in the capital.

Swiss Arrest Air Technician In Secrets Sale

Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Switzerland today announced the arrest of an air technician accused of selling Swiss secrets to an unidentified foreign power—the second spy arrest made known here within 10 days.

An official announcement said that Willy Gerber, mechanic employed by a military research center, had admitted receiving 34,000 Swiss francs ($8000) in more than 10 years of spy work on Switzerland and the Axis powers for at least three foreign nations.

Authoritative quarters believed that Britain and France were involved.

Graziani Reported Ill

Rome, Aug. 19 (AP).—Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, 67, was reported gravely ill in a prison hospital here today. He has been confined to the hospital since last April when a sudden illness interrupted his trial for Fascist war crimes.

Council Split Over Plan for U. S. of Europe

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—The first 10 days in the life of the Council of Europe reveal that the 12 democracies are split sharply over the idea of creating a United States of Europe.

France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg want, and believe it is possible, to go ahead at once with plans for a united Europe. Some British Conservatives are with them.

But the British Laborites, the Irish and the Scandinavians believe union now is impossible. They say their people and their parliaments are not prepared for it psychologically.

The British assert it might weaken their ties with the Commonwealth. The most they will agree to at the moment is a cautious study of the problem, with no commitments.

Winston Churchill, dominant figure in this assembly, favors a study of the problem by experts before any steps are taken.

National Guard Here Has 72% of Required Strength

The District National Guard, with 2932 officers and men as of July 31, has 72 per cent of its authorized strength and thus ranks sixth among the Nation's Guard units, the National Guard Bureau said yesterday.

The local force included air units of 113 officers and 720 enlisted men, while the Army components had 170 officers and 1929 enlisted men.

The Virginia Guard had a strength of 5220, while Maryland units totaled 4987. The Nation's Guard strength was at 358,882, a peacetime high.

Hopes Dim for Full Arms Aid

the yet-to-be-established treaty organization.

The State Department has declared itself to be wholly in accord with this view, but opponents of the present arms bill say it fails to portray this policy.

In unusually sharp language for him, Dulles said he believes the issue can be clarified if the Administration shows "no disposition to be foolish or bullheaded about it."

'Rather Brutal Method'

It was not possible in the House, he said, to get a "scientific approach" to this by amendments, and "the rather brutal method of cutting short the amount" resulted.

Senator Tydings (D., Md.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called the sharp House cut "a mistake."

"There is no testimony to support the cut," he told reporters. "A poor defense is worse than no defense at all.

'Unless we are going to make a defense strong enough to accomplish its purpose," Tydings declared, 'it will be better not to appropriate any money at all, for less than enough defense is money thrown down the rathole."

Cites Recommendations

He said the House cut was contrary to recommendations of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, who are far better equipped than Congressmen to evaluate defense needs.

The House action, Tydings said, "was extravagance, rather than economy . . . There's no use using a 15-foot rope to rescue a drowning nation that's 30 feet from shore."

By approving the North Atlantic Treaty, he stated, "the United States is committed to defense of the North Atlantic area."

Weak North Atlantic European states, he said, mean that in event of war the United States "will have to furnish . . . all of the money, most of the guns, and do most of the fighting and dying."

Senator Vandenberg indicated after a visit to the White House this morning he believes there will be a compromise over the reduction.

"Contentious Problem"

"The House action," he said, "shows that we have a highly cententious problem on our hands. It raises a problem of finding a common denominator in this thing."

In his testimony before the Senate committee, Wallace, Progressive Party candidate for President last year, said "the security of the United States and the world is threatened by the military assistance program."

"By the test of experience in Greece and Turkey and China," he said, "no arms program the Administration has devised has led to anything but economic disaster."

He charged President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson with using "reprehensible' language in urging adoption of the program "to incite fear in the hearts of America. These are not the statements of men who seek peace . . .

"We have never had a war with Russia, and there is no indication whatsoever that Russia wants to be at war with us."

'Utter Insanity'

There is a peaceful alernative, he said—"agreeing to live in the same world with Russia."

"A settlement with the Russians requires working within the framework of the United Nations—not ignoring it," he said, for the arms bill merely pays "lip service" to the U.N.

It is "utter insanity," he said to try to contain an idea with guns."

The path to averting the growing world economic crisis, Wallace said, is by such measures as united world-wide development and reconstruction, aimed at ending starvation, disease and illiteracy, and wiping out barriers between East-West trade.

D. Robert Yarnall, Philadelphia manufacturer and member of the American Friends Service Committee, told the committee the military aid plan threatens to weaken Europe's stand against Communism by competing with economic recovery for manpower and resources.

New Englander Testifies

He urged adoption of the proposal by the Friends Committee on National Legislation for "an adequate world organization" and reduction of armaments.

The Rev. Amos C. Barstow Murphy, chairman of the Lawrence (Mass.) Progressive Party, said he came from "the most distressed depression area in the country" to testify against the bill.

Thousands of unemployed there, he said, "look to their Government to provide jobs to keep them from starving, not guns and tanks for a war which they neither desire nor think necessary."

Pickets With Banners Again Stalk Trial of Communists

New York, Aug. 19 (AP)—Pickets reappeared outside the Federal courthouse today as the defense continued in the trial of 11 top American Communist leaders, charged with conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the government.

Today's chief witness was Joseph Starobin, the United Nations correspondent for the Communist Party newspaper, Daily Worker.

Starobin attacked Government testimony of the paper's former editor, Louis F. Budenz, who linked the party to Moscow and the Communist International. Budenz renounced communism in 1945.

While Starobin testified before Judge Harold R. Medina and a Federal District Court jury, nearly 50 pickets paraded outside demanding freedom for three defendants jailed for contempt of court.

"Free Winston, Green and Hall; Judge Medina, get on the ball," read one of the picket's signs.

Henry Winston, Gilbert Green and Gus Hall are the trio held in jail between court sessions.

Starobin contradicted a key point in the Government's effort to prove the Communists revived the party in 1945 to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States.

Budenz said Starobin, then covering the United Nations conference in San Francisco, had written a letter that said in substance:

"Comrade Manuilsky was indignant at the American Communist Party for not having criticized the American Government more severely, particularly the Secretary of State, and that French comrades had been given the commission how to instruct the American comrades in such matters."

Manuilsky was the chief Russian-Ukranian delegate to the U.N. and former secretary-general of the Communist international.

Starobin denied he had ever sent such a letter. He also denied he sent any letter to the editorial board of the Daily Worker, marked to the attention of Budenz, containing such information.

Bombs Used to Repel Hippos in Transvaal

Johannesburg, South Africa, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Bombs and booby traps were used in the eastern Transvaal today to drive off marauding hippopotamuses, which have caused great damage to farms.

A campaign against invading elephants is to start soon.

The bombs and traps have been loaded with reduced charges of explosives to frighten off the animals without injuring them.

Marshall Plan Group's Quota Of Dollars Spurned by Britain

Paris, Aug. 19 (UP)—Britain tonight rejected as "unacceptable" and "unsatisfactory" the amount of dollars allotted her by the Organization of European Economic Cooperation for 1949-1950.

A British spokesman said Sir Edmond Hall-Patch told the council of the OEEC, governing body of the Marshall Plan, "in the frankest terms" that he considers the allotment "unsatisfactory."

The spokesman declined to name the amount which the OEEC tentatively offered to Britain. But informed sources said it was $850,000,000 or $90,000,000 short of her request and $668,000,000 short of her anticipated dollar deficit for the year.

Hall-Patch told the council Britain's request had been given "inadequate technical treatment" and that "some sort of discrimination" had been shown, the spokesman said.

Final action cannot be taken until the United States Congress completes work on the appropriation bill. Tentative allotments have been made on the assumption the bill will carry about $3,600,000,000 for the year 1949-50.

Bruce Gets Peron Badge

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—United States Ambassador James Bruce bade farewell to high government officials today preparatory to leaving Sunday for Washington.

Officially, Bruce, who came here in July, 1947, was going to Washington for consultations, but all believe he is leaving for good.

President Juan D. Peron gave a farewell dinner for the diplomat last night, presented him with an autographed photograph and a Belgian hunting gun and pinned the Peronist "Loyalty Badge" on his coat.

This badge is a private mark of esteem and not an official government decoration. Bruce is known to have opposed privately the acceptance by United States Ambassadors of decorations from the governments to whom they are accredited.

The official press devoted considerable space to the presidential dinner, including photographs of Peron pinning the badge. Democracia captioned its farewell editorial "A great friend of Argentina departs."

Arlington School Board Will Not Hire New Lawyer

Legal assistance required by the Arlington School Board will be supplied in the future by a Commonwealth's attorney, Denman T. Rucker, School Superintendent William A. Early said yesterday.

"We do not need a full-time lawyer," Early said. He stated that no one will be hired to replace former School Board Attorney Frank L. Ball, jr., who submitted a letter of resignation to the board August 10, citing several differences of opinion.

Sale of 2½ million dollars worth of bonds authorized by the School Board and negotiations for sites for a new Hume School building, and for expansion of the Hoffman-Boston are among matters which will be turned over to Rucker.

Store Sales Drop Here for Second Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Dollar sales of Washington department stores for the week ended August 13 declined 15 per cent from the like week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday.

This was the second consecutive weekly drop in the year-to-year comparisons. For the four weeks ended August 13, however, local sales showed a 3 per cent gain over the same 1948 period.

The two weeks' drop was attributed to two factors: hot weather and the new sales tax. Prior to the launching of the tax, local sales had shown sharp increases. Apparently, buyers had stocked up heavily in anticipation of the new levy and during the first two weeks of the tax were not buying in the normal manner. Over the long term, store executives anticipate that the sales tax will have no influence on buying habits.

In the Fifth Federal Reserve District, dollar sales of stores slumped 17 per cent for the latest week and 5 per cent for the four-week period.

The Nation-wide fall in department store sales for the week ended August 13 as reported by the Federal Reserve Board caused some misgivings. Sales were 16 per cent under the comparable week of 1948. Sales so far this year are running 5 per cent under 1948. There were a lot of things blamed —hot weather and lower prices and buyers' caution. The time is near for the customary fall pickup. Merchants are 'anxiously looking for it.

SALES DROP: Safeway stores announced sales in four weeks ended August 13 totaled $88,502,979, a decline of 7.2 per cent from $95,400,427, in the like period last year. Sales in 32 weeks ended the same date were $740,509,191, off 5½ per cent from $783,588,161 last year. There were 2192 stores in operation this year against 2282 last year.

MUTUAL FUNDS: The Mutual Fund method of buying securities is particularly well adapted to the middle income group, according to Harry A. McDonald, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission. This group, he added, unlike the wealthy individuals who formed the small investor class in years gone by, has little or no experience in buying securities. In the Mutual Fund method, he told 350 investment dealers at a conference in New York, individuals delegate their investment decisions to investment companies. These firms, much like banks and insurance companies, are a form of institutionalized savings and, he asserted, "the continued development of institutionalized saving is transforming the investment market as we know it today." From Washington, Bernard J. Nees of Johnston, Lemon & Co. and Victor M. Birely and William C. Birely of Folger, Nolan, Inc., attended the four-day parley which ended Thursday.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Louis F. Watermulder has been named administrate vice president of Lever Brothers . . . H. M. MacDonald has been appointed director of sales and Stanley E. Kress vice rpesident in charge of sales for Crosley Motors, Inc. . . . Peter Robertson is the new assistant vice president in charge of operations for Republic Steel Corp. . . . A. S. Braude has been named assistant sales manager of the Gruen Watch Co.

ODD LOTS: Auto output will hit an all-time production total of 643,000 cars and trucks for August, Ward's Automotive Reports estimates . . . A proposed exchange plan for the Chicago Great Western Railway Co.'s preferred stock was disapproved yesterday by an ICC examiner . . . The Home Loan Bank Board in streamlining its Charter K cut down the wordage from about 6100 to 2200. The revised form is now known as Charter N . . . Kaiser-Frazer Corp. has sold two steel and iron plants in Phoenixville, Pa., to the Barium Steel Corp. for more than two million dollars.

RAIL REVENUES: Association of American Railroads estimated that railroad operating revenues dropped 17.7 per cent last month, compared with July, 1948. The decline in freight revenues was estimated at 18.7 per cent, and the drop in passenger revenues 15 per cent. The estimates were based on advance reports from representative class one lines—those doing one million dollars or more gross business annually.

EARNINGS: Kennecott Copper Corp. reported net income of $23,293,358 or $2.15 a common share for the first six months, against $48,267,406 in the like 1948 period. Other earnings statements:

One on the Aisle—

'Sand' Is Clean, Crisp Horse Film

By Richard L. Coe

AUTHOR WILL JAMES, Producer Robert Bassler, Director Louis King and Twentieth Century-Fox once more have collaborated on the Technicolored story of a horse. "Sand" is the picture, a handsome one, and it's at the Capitol.

How much further this cinemadulation of the horse can go worries me. This time the affection of a stallion for mares is obviously counterpointed by the story of a man's attraction to a girl. The edge of a fabulous abyss nears, I fear, and if the combine of craftsmen keeps up its equine worship we can look forward to some mighty interesting goings-on indeed.

One could be a feature picture from Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," being junket No. 4, about the remarkable Houyhnhnms, the wondrous, civilized horses, and the Yahoos, the brutal human beings. Ever so gradually the studio is drifting toward Swiftian cynicism, and if anyone could get the Gulliver Fourth down to celluloid these are the boys with the technique to do it.

"Sand" presumably refers to the desert area into which the show-horse Jubilee leaps from his burning baggage car. His owner offers a handsome reward, which brings him a hurry call to a pretty young lady's ranch. She has a shrewd old grandfather and a handsome, sulky foreman. Since Jubilee's owner is young, rich and handsome, grandfather wants his human filly to take him seriously. The foreman is a brutal person who's mad for his boss but who finally is redeemed by his respect for a handsome horse.

A Menagerie Poses

What makes such pictures as this—and its forerunners, "Smoky," "Flicka" and "Thunderhead, Son of Flicka"—so appealing is the craftsmanship which has gone into their making. The Colorado setting is superb in "Sand" and Cameraman Charles Clarke's Technicolored photography is stunning. The essential simplicity of ranch life—however unruffled our heroine's hair may always be and however familiarly she speaks of her annual New York visits—is the sort of clean, crisp living that is supra-ideal.

Nor does the camera stop at Jubilee and his lively mares. There is an endearing shot of a cub and its protective mother lion, there are some happy moments with a beaver, a yellow-eyed owl whooos at our Jubilee and a cat peers coyly from a protected recess in a burning boxcar.

Mark Stevens, as Jubilee's owner; Coleen Gray, as the lady boss; Rory Calhoun, as the sullen foreman, and Charley Grapewin, as the girl's grandfather, all are watchable and workmanlike. Calhoun and Stevens have a wing-ding fight and Miss Gray and Stevens stroll in their pajamas through a moonlit patio.

Though it strives with mechanical technique to better "Smoky," "Sand" is too artful to do so. Those who liked "Smoky"—and I am one—will like "Sand," but not nearly so affectionately.

DEAN MURPHY headlines the Capitol stage show and it's good to see him back . . . This personable young Irishman brings a dignity to his impressions of the great and near-great that makes his act unique . . . His mimicry is virtually all local, a range of people from W. C. Fields and Bette Davis to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt . . . He avoids the usual male comic's cheap jibes and pitches his sights on a friendly, sometimes nostalgic, plane . . . That an audience can be won by what seems to be personal integrity is a fine skill . . . Yale's basketball star, Tony Lavelli, is on tap with his accomplished accordion, Patti Page chants throaty songs, including "Money, Marbles and Chalk" and Peggy Taylor, handsomely aided by Bob Clark and Jimmy Lawlor, sails through the adagios with the greatest of ease.

THE CROSS ROADS Theater will have a change of schedule for next week, the Virginia red barn's summer finale . . . Monday through Saturday the Cross Roaders will be busy in a new play by their director, Cecil Willis, who writes of summer theater actors in a comedy he calls "Thank You, Mr. Garrick." . . . For further information call Woodley 5303.

THE TRANS-LUX schedules nine showings today for "Home of the Brave" . . . Today is the last for "The Great Sinner" at the Palace, with "Madame Bovary" opening Sunday . . . This stars Jennifer Jones, Louis Jourdan, Van Heflin and James Mason.

"SAND" 20th Century-Fox release produced by Robert Bassler. Screen play by Martin Berkeley and Jerome Cady from the novel by Will James. Photographed in Technicolor by Charles G. Clarke. Music by Daniele Amfitheatrof. Directed by Louis King. Equine supervision by Jack Lindell. At the Capitol.

Suicide By 'Gas' Fire

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 19 (AP). Jeptha J. Allen, 50, saturated himself with gasoline yesterday, touched a match to his clothing and died a flaming torch.

English Subtitles Adequate

Affectionate Spanish Version Of 'Quixote' Is Adult Delight

APTLY, it is the Spanish filmmakers who have gotten 'round to a movie version of Cervantes' famed classic, "Don Quixote," which arrived yesterday at the Dupont.

It is a delightful picture, rich in mellow humor and so affectionately transcribed to film that its only flaw is length. This, considering the position of the work in literature, is understandable, though it does militate against fullest enjoyment. Pictorially it tells the story clearly, but the English subtitles are adequate for any humps you may encounter.

In "Don Quixote" we have a classic which was a best-seller nearly 350 years ago. One's attitude toward such things is always highly personal, so I may as well admit that as a schoolboy my master's enthusiasm for Cervantes quite escaped me. Backward I may have been, but the mellowed understanding of mankind which I found in the Dupont's picture I simply did not get in schooldays. While this is perhaps a sordid confession, the fact certainly bore on me while watching this picture.

For here you have a man quite daft, ill at ease in his own age, longing to go back to the men and manners of the chivalric books over which he pores night and day through the years. Finally unhinged, he escapes from his understanding family to embark on a series of mad derring-do.

Windmill-Tilting

He fights windmills and sheep. He looks for his fair Lady Dulcinea. An inn to him is a castle, a barber's basin a burnished helmet. An offensive adventure becomes the work of sorcerers. A friendly oaf becomes his squire, Sancho Panza, a man with the wit to rule a brief kingdom with the wisdom of Solomon. And as his adventures close he realizes that "if he like a madman lived, at least he like a wise one died."

As Cervantes wrote it and as his contemporaries of the early seventeenth century read it, the adventures of "Don Quixote de la Mancha" were enjoyable for their frolicking satire of Cervantes' Spain. But so penetrating was the author's depiction of his characters and of their reliance on one another, that what was just a popular story became a great book of the world.

Outstanding, at least in the film, is a compassion for individuals. There are no villainous people here; they may be foolish or pathetic or childishly behaved, but all have a kindliness. Their tender willingness to play the Don's mad little game forms the inspiriting quality that has given such long life to the story.

"DON QUIXOTE," a screen play written and directed by Rafael Gil, based on the Cervants classic, a Cifesa production released through Azteca Films and presented at the Dupont Theater with the following cast:

Don Quixote ..... Rafael Rivelles
Sancho ..... Juan Calvo
Sanson Carrasco ..... Fernando Rey
Barber ..... Manola Moran
Antonia ..... Sara Montiel
Priest ..... Juan Espantaleon
Duke ..... Guillermo Marin
Dorotea ..... Nani Fernandez
Cardenio ..... Jose M. Seoane
Duchess ..... Guillermina Grin
Tolosa ..... Carme De Lucio
First Innkeeper ..... Manuel Requena
Miller ..... Milagros Leal
Second Innkeeper ..... Felix Fernandez
Second Innkeeper's wife ..... Julia Lajos
Don Fernando ..... Eduardo Fajardo
Housekeeper ..... Julia Caba Alba
Luscinda ..... Maruja Asquerino
Majordomo-Duena Florida ..... Arturo Marin

Finely Acted

The Spaniards have filmed this with what must have been maniacal zeal. In 2 hours and 18 minutes they must include most of the Don's adventures. No doubt they were well aware of the cries that might have greeted any individual's "favorite" adventure.

But this very inclusiveness not only wearies one, it blurs some characters which quick re-reading has convinced me were more clearly drawn in the original. The bachelor Sanson is only a puppet in the movie and the adventure with the four lovers gives none of them individuality.

For all this, the acting of Rafael Rivelles as Quixote is a triumph in any language. Spain's leading actor has a part which would have delighted John Barrymore, which must give you some idea of the role's flavor. And Juan Calvo's Sancho Panza is that faithful fellow to the life.

Rafael Gil directed a sumptuous production and also made what seems to be an extraordinarily faithful screen play. R. L. C.

Actor Plans To Restore Family Home

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 19 (AP). Film star Zachary Scott plans to restore the home of his ancestors in Spotsylvania County near here.

The actor said he hoped to start work on the house, Belair, in the next few years and that his family would spend their vacations there.

Scott was here three days to attend a family reunion at Old Aquia Episcopal Church in Stafford County. He visited a number of homes of the Scott family in this vicinity.

The 35-year-old motion picture actor spent several months at Belair in 1935 shortly after he married Elaine Anderson, an actress. They have a 13-year-old daughter, Waverly.

Scott's greatgrandfather, James M. Scott, owned Belair and 33,000 acres before the War between the States. His grandfather, Robert L. Scott, settled in Texas after the war, and his father, now Dr. Zachary Scott, of Austin Tex., attended school conducted at Belair by his aunts.

Legion Plans Ober Law Fight

Baltimore, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Maryland convention of the American Legion today pledged its support to the fight to save the Ober Anti-subversive Law.

The convention approved a recommendation that Legion lawyers join with Attorney General Hall Hammond in a Court of Appeals petition seeking reversal of circuit court judge Joseph Sherbow's decision declaring the law unconstitutional.

The Legion had been instrumental in getting the controversial law drafted and enacted by the recent General Assembly.

The law, which was aimed at Communism and which required loyalty pledges of all public employes including school teachers, was invalidated by Judge Sherbow Monday.

The chairman of the Legion's Un-American Activities Committee, state vice commander Kenneth Hammer, told the convention:

"Your committee does not find itself in accord with, nor persuaded by, the opinion and ruling of the court."

Many resolutions are still in the hopper. Among these are two in favor of the State bonus and one opposed to it.

But the delegates took time off from business affairs tonight to put on one of the traditional Legion parades. Hundreds of legionnaires, auxiliary members, armed forces detachments, groups from other veteran's organizations and various bands marched through Baltimore's business section.

The new State commander will be elected Saturday. The two candidates are John Zebelean, jr., and Hammer, both Baltimore attorneys and veterans of World War II.

Hospital Drive In Arlington Asks $25,000

A three-week drive to raise an initial $25,000 down payment on the Arlington Hospital building will be launched today among business and professional people in Arlington, Fairfax and Falls Church.

Campaign chairman is Arlington real estate man Jack R. Jones.

The present drive is the start of the hospital's campaign to raise the $125,000 needed to purchase the building from the Federal Government.

The 115-bed hospital, located at North Edison and 16th sts., Arlington, was built in 1944 with $661,000 in Lanham Act funds. Cost of replacing the building now would be about one million dollars, according to Hospital Administrator John J. Anderson.

The Government has agreed to accept the $100,000 balance of the purchase price in five annual instalments at 3 per cent interest, according to Anderson.

All funds in the current drive will go toward building purchase, the administrator said, stressing that an earlier mail solicitation has enabled the hospital to clean up all back debts.

Jukebox Newest Weapon In Battle Against VD

The District Health Department yesterday unveiled its newest weapon in its fight against venereal diseases, a "Jukebox Answer Man."

The automatic record player, as garish as its counterparts in Washington bars, it was explained, will be lent to business firms.

Its keyboard will bear the questions most commonly asked health authorities about venereal diseases.

The answers, prepared recordings, will be played back, and for free, said Truman J. Keesey, program director of the District's coming antisyphilis campaign.

Keesey displayed the jukebox and told its purpose to five members of World Health Organization's Syphilis Study Commission.

The group, here on an extended tour of the United States to study venereal disease control measures, ended its five-day visit in the District yeesterday. They include Drs. Juan M. Funes, Guatemala; E. I. Grin, Yugoslavia; Poul V. Marcussen, Denmark; N. Jungalwalla, India, and Sidney Laird, England.

1 in 3 Here Attends Church Regularly

Who goes to church in Greater Washington? Where does he go, and how often?

John Halko, director of the department of research and church planning of the Washington Federation of Churches, is one person in the city who can answer these questions.

For several years his department has made careful and continuing studies of religious activities in the Nation's Capital. These are some of the things which he has found:

One person in every three in greater Washington goes to church regularly, or more than half of the Sundays during the year. Of this third of the city's population, a substantial portion attends church services 40 or more Sundays a year.

Third Go Occasionally

Another third of the population attends occasionally, or between 6 and 25 times a year. These people seem to go mainly when the mood strikes them.

The rest of the population goes to church rarely or never, that is, five or less times a year. This group consists of those who make it to services on Easter and Christmas, and maybe once or twice on Sunday.

Halko has found in his surveys that almost everybody goes to church once in a while and that those who say they never go are a very small portion of the "rarely" group.

These proportions of church goers were found to exist generally in the different sections of the District, Alexandria and Arlington County, Va., and Prince Georges and Montgomery counties in Maryland. Halko counted everybody in his surveys, from infants to old people.

More Visitors Downtown

In a study of more than 200 churches in the area, Halko discovered that on an average Sunday about 45 per cent of the number on the church rolls were present. This group includes visitors.

Downtown and large churches as a rule have a high number of visitors, while neighborhood churches have fewer visitors and more actual members at Sunday services.

When a Washington citizen decides to go to church on Sunday he may choose from more than 1200 churches representing about 80 denominations. Many denominations have only one or two churches here, others have 25 or more.

Since Washington has become a "big city," Halko pointed out, it has taken on the religious aspect of other large cities, with a great influx of churches of the smaller sects. The number of denominations, he said, has more than doubled in the past 25 years.

Seven separate church groups have enrolled memberships of more than 10,000 persons in Greater Washington. The figures given here, it should be noted, are approximate.

175,000 Catholics Here

The largest single group within the population is Roman Catholic. The Archdiocese of Washington recently announced membership of 175,000 baptized persons. This figure includes children as well as adults.

Most Protestant churches consider as members only those persons who have been baptized after reaching the age of about 12. The top five Protestant churches in Greater Washington are:

Methodist—About 80,000.

Baptist—About 49,000 (both Northern and Southern branches included).

Episcopal—About 39,000 communicant members.

Presbyterian—About 27,000 (all Presbyterian groups).

Lutherans—About 18,000 baptized persons (all Lutheran groups).

Total Jewish population of the city, divided into Conservative, Orthodox and Reform groups, has been estimated at about 30,000 persons.

Annual Service Set Sunday for Historic Church

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 19 (AP).—Old St. Bartholomew's Church at nearby Green Hill will be open Sunday for the service that is held there once a year.

The 196-year-old brick structure is better known as the "Old Green Hill Church." Historians say it is one of the Eastern Shore's oldest churches. Its construction date, 1733, is plainly visible in a design of vari-colored bricks on the east end.

In the interior, the polished natural pine box pews, a winecup pulpit and the old brick floor are still intact.

A handsome set of sterling service, given to Stepney Parish by Queen Anne of England, is used in the annual service. Between times, it is kept in a bank vault here.

In the service Sunday, the Rt. Rev. Arthur R. McKinstry, Bishop of Delaware, will deliver the sermon at 11 a. m. The Rev. Allen R. Day of Snow Hill will be the celebrant at Holy Eucharist, assisted by the Rev. J. Randolph Field of Princess Anne.

Choir Service to Honor Late Dr. Marshall

The choir of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, 1301 New York ave. nw., will sing a memorial service for the late Dr. Peter Marshall at 4:30 p. m. Sunday at the Massanetta Springs, Va., Bible Conference, near Harrisonburg.

Dr. Marshall, pastor of New York Avenue Church and former chaplain of the Senate, was one of the guest speakers at the conference at Massanetta Springs for many years. Charles Dana Beaschler, director of music, will conduct the choir.

D. C. to Receive High Anglican Clergymen

A delegation of Anglican clergymen, including an archbishop and nine bishops, will visit Washington early in September.

The clergymen are visiting the United States as part of the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the Book of Common Prayer. During September they will conduct a series of Eucharistic Congresses at different cities in the country.

Included in the group that will visit Washington are:

The Most Rev. John C. H. How, Primus of the Scottish Episcopal Church; the Right Rev. John W. C. Wand, Lord Bishop of London; the Right Rev. Kenneth E. Kirk, Lord Bishop of Oxford; the Right Rev. Harold W. Bradfield, Lord Bishop of Bath and Wells; the Right Rev. Robert McNeil Boyd, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, representing the Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of All Ireland; the Right Rev. Fabian M. E. Jackson, Bishop of Trinidad.

The Right Rev. William James Hughes, Bishop of Barbados; the Right Rev. Douglas John Wilson, Bishop of British Honduras; the Right Rev. John Jagos, Bishop of Bermuda; the Right Rev. Charles Francis Boynton, Bishop of Puerto Rico; the Rev. Harold Riley, secretary of the English Church Union, and the Rev. C. Edwyn Young, vicar of St. Silas' Church, London.

The clergymen will arrive in Washington on September 9, and will stay at the College of Preachers at the Washington Cathedral. On Sunday, September 11, seven of them will participate in church services here.

After their visit here the churchmen will visit Williamsburg and Jamestown, Va., for special services on the spot where the prayer book was first used on the East Coast of North America.

On Thursday the churchmen will conduct a eucharistic congress at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

The Rev. Albert J. duBois, rector of Ascension and St. Agnes Episcopal Church, 1215 Massachusetts ave. nw., is general chairman of the National Congress Committee of the American Church Union and is making arrangements for the visit of the churchmen in the United States.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Two Washington ministers will return to their pulpits Sunday after summer trips abroad.

Dr. J. Warren Hastings, pastor of National City Christian Church, Thomas circle, has returned from a mission to chaplains of the Army, Navy and Air Force in Hawaii, Guam and Japan. He will preach 10:50 a.m. on "Now Is The Hour."

Hastings

Fowler

Dr. Earl Franklin Fowler, pastor of Sixth Presbyterian Church, 16th and Kennedy sts. nw., has been visiting in Europe and Palestine since early July. He will preach on "The Lord We Love" at 11 a. m.

Federal aid to education will be discussed by Representative Tom Steed (D., Tex.) at the 10 a. m. meeting of the Forum in the community house of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 935 K st. nw.

An "All States Gospel Singing Convention" will take place at 2:15 p. m. at Centennial Baptist Church, 7th and I sts. nw. The program will feature selections by the National Gospel Quartet, the Capital Evangelaires, the Italian Gospel Trio, congregational singing and instrumental selections.

The Rev. Albert G. Edwards, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Harrisonburg, Va., will speak at sunset vespers at 6:20 p. m. (EST) at the Luray (Va.) Singing Tower. The service is sponsored by the Luray Ministerial Association.

World Situation Not Irretrievable, Bishop Declares

Massanetta Springs, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—Methodist Bishop Arthur J. Moore of Atlanta said today it is high time for the church to quit asking questions and to make "some great affirmations."

He spoke on "the mood of the church" at the interdenominational Bible conference here.

Bishop Moore said the Church must tell men that however bad the world situation may be, it is not irretrievable; that Christ is far ahead of us upon the broken roads of the world's life, working his miracle of release and renewal.

A large reservation has been received for Saturday, and Sunday sessions of the conference. A highlight of Sunday's program will be a concert at 3:30 p. m. by the 105-voice choir of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington, in memory of the late Dr. Peter Marshall, a pastor of the church.

School Patrol Aspirants Leave Here Monday

About 50 officer candidates for the Arlington County's School Safety Patrol will leave at 8 a. m. Monday for the tenth annual School Safety Patrol Officers' Training Program at Camp Grimm, Kilmarnock, Va.

The Washington Post yesterday incorrectly stated the youngsters would leave then.

Catholics Open Adult Church SchoolMonday

Adult religious education will be stressed at a six-day summer school of Catholic Action, opening Monday at Georgetown University.

Lectures, workshops, demonstrations and forums will be held from 9:15 a. m. to 4:15 p. m. Monday through Friday.

Sponsored by the central office of the Sodality of Our Lady in St. Louis, sessions of the traveling summer school have already been held in St. Louis, Denver, Spokane, San Antonio, Detroit and New York.

The Sodality of Our Lady, founded in Rome, was established in the United States at Georgetown University in 1810. Today there are more than 15,000 units of the organization in parishes, schools and colleges in the country.

Summer schools to train Catholics, particularly the laity, in the work of the church have been conducted since 1931 and have had a total registration of more than 100,000.

Registration for this year's school in Washington will follow mass at 8:30 a. m. Monday in Dahlgren Chapel. Those attending evening sessions will register before the first night class Monday.

Among the courses to be offered will be: Cana conferences, human relationships, various phases of Sodality work, Our Lady of Fatima, mental prayer, the Christian in action, how to convert non-Catholics, can Communists win America?, parliamentary law, marriage and courtship, and teaching religion.

Youth to Hear Church Needs Of Europe

Work and needs of the church in Europe will be discussed at 6:30 p. m. Sunday in the garden of Sidwell Friends School, 3901 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Speakers at the meeting will be Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Evensen, who have recently returned from an eight-week tour of European work camps and religious "cell groups."

The meeting is the last in a series sponsored during the summer by the Washington Federation of Christian Youth on the theme "The Church in Our Modern Society." In case of rain it will be held at Cleveland Park Congregational Church, 3400 Lowell st. nw.

Mr. and Mrs. Evensen have traveled throughtout the world assisting in the organization of the "cell groups," small organizations which meet at regular intervals for prayer, meditation, study and discussion.

Evensen is the founder and editor of "Life Stream," a quarterly magazine about the activities of these groups. His wife, formerly Charlotte Weaver of Washington, is associate editor of the magazine.

The worship service will be conducted by Charles Smith, former president of the Westminster Fellowship of Washington.

Lutherans Adopt Bible Study Plan

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—The fifty-fourth anniversary convention of the Luther League of America wound up its final session tonight with an impressive record for the week behind it.

The convention, which drew a record-breaking attendance of 1200 young Lutherans, took the following actions:

(1) Put into gear "operation spiritual," a program designed to give increased emphasis to group Bible study and prayer.

(2) Adopted a new missionary project. In the next two years they will contribute $25,000 toward a church in Hawaii.

(3) Studied a proposed new constitution and voted to leave its final adoption until 1951.

(4) Finished election of officers and executive committee members.

An invitation to hold the 1951 convention at the University of Iowa was read to the conference and referred to the executive committee for action.

Asked to Serve Again

The executive committee of the league invited the Rev. Joseph W. Frease, executive secretary, to serve another five years but the minister said tonight he has not decided whether he will accept the appointment. His present term expires December 31.

Spokesmen said the executive committee was unanimous in asking the minister to serve another five-year term. His intention to resign was announced at the league convention. His headquarters are in Philadelphia.

Roy Hendrickson, Zelienople, Pa., and other new league officers were installed at a candlelight service tonight at First Baptist Church instead of Hotel Roanoke, the convention headquarters.

Dr. Fry Is Speaker

The final service was transferred to the big church, which seats 1400, to accommodate visitors wanting to hear the address of Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the United Lutheran Church in America.

The final results of balloting on executive committee members was announced today.

Committeemen elected for four-year terms were the Rev. Harold F. Parks, Columbia, S. C.; George Billman, Wadsworth, Ohio; Edna Wagner, Baltimore, and Luther Dehnel, Minneapolis. Those elected for two-year terms were Eugene Geiger, Center Square, Pa.; Clarence Neun, Buffalo, N. Y.; the Rev. W. F. Most, Omaha, Nebr.; and Eleanor Guderian, Louisville, Ky.

Holy Virgin's Assumption To Be Dogma

Vatican City, Aug. 19. (AP)—A high Vatican source today said Pope Pius XII will proclaim as dogma the assumption of the Blessed Virgin.

The proclamation probably will take place during the 1950 holy year, the source said. Catholic doctrine says that the mother of Jesus Christ was taken bodily into Heaven. By proclaiming this as dogma, the Roman Catholic Church makes disbelief in such doctrine a heresy.

The source said an overwhelming majority of the bishops of the church approve such a proclamation. The approval came in reply to a circular letter sent to bishops by the pontiff May 1, 1946.

Dennis Named Policeman in Hyattsville

Silas E. Dennis, Jr., 28, of Greenbelt, last night was named the eighth member of the Hyattsville city police force, ending a dispute which had created considerable controversy in the community.

His appointment was approved by a 6-to-1 vote at a special meeting of the city council. It was the shortest council meeting on record—only 15 minutes.

Councilman Thomas Arnold, chairman of the council's police committee, introduced the motion calling for Dennis' appointment at $2600 a year. Acting Mayor H. Wilson Spicknall said he wanted a roll call vote so he could register a "no" vote.

Spicknall said his "no" vote was not to be considered a reflection on Dennis. He said he was voting "no" because he did not believe the city could afford another policeman.

Appointment of Dennis was blocked at a council meeting last Monday night. Councilman Hiram L. Lawrence at that time said he had voted with the rest of the police committee to recommend the appointment. Upon reconsideration, he said, he had decided it would be wiser to obtain more information, specifically to find out if the Prince Georges County police could not furnish added police protection.

The city of Hyattsville pays the county $20,000 a year as its contribution to the county police force.

However, at a meeting of the police committee Thursday night Maj. Ralph Brown, superintendent of the county police, said the county could not furnish additional police protection to Hyattsville.

Dennis, a Marine veteran with 22 months experience as a policeman at the University of Maryland, will report for duty August 26.

Leg Work Done In Helping End Flat Feet in U. S.

Chicago, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—The National Association of Chiropodists tonight reported that foot doctors at last are solving the problem of America's flat-footed millions.

Dr. William J. Stickel, executive secretary, told the association's thirty-seventh annual convention that:

"It has now been definitely established that a child achieves a normal arch contour by 5.

"If the arch contour of a child of 5 is abnormal, then the child is a chronic flat-foot and treatment must be started at once."

He said treatment with straightening methods and devices, ranges from one to five years.

Dr. Etchison to Speak

Dr. Page Etchison, secretary of the American Bible Society in the National Capital area, will speak at 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. Sunday at Garden Memorial Presbyterian Church, 1718 Minnesota ave. se.

and purchase of them by the library.

Dr. Evans said there was no stipulation attached to the gift of funds from which the prints are purchased that would require designation of winners and the library would continue to purchase prints.

The Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge medals have been purchased by Mrs. Coolidge, and those on hand will be returned, Dr. Evans said, as well as funds received from the Bollingen Foundation, established by Paul Mellon, for what was to have been an annual poetry award.

Senator Green said his Senate-House committee did not discuss the merit of the award to Pound and that there would be no investigation.

"We decided the policy of the library will be to sponsor no prizes or rewards of any kind," Green said. "I think it is bad policy for the Government to give prizes and rewards, especially in matters of taste."

An investigation of the award had been demanded by Representative Javits (R., N. Y.), who had hinted that there might be "fascist sympathies" in the Fellows in American Letters of the Library of Congress. The Fellows, who include poet T. S. Eliot in their distinguished ranks, designated Pound's "Pisan Cantos" as the best book of poetry published in 1948—the qualification for the award.

of God, I command thee to obey in all these things nor ever again in any manner to offend this creature of God, or those who are here or any of their possessions."

And again:

"Depart therefore, in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, give place to the Holy Spirit through this sign of the Holy Cross of Jesus Christ our Lord who with the Father and the same Holy Spirit lives and reigns God and forever. Amen."

At these points, the boy would break into the fury of profanity and screaming and the astounding Latin phrases.

Quiet at Last Performance

But finally, at the last performance of the ritual, the boy was quiet.

What "name, the day and the hour of your exit, together with some sign" was given the St. Louis Jesuit priest by the evil spirit the priest here said he did not know.

But since then, it was said, all manifestations of the affliction—such as the strange moving of the bed across the room, and another in which the boy's family said a picture had suddenly jutted out from the wall in his presence—have ceased.

During one manifestation that occurred in the period in which the ritual was being performed the boy reported that he had seen a vision of St. Michael casting out the devil.

The successful exorcism came after the boy had been taken into the Catholic Church, with the consent of his non-Catholic parents, and had received religious instruction.

The case of "the haunted boy" excited much comment here after it was first reported to the parapsychology society this month.

The father of the afflicted boy was reported to be a mechanic, but the name and other details of the family were withheld at their request.

It was early this year that members of the boy's family went to their minister and reported strange goings-on in their Mount Rainier house since January 18.

The minister visited the boy's home and witnessed some of the manifestations.

But though they seemed to the naked eye unexplainable—such as the scratchings from the area of the wall in the boy's presence—there was always the suggestion, he said, that in some way the noises may have been made by the boy himself.

Retaining his skepticism in the matter, the minister then had the boy stay a night—February 17—in his own home.

It was there, before his own eyes, he said, that the two manifestations that he felt were beyond all natural explanation took place.

In one of these the boy's pallet moved across the floor while his hands were outside the cover and his body rigid.

Heavy Chair Falls Over

In the other the heavy chair, with the boy immobile in it, tilted and fell over to the floor before the minister's amazed eyes, he said. The minister tried to overturn the chair while sitting in it himself and was unable to do so.

The case involved such reactions as neighbors of the boy's family sprinkling water around the family's house.

Some of the Mount Rainier neighbors' skepticism was startlingly resolved, it was reported, when they first laughed it off, invited the boy and his mother to spend a night in their own "unhaunted" homes, only to have some of the manifestations—such as the violent, apparently involuntary shakings of the boy's bed—happen before their eyes.

The Catholic Church has two rituals of exorcism—the private, comparatively simple from the ritualistic standpoint, and the solemn. The latter can be used only with the permission of the archbishop.

It was this solemn ritual that was performed on the Mount Rainier boy.

Use of the ritual is rare in the western Christian world, as are reported cases of diabolical possession. Never is permission to employ the ritual granted except where an afflicted person's case has been fully documented as being a bona fide one.

Father Shot After Dispute Over Children

Henry King, 26, was rushed to Casualty Hospital in critical condition last night after he had been shot in Hillside, Md.

Prince Georges County police charged King's stepfather-in-law, Hasting J. Shiflette, 57, with assault with intent to kill with a dangerous and deadly weapon.

King and Shiflette both live at 850 52d ave., Hillside. According to County Police Pvts. Charles H. Nalley and George Roland, King's wife is being treated for a nervous disorder at an institution near Baltimore and Mrs. Shiflette has been caring for the two small King children. Police said they were told that King wanted to take out the children last night shortly before 10:30 p. m. but Mrs. Shiflette objected and an argument followed.

'48 Population Hits 1,402,000

from the suburban movement, with a 92 per cent population increase. The city of Alexandria gained 24,000, or about 74 per cent.

Prince Georges County increased by some 50,000, or 56 per cent, while Montgomery County gained about 44,000, or 53 per cent.

The population estimates were based on figures from the last census, records of births and deaths, military personnel, resident listings in the city directory, and domestic consumers of gas and electricity.

The 17th decennial census to be conducted in April, 1950, will provide similar figures based on a complete count of the population.

Man, 96, Outlives Insurance Policy And Is Paid Off

Minneapolis, Aug. 19 (U.P.)—At noon today, 96-year-old Nels J. Agneberg, of Minneapolis, beat the insurance company at its own game.

With the odds against him 100,000 to 7, Agneberg outlived life expectancy tables on which insurance men write policies. The Mutual Life Insurance Co. handed Agneberg a check for $2327, representing the face value of a policy taken out 45 years ago, plus accrued dividends.

Agneberg was 51 when he took out the policy for $2000. At that time, insurance tables gambled he would die in 20.2 years.

The policy was paid up after 20 years. But it was held in force until Agneberg's ninety-sixth year.

Insurance firms will not hold a policy on a person beyond 96 years of age. Life expectancy tables end at that point.

Loneliness Contributes to Illegitimacy in D. C.

There is too much fright at the way in which world affairs are trending. It breeds a live for today, tomorrow may not come philosophy.

This has been reflected in Washington in a rising illegitimacy rate, which last year reached 9.4 per 100 live births, or nearly one illegitimate birth in every 10 recorded births. In 1943 this rate was 6.9 per 100 live births.

Miss A. Patricia Morss, chief of the license and child placing agency of the Public Welfare Department, estimates that of the total number of unwed mothers in a given year, about 50 per cent get some type of service from the social agencies which are designed to help them. Only about 10 per cent of these U. Ms. go to maternity homes.

Many Get Family Help

Of the remaining half who ask no social help, U. Ms. probably use family help through pregnancy, or finance their own hospitalization without any counseling service.

Miss Morss pointed out that in about half the cases of illegitimate births, the child is placed for adoption. The remainder either are kept by one or both parents, or placed in a family situation by the mother, who legally may make her own adoption placement if she wishes.

Most social workers agree that among the U.Ms. whose cases come to social agencies, promiscuity is the exception rather than the rule.

An extra-marital relationship may have more meaning to the girl than to the man, however. And if it ends in pregnancy for the woman, she may come out of the experience so embittered that at some future time she might become promiscuous in her relations with men.

That is why social workers feel it is of the utmost importance for the girl to come to a social agency for help. There, and with individual treatment, she can see for herself what the lack in her social adjustment has been. When the child is born, regardless of whether she keeps it or not, her chances of making a normal adjustment have been enhanced.

Promiscuity Studied

A psychiatric study on causes and treatment of promiscuity among both men and women, conducted during a recent four year period in San Francisco, showed that basic motivation for promiscuity most frequently is to be found in personality difficulties.

Promiscuity among women was found generally to be an unsuccessful attempt to use sexual experience to solve other problems.

This study, conducted under joint auspices of the U. S. Public Health Service and the California State and San Francisco health departments, showed that few of the women patients studied had sex relations as frequently as is customary in an average marriage; that the promiscuity characteristic was based on change or partners rather than larger number of sexual experiences.

Among men patients, it was found that in addition to personality difficulties, promiscuity sprang from an inability to associate sex with love.

In dealing with the problems of the unwed mother today, social workers long since have abandoned the "fallen woman" approach. There is no undue emphasis on the sin which has been committed.

The prevailing philosophy is that if the cause for a U. Ms. action is found, the chances are that remedial measures can be taken to prevent a recurrence of the action. If the U. M. is shown the way to a normal adjustment to life, religious and social influences will take their proper place in the pattern of that life, without giving the U. M. such a sense of shame that she will feel "inferior" to others.

In this series of stories on the problems of the unwed mother, The Washington Post has obtained case histories to illustrate in general a variety of situations which may cause unwed motherhood.

Actual Cases

These case histories have been actual, but in each instance, through common agreement with the social worker and the reporter, the history has been varied from the truth in enough detail to guard the U. M. against disclosure of her case to the point where it might be recognized by friends or relatives.

In the preparation of these stories, The Washington Post is particularly indebted to the following social agency officials:

Mrs. Annette N. Shuman, director, social service department, Florence Crittenton Home; Mrs. Mildred Kilinski, director, Family Service Association; Mrs. Lois Parsons, social service director, House of Mercy; Miss Florence Murray and Miss Marita Redington, Catholic Charities; Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Metropolitan Police Woman's Bureau; Miss Helaine Todd, Miss Lois McVey and Miss A. Patricia Morss, of the D. C. Department of Public Welfare.

Tribe Shuts Out Chisox 6th Time, 2-0

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP).—Bob Kennedy's sixth home run of the season highlighted Cleveland's 2-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox tonight before 38,336 persons.

The game marked the sixth successive shutout involving the White Sox as Randy Gumpert surrendered the first earned runs by Chicago pitchers in 43 innings.

Mike Garcia, who started this shutout skein by blanking the White Sox in the second game of last Sunday's double-header in Cleveland, pitched seven and one-third innings to earn his eleventh victory and third over Chicago.

Although Kennedy's homer—a liner into the left field lower pavilion—was enough to cement the decision, the Tribe added another run. It was the result of Garcia's double and Dale Mitchell's seventh inning single.

Henrich Bats Yankees to 7-4 Victory Over Macks

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Tommy Henrich singled in two runs in the sixth inning to snap a 4-4 deadlock, then added his 22nd home run in the eighth to lead the New York Yankees to 7-4 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics tonight.

The triumph enabled the Yanks to retain their four game margin over the runner-up Boston Red Sox.

Spectacular fielding plays thrilled the 57,281 fans who watched the Yanks take the opener of the three-game series. Cliff Mapes took an almost certain home run away from Ferrin Fain in front of the rightfield barrier in the seventh.

Third Baseman Bill Johnson of the Yanks and Outfielder Elmer Valo of the Athletics also contributed fielding gems.

After the Mackmen went in front with a three-run splurge that drove Bob Porterfield out of the box in the third, the Yankees tied the score in their half. Elmer Valo made a pair of errors on Billy Johnson's second hit which permitted Cliff Mapes and Henrich to score.

The Yankees went in front in the fourth only to have Sam Chapman tie it up in the sixth with his seventeenth homer. Alex Kellner was driven out in the sixth as the Yankees scored twice.

Porterfield Hurts Arm Third Time

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—For the third time this season, Bob Porterfield, New York Yankee pitcher, injured his right arm, near the elbow, early in tonight's game with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Porterfield retired to have his wing packed in ice, after Nelson Fox drove him from the mound with a double in the second inning.

HONORS FOR CONNIE MACK—Baseball's 86-year-old patriarch, Connie Mack, holds scroll of distinguished service bestowed upon him by New York City as he is welcomed at City Hall yesterday by Mayor William O'Dwyer. Kinder Has 15th Win; Nats Beaten 9th in Row

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Rookie Dick Weik, who pitched only two innings and lost two games to the Boston Red Sox last weekend, continued to be beaten by the same Red Sox last night.

It was 6-0 this time and once again the Nats' young righthander didn't take long to get licked—it took 1 1/3 innings.

The Bostonians plowed into him for three runs in the first inning, chased him in the second after he retired only one man and so dealt the Nats their ninth straight whipping.

Staked to this early command, Ellis Kinder simply waltzed to his fifteenth success of the season, doing it on a three-hit yield.

Weik's ninth defeat and his eighth in a row was patterned along the same lines of his previous failures—wildness. He walked two in the first inning and both walks soon became runs.

He opened the second by issuing his third pass, which also became a run, but before he had an opportunity to become more charitable, was excused for the evening.

Gonzales Pretty Hot

Lloyd Hittle, Enrique Gonzales and Dick Welteroth completed the Nats pitching parade with only Gonzales doing anything to warrant a cheer from the 15,323 customers.

The slim Cuban righthander who speaks no English, continued to sparkle. He gave up only one hit in pitching five scoreless innings, quite a performance for an operator fresh up from a class B league.

Gonzales' stout efforts were wasted, however, as the Nats couldn't even come close to prying a run out of Kinder. They only got one runner as far as third base and that daring individual, Sherry Robertson, had to steal the base to advance himself that far.

Only five of the Nats reached base at all against the 35-year-old Kinder. Buddy Lewis rapped out two singles, Sam Mele got the third hit and Robertson and Gil Coan got on with walks. That was the Washington offense.

Six Hits, All Singles

Boston made only six hits, all singles, but those were ample in view of Weik's inability to get the ball over the plate.

When the Red Sox last saw Weik—in Boston over the weekend—he was frittering away his chance of winning in two games with wildness and when they got a quick gander at him last night, he was up to his same old tricks.

He walked Dom DiMaggio and Al Zarilla to launch proceedings and Ted Williams' long single knocked in DiMaggio. Zarilla scored to make it 2-0 as same Dente tossed out Vern Stephens. Bobby Doerr rapped out a single to register Williams and give the Sox their 3-0 first-inning bulge.

Merrill Combs opened the second inning for the Sox the same way DiMaggio launched the first—with a walk. As a change of pace, Weik fanned Kinder, but he regained his form and walked DiMaggio, also walking himself out of the game.

Hittle's first act was to pitch a

300,000 Honor Mack In Broadway Parade

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Cornelius McGillicudy, baseball's Mr. Mack, received today the cheers of 300,000 persons in an official, noisy welcome from New York City.

Actually, he only came to town to try to beat the American League-leading New York Yankees, but everyone acted as if he had accomplished a feat of mighty heroism. In a way he had. He has been in baseball 66 years.

"It is my real intention to manage the Philadelphia team in 1950, which will be my fiftieth year as manager of the club," he said.

Mayor William E. O'Dwyer, in traditional ceremonies on the steps of City Hall, gave the tall, stringy 86-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics a distinguished service certificate which proclaimed that "Connie Mack's dignity and modesty have been an inspiration to his teams and to his countrymen."

It was a regular New York City welcome in sunny baseball weather—a ticker-tape parade up Broadway with sirens bravely sounding, two brass bands playing different tunes at the same time, the Police Glee Club singing, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," hundreds of youngsters carrying bats, and cheers from thousands in City Hall Park.

The ceremonies were the start of three days of official tribute by New York's millions. Tomorrow will be ladies' day at Yankee Stadium, and Sunday, before the game between the Athletics and the Yankees, Mack will receive a plaque and gifts and watch his stars of yesteryear play two innings against former Yankee greats.

Mr. Mack's speech was brief. He stood up straight and trim in a blue suit with natty blue and white tie, and typical high white collar, and spoke in a resonant, firm voice punctuating his words with frequent "ahs."

"I can't find ways to express my appreciation to the fans who have come out today to see the old man of baseball," he said.

Then he wound up by lifting his hands and saying "many thanks to you."

Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich and all the Yankee stars on the platform led the cheers.

Bums Win, Tie for Lead; Bucs Whip Cards, 8-2

Boston, Aug. 19 (AP).—A lusty double to the base of the wall in left center by Duke Snider tonight scored two teammates with the winning runs as the Brooklyn Dodgers overcame the Boston Braves 6-4 in 12 innings. A crowd of 25,720 witnessed the victory of the Brooks which put them into a tie with the St. Louis Cardinals for first place in the National League.

Lefty Joe Hatten had the Braves shut out on three singles until the ninth when the Braves erupted for four runs to tie the score, driving out Hatten and Jack Banta in the process.

Pee Wee Reese began the Dodgers' third extra session by lining a single into center. He continued to second as the ball bounced high and glanced off Jim Russell's glove for an error.

Marv Rackley, who got five hits in five times at bat, then lashed another single into right field, Reese going to third.

Snider Comes Through

Snider then walloped his game-winning double squarely between the fielders. Bill Voiselle, fifth Boston hurler came in to quiet the Dodgers, too late for Boston.

Philadelphia, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies gained their first triumph over Dave Koslo since he entered the major leagues in 1942 as they defeated the New York Giants, 7-1, tonight behind the six-hit pitching of Robin Roberts.

The Phils, after taking an early lead, drove Koslo from the mound with three runs in the sixth for their first win over the southpaw after 10 setbacks. Richie Ashburn led the 13-hit attack with four safeties.

Browns Top Tigers, 4-3, Then Lose, 4-2

St. Louis, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns divided a twilight-doubleheader tonight, the Browns winning, 4 to 3, on Dick Kokos' three-run homer and then dropping a 4-to-2 decision to Hal Newhouser. The second contest was called after six innings because of rain.

Kokos accounted for all the Browns' runs in the twilight affair. He doubled a run home in the first and his twentieth circuit clout came in the eighth to ice the game and spoil a good pitching job by Art Houtteman. Cliff Fannin was the winner.

The Tigers outhit the Browns, 15 to 6, but wasted many opportunities.

The Tigers scored four runs in the first inning of the game after Piece, a two-run single by Hoot Evers and a two-run triple by Johnny Lipon being the big blows.

Johnny Groth, young Tiger outfielder, suffered a fractured right wrist when he collided with Johnny Sullivan in a play at first base in the eighth inning of the first game. He was taken to St. John's Hospital where it was reported he would probably be out of action for three weeks.

Jackie Robinson Tells His Story

Jackie Robinson, one of the finest players in the major leagues, has written his own story.

As Robinson says, it isn't the story of Jackie Robinson the ball player. Rather it is the story of Jackie Robinson the human being.

It begins Sunday in the sports section of The Washington Post, and will run daily in 10 installments.

Louise Brough, Mrs. DuPont Reach Finals

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 19 (AP).—Defending champions Louise Brough of Los Angeles and Mrs. Margaret Osborne DuPont of Wilmington, Del., became national doubles tennis finalists for the eighth straight year today at Longwood.

Those outstanding court performers raced through unseeded Dorothy Head of Almeda, Calif., and Betty Rosenquest of South Orange, N. J., 6—1, 6—1, to be the first to enter the final round.

As a result, they will be able to sit out tomorrow's program, which includes a semifinal match between Mrs. Patricia Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., and Gertrude (Gussie) Moran of Los Angeles, and Doris Hart of Miami and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, the second and third seeded dems.

The Australian Davis Cup stars, lefthanded Jack Bromwich and Billy Sidwell, used their effective overhead tactics to defeat South Africans Eric Sturgess and Eustace Fannin, 6—2, 6—4, 2—6, 8—6, in a men's quarter-finals engagement.

The Australian pair shared a semifinal bracket with Wimbledon victors Pancho Gonzales, the national singles titlist, and the veteran Frankie Parker, who gave impressive demonstrations avenging a Newport Casino setback by defeating Jim Brink of Seattle

Mangrum And Ferrier Tie Harrison

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 19 (AP)—Big E. J. (Dutch) Harrison ran into putter trouble today and dropped into a three-way tie with Lloyd Mangrum and Jim Ferrier at 133 for the lead in the Grand Rapids Open Golf tournament.

Harrison had three three-putt greens that kept him from retaining the one-stroke lead he took on the opening day. His score card showed 65-68—133 Harrison's most disastrous hole was the 18th where he was on the green to try for an eagle. His first putt was strong and it took two more for him to hole out.

Ferrier, the big San Franciscan, also had a cold putter as he had seven two-putt greens on the back nine, missing a couple of real short ones. He finished with a 66-67—133.

Mangrum of Chicago shot a 66—six under par—to make up the two-stroke lead that Harrison held over him after yesterday's 67 round.

Ed Furgol and Al Smith each shot 136—three strokes behind the leaders. Furgol, of Royal Oak, Mich., turned the trick by duplicating Mangrum's 33's, the best round of the day, and Smith, of Winston-Salem, N. C., came up with a 67 to add to yesterday's 69.

Bunched one stroke behind at 140 were four players—Marty Furgol, North Hollywood, Calif., with a 70; Otto Greiner, Baltimore, 72; Glen Teal, Detroit, 69, and old master Lawson Little, of Monterey, Calif., 72.

Wilson in Tie For Golf Lead

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 19 (AP).—Consistency paid off for an Air Corps colonel and an Army sergeant today as the Inter-Service Links Tournament at Maxwell Field developed into a three-way fight for the lead.

Col. Jim Wilson of Washington, D. C., and Sergt. Jack Laxton of Brownswood, Tex., both carded a 71, their third consecutive subpar round, to tie the Air Force's defending champion, Capt. Fred Mosely of Portsmouth, Va., for the lead with a 54-hole total of 212, 4 under par. Mosley had a 74 today.

At Bel Air

DEAR FOLKS:

Like other tracks on the circuit, BEL AIR is slightly behind last year in wagering totals. However, crowds have been larger than 1948. Stewards announced that the suspension of Jockey Charlie Richmond has been extended until September 11. Richmond grabbed the saddle cloth of a rival at Cumberland. Apprentice Richard Lawless has lost one of his apprentice allowances, having ridden 20 winners. Instead of seven pounds he now gets five pounds until he rides 40 winners or one year from the date of his first success. If Jockey Johnny Tammaro had his way the weather would be hot every day. Johnny, who weighs 140 pounds when loafing during the winter, can keep light during the torrid days but the recent cool spell forced him on a strict diet.—BILL.

Blue Egret's Stretch Drive Falls Short

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 19—Justin Funkhouser's Potato Cake, a daughter of Sunday Supper, brought home the bacon for the favorite players today.

The three-year-old filly, junior member of a field of seven, did it the hard way, surviving a tight photo finish to take the decision from E. L. Miller's Blue Egret. Third money went to W. F. Gebhardt's Farmer's Girl.

Ridden by Jockey Carty Meyerhoffer, Washington boy, Potato Cake was clocked in 1:51 2-5 for the mile and 70 yards over a fast track and under bright skies. Backers of the filly who lost her two previous races in photo finishes collected a $4.20 mutuel.

Potato Cake Trails

Potato Cake trailed in the early stages while Town Camp, Farmer's Girl and Blue Egret took turns setting the pace. Meyerhoffer brought Potato Cake to the outside to make his move.

Entering the stretch, Potato Cake swept past the front runners and seemed on the way to a rather handy victory. However, Blue Egret appeared to gather momentum and charged into the wire, just missing taking the decision. Not more than a wide lip separated the pair on the negative.

The day's steeplechase proved a romp for Mrs. C. E. Adams' Uranium II, ridden by Jockey A. O. Brown. The 6-year-old gelding took charge early and coasted home ahead of Mrs. S. B. Merryman's Makorbreak.

Bright Point Third

Third position went to Mrs. W. D. Thomas' Bright Point. The winner paid $8.40 and was clocked in 4:23 3/5 for the approximately two miles.

Daily double stock, in the lower brackets for two days, finally showed monetary improvement. There was a $74.60 pay-off on the combination of 9 and 6. Miss Nelli Vollmer's My Nell won the first race at $5.60 while handled by Jockey S. Austin. P. Wilhovsky's Welaunie accounted for the second at $13.80 with Jockey J. Baird up.

Baltimore's Ralph Beach Six Under Par Winning PGA Cup

Baltimore, Aug. 19 (AP).—Ralph Beach, Suburban Club of Baltimore pro, carded a six-under-par 140 today to win the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association championship at Woodholme Country Club.

Beach scored a one-stroke victory over Walter Romans of the Baltimore Country Club. Romans was the halfway leader with a 68 but he slipped to 73 in the afternoon 18-hole round for a 141 total.

Beach had a 71 for the morning round and added a four-under-par 69 in the afternoon session. On the 360-yard par-4 seventh hole of the afternoon session, the Suburban pro belted his second shot into the cup on the fly from 100 yards out for an eagle two.

Tied for third with 143s were Andy Gibson, the defending champion from the Country Club of Maryland, and John O'Donnell of Norfolk, Va.

Steel Man Blasts Fact-Finding Board

The Man Who . . .

is ill-disposed

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—In the blunt language of the shop where he got his start, the head of one of the Nation's big steel firms today called the bargaining table and the picket line the place to fight out union wage demands.

"There are some things worse than strikes," a presidential fact-finding board was told by C. M. White, president of Republic Steel Corp.

"I feel strongly," he said, "that a board of this kind has no place in our peacetime economy."

In words as hard as the product he makes, White said labor and industry, when they tangle over wages and other contract demands, have "got to fight the thing out."

"That's the way this thing should work. It is a hell of a good way to work it," he added.

Strongest Criticism

His address was the strongest of many industry criticisms of the three-man fact-finding board appointed by President Truman to avert a national steel strike.

The CIO United Steelworkers are arguing before the board for wage, pension and insurance demands they estimate will cost 30 cents an hour per man. The steel industry is replying that it cannot meet these demands, which it says will cost from 40 to 73 1-2 cents an hour instead of 30 cents.

The board has until August 30 to make its recommendations to President Truman.

White's strongest words came as he let his mind wander back 36 years to the day he himself started at the bottom in the steel mills.

He's Been in Strikes

"We don't like strikes," he told the board, "and they are expensive and bad. But there are some things worse than strikes.

"I've been on the picket line a hell of a lot. I have been knocked down—from behind, incidentally. So I know what it is, and they are tough things.

"But if that is the way it has to be worked out, why—every strike comes to an end. Everybody gets a lot of things off their chests and they say a lot of dirty things. And they seem awfully good after it is all over and they are back at work.

White's language was just as tough when he attacked figures presented by union economists in support of demands.

"That's the result of fooling with figures," he said. "As a practical operating guy I'd like to say that if anyone made a report like that to me, he'd be canned."

Philip Murray, president of the union, interrupted to say:

"Republic has the faculty of knowing how to can. We'll admit that."

ITU Reaffirms Stand Against Non-Red Oath

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 19 (AP).—The International Typographical Union today refused to order its officers to sign non-Communist affidavits.

In one of the final actions of the ninety-first annual convention, delegates defeated a resolution to require the ITU leaders to file the affidavits within 60 days. This reaffirmed the union's policy as voiced at last year's Milwaukee convention.

The sponsors contended the union would benefit if, by signing the non-Communist oath, the ITU qualified for National Labor Relations Board elections to determine collective bargaining agents.

Walter A. Moriarty, Los Angeles, who introduced the resolution, said he never had been able to understand why the officers had not filed the affidavits. Others said the ITU was unable to organize nonunion shops at the present time because it did not come under the Labor Relations Act.

Concession to Reaction'

But ITU Vice President Elmer Brown of New York contended "You would gain nothing but a concession to reaction."

President Woodruff Randolph declared the employer could call elections at a time when he knew the union did not have a majority.

"We will organize with or without Government permission," he said.

Referring to an opposition faction in the union, Randolph said "If it's to be made a political issue that officers are Communists or fellow travelers, please tell them for me that they lie."

He called the union's present anti-Taft-Hartley Act policy "very sound and safe."

The convention, ending a six-day meeting, also:

Approved a resolution by 13 northern California members castigating the San Francisco local. The measure accused San Francisco of falsely claiming to have obtained wage benefits for surrounding towns. The vote, announced as 143 to 122, was the closest of the convention.

Salaries Increased

Voted to increase ITU officers' salaries—president and secretary-treasurer from $10,000 to $12,000 a year; vice president from $7500 to $9500. Another proposal to raise the number of vice presidents from three to five was defeated.

Rejected a proposal the ITU negotiate with other printing trades unions to establish one union in the industry.

Refused a delegate's request to solicit other unions for funds to aid ITU strikes.

Accepted a report of the defense committee calling for intensification of ITU activity in Canada, where the union now is involved in disputes with the Southam and Sifton chains of newspapers.

Meat-Export Curbs To Be Lifted Friday

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer yesterday said that specific export licenses will be dropped Friday for live cattle, hogs and sheep and for all edible meat products.

This means, he said, that the animals and meat can be exported in any quantity and to any place under the general license provisions.

Dewey Asked To Intervene In Bell Strike

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today was asked to provide armed intervention at the strike-bound Bell Aircraft plant through which hundreds of demonstrators paraded today.

The demonstration was described by the company as "a belligerent mob" and by the striking CIO United Auto Workers as "a union checkup of workers."

The request for action by the Governor was made by the company and the Niagara County sheriff.

Company President Lawrence D. Bell described the demonstration as "one of the most despicable chapters in the entire history of the labor movement." He added:

"A crowd of 500 terrorizing, shrieking strikers and sympathizers broke through one of the company gates, pushed their way into our plant beat up at least six of our employes and carried another six or seven back out of the plant."

Martin Gerber, union regional director, said "to my knowledge, no one was injured" and "no one was dragged from the Bell plant."

Edward F. Gray, U.A.W. subregional director, said "The fellows went into the plant to check the corporation's claims of the number of production workers in the shop. Their survey showed there is no truth to Bell's back-to-work claims."

Charge of Farm 'Slave' Labor Probed by FBI in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., Aug. 19 (U.P.).—FBI agents began a "preliminary investigation" today to determine whether 40 Negroes are being held in "involuntary servitude" on a farm near here.

At the same time county and State authorities investigated charges that the migratory workers were cheated, fed poorly, and housed under unsanitary conditions.

The Negroes struck Monday to back demands for more than 60-cents-an-hour pay, elimination of compulsory food and clothing deductions, guaranteed transportation back to the South, untampered mail, and cleaner living conditions.

The FBI moved into the case on the "oral complaint" of M. Michael Essin, Milwaukee attorney and People's Progressive Party candidate for attorney general last fall.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Carl Runge said the FBI would seek to learn whether any "violations of civil rights or peonage laws" might be involved.

The workers' strike committee said it was impossible for the men to leave the farm because after deductions their pay seldom amounts to more than $8 to $10 a week. The committee said "the men have no money whatsoever."

Assistant District Attorney Charles Vau Dell, who is heading the county investigation, went over the books of the Mazo Products Corp., which operates a 600-acre farm near Mazomanie.

Vau Dell said he was convinced there has been no "check-gouging."

Milton James, one of the workers, said the company promised free transportation back to the South, but deducted $18 for it.

Joe Racek, president of the Mazo Food Products Company and operator of the farm, said that the transportation money would be given back after the season is over.

"We do this because if we didn't they'd run out before the end of the season," he said, "and we have a big investment in those boys."

House Refuses Sesqui Funds

Commission decides to try to finance it through private capital.

Carter Barron, executive vice chairman of the commission, said most of its members are away on vacation and he did not know what course, if any, will be decided upon.

Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, led the opposition to the measure. The amendment to kill it was sponsored by Representative Wheeler (D., Ga.).

"Put Up or Shut Up"

Representative Andersen (R., Minn.), in a speech suggesting "we put up or shut up in this economy talk," said the Sesquicentennial would be a good place to start refusing money.

Andersen said, "I would be willing to go along with the issuance of a special stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of Washington, but that would be about as far as I would be willing to go. A commemorative postage stamp was recently issued in observance of Minnesota's centennial.

Taber said the whole Sesquicentennial is "a mess." He quoted Barron as saying in a recent newspaper interview that local businessmen could finance the Sesquicentennial but the commission wanted "the prestige of a Congressional appropriation."

"Can you imagine anything like that?" said Taber.

"Won't Promote Freedom"

Representative Canfield (R., N. J.) said, "I flatly oppose spending three million dollars for this gala party in Washington as we face this long period of deficit financing. We won't promote freedom by putting up temporary buildings, lakes, pontoon bridges and throwing gala parties."

Canfield also asked why funds should be appropriated to provide space for the benefit of "the 10-percenters who will provide the space for concessionaires?"

Barron said the standard commission rate for space salesmen is 10 per cent, but the commission had worked out a tentative arrangement with a syndicate to sell space at 5 per cent.

Representative Rabaut, a leader in the fight to save the measure, said the cost would be more than repaid because the celebration will be "a money-making proposition."

15 Million Attendance Expected

Rabaut said 15 million people could be expected to attend the celebration. When it is over, he said, the District would receive free permanent buildings that cost around 10 million dollars.

Rabaut said the Republicans opposed the grant because they were unhappy that the Democrats would be in control of the Government at the time of the celebration.

Representative Smith (D., Va.), joining Rabaut in supporting the measure, said, "This is not a gift—all the money will come back to the Federal Treasury." Smith said he wished he had heard "a lot of these fine economy talks when big appropriations were going through for projects on which there was no money coming back."

Representative Horan (R., Wash.), former member of the House District Committee, also supported the celebration.

Barron Thanks Volunteers

Barron said following the House's action that it was too early to say "what sort of commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the seat of government in Washington can be held without funds. We have nothing but the will to plan something."

Barron said he wished to thank "the public-spirited citizens who have voluntarily given thousands and thousands of hours of work" without recompense. Approximately $12,000 of the $15,000 appropriated by Congress for planning the sesquicentennial had been spent, he said.

At the request of Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, Superintendent Milo F. Christiansen yesterday polled board members on a proposal to protest selection of the park land east of the National Guard Armory for the sesquicentennial site. The board had not been consulted on the use of the site, it was said, and it would deprive the District of the use of one of its largest recreation areas.

Home Rule Killed, 15-8

is expected to join Kennedy in sponsoring a discharge petition to force the home rule issue onto the floor for final action, said yesterday he still was undecided when the petition should be started.

"Certainly we should aim to have the necessary 218 signatures on our petition shortly after the second session opens in January," Buchanan said.

A. L. Wheeler, chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee, said his group would hold a meeting Monday to discuss plans for starting the petition. He said his group, the Washington Home Rule Committee, the Central Suffrage Conference and other groups in the downtown home rule movement would join forces in seeking signatures of House members.

Culver Chamberlain, president of the Central Suffrage Conference, said last night:

"It being evident the District Committee has shelved suffrage for this session, we believe we can secure enough signatures to discharge the bill from committee and force it onto the House floor."

He said he will seek support of the House leadership Monday to launch a petition.

Under House rules a petition may be started anytime after a standing committee has taken adverse action against a measure.

Once the 218 signatures—or a majority of the House membership—have signed a petition, the bill automatically is sent to the floor and brought to a vote.

The rarely used discharge procedure also circumvents the Rules Committee, through which bills normally must clear before going to the floor.

However, bills brought in on a petition may be taken up on the House floor only on so-called discharge days—the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

Veteran observers on the Hill yesterday could not recall that a discharge petition has ever been sought to bring a District bill to a vote. The procedure has been used successfully on national bills several times.

Informed of the House committee action, Senator Kefauver, who steered his home rule bill through the Senate last spring, said he was "very disappointed." "I hope some way can be found to give the House the opportunity of voting on home rule," he said.

Ching Asked To Mediate In Hawaii

Honolulu, Aug. 19 (AP).—Negotiators suspended peace talks today in Hawaii's 111-day dock strike and called on Washington for help.

The union and employer representatives sent off a message to Cyrus Ching, head of the United States Mediation and Conciliation Service.

They asked Ching to come to Honolulu "as quickly as possible." Ching has indicated he may be unable to come here because of the press of other duties.

The renewed peace talks, which began only three days ago, went into recess pending a reply from Ching.

At the first meeting of the day, Harry Bridges, president of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, told employers the strikers would settle for a raise of less than 26 cents an hour.

The 2000 CIO stevedores struck May 1, demanding a 32-cent raise in their $1.40 hourly wage. Employers once reluctantly offered a 14-cent raise but withdrew it when the union rejected it.

Bridges said employers were holding out for the right to hire what he called strikebreakers. An employer spokesman said they had to reserve the right to hire nonunion stevedores now employed by the Territorial Government and by a new nonunion firm if ILWU stevedores were not available.

The Territorial Government has gone into the stevedoring business in an effort to relieve Hawaii's paralyzed commerce, but has moved slowly in meeting a union challenge of its special stevedoring law.

In San Francisco about 200 ILWU members with two sound trucks gathered outside a building where Territorial Governor Ingram M. Stainback was a Harbor-Day speaker. They denounced the Governor for advocating the stevedoring law.

Crowd, 4 Abreast, Marches in Store

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 19 (U.P.).—Some 300 union demonstrators marched four abreast through a St. Paul department store today to protest "management unfairness" in a city-wide trucking tie-up, and police squads were dispatched to the scene. No violence was reported, however.

The demonstrators were members of three AFL unions, the Retail Clerks, Bakery and Confectionary Workers and Teamsters. The teamsters are involved in a combination strike-lockout which has idled 1000 truck drivers and warehousemen.

B. & O. Fights Gaithersburg Demand for Crossing Guard

In a suit filed in Montgomery Circuit Court, the town of Gaithersburg, Md., has asked that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad be barred from using a town grade crossing unless it restores a watchman to duty there.

According to the town's suit, the railroad removed its watchman from duty at the Chestnut st. grade crossing on August 8 without notifying the town. The crossing had been guarded by a watchman since 1914, the town said.

The suit cited a Town Council ordinance adopted August 1 directing the railroad to keep a watchman on duty from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m. Also mentioned in the legal action was a 1930 county law requiring presence of a signalman at Gaithersburg.

About 50 trains daily pass the Chestnut st. crossing, according to the town suit. It called the automatic warning signal and gate now used there "inadequate," since residents were accustomed to the protection of a watchman.

In its reply, the railroad declared that the 1930 county ordinance and the town law were "invalid." The Circuit Court is without jurisdiction in the case, the railroad said.

Montgomery Fair Aug. 25

Jobless Man Wounds His Landlady In Rent Row

Tailor, 61, Shoots Her in Neck After Finding His Room Keyhole Taped Up

A 61-year-old unemployed tailor shot his landlady in the neck yesterday after she taped up the keyhole of his third-floor room at 3360 16th st. nw. for nonpayment of $30 rent.

The tailor, Sylvan Hirsch, admitted the shooting before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence and was held for grand jury action in $5000 bond.

Hirsch was charged with assault with intent to kill Miss Thelma Owen, 46, who lives at 5366 27th st. nw. She was not in serious condition.

Hirsch, who police say attempted suicide in 1946, startled the commissioner's hearing audience by saying: "I'm glad I shot her."

Doesn't Want Lawyer

Police testified he was attempting to reload his ancient .44-caliber, long-barrelled pistol when they arrived.

"I don't want any lawyer," said Hirsch. "I wanted to kill her, so what's the use of denying things? I'll tell you the truth as it was, and no more.

"Miss Owen was waiting for me at my room. I tried to use my key but she had put tape over the hole.

She said my room was 'padlocked.' I went into the room anyway, and tried to open the closet to get some clothes, but it was locked also. She went downstairs and I went after her.

"I said, 'You think you can get away with everything just because I'm sick.' We had some argument. She started to hit me. I said, 'You can't do that just because I'm sick.' I went up and got my gun and it was an accident. I didn't think I hit her, then I saw I had."

Had Been Selling Suits

Hirsch, a tailor, said he had been unemployed, for four or five months, and was selling suits.

"I have diabetes and I get dizzy when I get excited. It makes me forget. I am not under doctor's care. I haven't got the money."

Police Sergt. Thomas C. Sullivan said Miss Owen gave this story of the shooting:

"She says that he was so close, she hit at the gun and it went off. It had been in a position to hit her in the chest."

Pvt. Carl F. Krogmann, who arrested Hirsch, testified:

"When I arrived, Miss Owen was on the couch, bleeding from the neck. My partner gave her first aid. I heard a noise upstairs as if someone were loading a rifle. I cautiously crept upstairs and saw Hirsch loading this revolver. I pointed my gun at him and told him to put down his weapon. He continued to load, and at my second order put up his hands and gave himself up."

Plaster Union In D. C. Area Out on Strike

Employers Reject Demand for Health And Welfare Fund

About 500 union plasterers in the Washington area yesterday went on strike over a rejected demand for a health and welfare fund.

All commercial and apartment house projects in the plastering stage were held up in this latest dispute of the strife-torn building industry.

The strike was voted at a special meeting of the union, Local 96, Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers International Association, Thursday night when its contract with the Employing Plasterers Association expired.

To Vote on Wage Offer

Meanwhile, another possible strike affecting the building industry was threatened as some 175 union employes of the Smoot Sand and Gravel Corp. planned a meeting at 6 o'clock tonight. Authority for a walkout has been voted.

The employes, members of Local 77, International Union of Operating Engineers, and Local 639, Teamsters Union, will meet to act on a wage offer made by the company Wednesday. The offer was described as unacceptable to union negotiators, who have been asking a wage increase of 25 cents an hour.

In the plasterers' dispute, four new provisions originally were asked by the union in their new contract, but two have been waived, according to Thomas F. Crawford, business agent of Local 96.

Checkoff Demand Dropped

The two demands that were dropped were for 5 cents a mile as transportation costs from the District Line to out-of-town jobs and for a checkoff of union dues. Employers now pay 2 cents a mile on jobs more than 5 miles from the District.

William S. Farris, president of the employers' group, said the 18 member contractors were willing to grant a third union request, for a general workmen's compensation rate of $35 a week. That rate now applies only on District jobs, while the rates in Virginia and Maryland are $20 and $25 respectively.

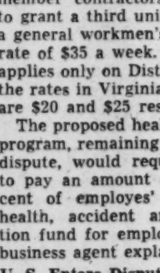
The proposed health and welfare program, remaining as the point of dispute, would require employers to pay an amount equal to 2 per cent of employes' wages into a health, accident and hospitalization fund for employes, the union business agent explained.

U. S. Enters Dispute

Farris said the employers' association is opposed to the philosophy of such a welfare program, regarding it as a step toward socialism. The plasterers, who now receive $3 an hour, should be able to take care of their own health expenses, he said.

The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service entered the dispute shortly after the walkout began yesterday. No meeting of negotiators is expected until after a scheduled meeting of the employers' association Monday.

Preller Is Named Vice Chairman of 1950 Chest Drive



Preller

C. F. Preller, president of the Washington Central Labor Union (AFL), has been appointed vice chairman of the 1950 Community Chest Federation campaign, General Chairman Frank J. Luchs has announced.

Preller, who held the same post in last year's campaign, is also chairman of the AFL advisory committee of the Chest Federation's labor participation department, and a member of the executive committee of United Community Services.

A native Washingtonian, Preller is president of the Washington Building Trades Council; vice president of the D. C.-Maryland State Federation of Labor; the employe member of the D. C. Unemployment Compensation Board, and serves on the advisory committee on vocational education to the D. C. Board of Education.

Plan to Fix Liquor Prices Is Rejected

The House District Committee yesterday rejected the so-called liquor price-fixing bill to authorize setting minimum retail prices.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Klein (D., N. Y.), was turned down by voice vote.

In other actions, the committee disapproved a bill to extend the drinking spots' hours from midnight to 2 a. m. Sunday. It rejected also one aimed to prohibit credit purchases of beer by retailers.

Last Session of Year

The committee, meeting in its last session for the year, voted, however, to send to the House floor a bill to allow on-sale licensed establishments to sell drinks on credit when sold with food.

The closing-hour extension measure had been sought by licensed establishments to help fight competition on after-hours "bottle clubs."

The larger hotels would be the chief beneficiaries of the measure allowing credit sale of drinks. Regulations now prohibit charging drinks to unregistered guests, though other services may be bought on credit.

Tax Exemption Backed

The committee also voted out a bill giving tax exemption to the headquarters here of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America.

The House group passed over a recently introduced bill which would have placed the Commissioners in complete control over all public pools, parks and playgrounds. Some now are under Federal jurisdiction.

House Clears Funds for Retroactive Pay Hike

Money to pay District workers their $330 retroactive pay increase cleared the House yesterday and went to the Senate for final action.

The pay raise appropriation was included in the first supplemental supply bill, which carries a total of $4,205,850 in District items.

The appropriations bill as approved by the House grants only $50,000 to operate the six District child day-care centers. The surprise cut from the authorized $100,000 amount may mean that two or three centers must be closed, Welfare Department officials have warned.

The House also denied a $103,000 requested item representing the amount owed by the District to three Washington hospitals for the care of indigent patients.

3-Story Plunge Proves Fatal to Man, 50

4000 View Opening Parade Of Falls Church Festival

After one postponement because of rain, the three-day Falls Church festival got under way at 6:30 p. m. yesterday with a mile-long parade of military, civic and patriotic units.

Led by Miss Falls Church (Miss Georgia Hoskinson, 20) and marshaled by Brig. Gen. S. R. Hinds, the paraders wound through the city's main streets to the applause of some 2500 onlookers.

The colorful procession disbanded inside the 3-acre festival site on Hillside ave., across from Falls Church High School.

A tribute to the Falls Church recreation program was paid by Milo Christiansen, District recreation superintendent, in a short speech. Mayor Albert Orme also spoke briefly.

The grounds were visited by more than 4000 who inspected various exhibits, including an art display sponsored by the Falls Church Women's Club.

Features of the evening were a model plane show put on by the Balsa-Bettle Airplane Club and a play, "Dyspeptic Ogre," performed by members of the Falls Church Community Theater.

Winner of the greased pig contest was 11-year-old Hubert Jenkins of 113 Mankin wlk., Falls Church. The Madison School youth triumphed over 12 other boy contenders.

The grounds will open today at 10 a.m. and will close at 11 p.m. with a pet show at 10 a.m. and a fashion show at noon.

Finals in a contest to find the possessor of the finest crop of red hair in the city will be held Sunday at 8:30 p.m. On Sunday the festival hours will be 3 to 11 p.m.

Missing Boat Recovered by Military Police

A $2000 speed boat reported missing since Thursday was recovered yesterday by two Fort Belvoir military police agents, Alton Fultz and Lewis Leindecker.

The soldiers reported a man operating the craft pulled into a dock by the Bureau of Fisheries near Fort Belvoir in the Potomac and walked out of the boat.

The craft had been reported missing by its owner, George C. Winters, 1673 Park rd. nw., who said it was taken by a prospective purchaser who forgot to make a down payment before buzzing away in it.

Meowing Nerve Wracking

Black Cat Good Luck Factor: Leads Police to Stolen Car

A black cat yesterday brought good luck to Arthur A. Austin, 2651 16th st. nw.

It was instrumental, unwittingly perhaps, in the recovery of Austin's 1941 Oldsmobile which had been stolen Wednesday night.

Nerve-wracking cat-calls on the part of the feline late Thursday night and early yesterday brought complaints from irate residents of the 1600 block of N st. nw., who said they thought the animal was trapped in a car.

Police Pvts. Donald H. Bailey and T. B. Basnight investigated, tried to find the car's owner. Their probe showed the car had been stolen. So they called the police crane to tow it. When the vehicle was lifted, a black cat, which apparently had been caught between the brake drum and a fender, scurried off and the car was returned to its owner.

Barrett Hints Shimon Trial Board Hearing

Juggles Wire-Tapping Subject in Comment On Officer's Transfer

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, gingerly juggled the subject of wire-tapping yesterday when reporters questioned him about the transfer of Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon.

Certain informants have said that wire-tapping figures in the investigation being made by high police officials of Shimon's alleged outside activities.

As a result of the investigation, Shimon has been relieved of his assignment to the office of United States Attorney George Morris Fay and transferred to the Fourteenth Precinct.

Shimon was originally detailed to the United States Attorney's office as a special investigator, but for the past year his duties have been mainly those of a court liaison man between the prosecution staff and the police department.

2 Complaints, He Says

At his press conference yesterday, Barrett said the investigation was started after two complaints were received on August 6. He declined to say whether the complaints involvedwire-tapping, then added:

"I wish to make clear that the police department has no wire-tapping equipment and we have never authorized any wire-tapping."

Barrett barked a terse "no comment" when asked if the probe touched on a recent divorce of two socially prominent persons. Barrett said he did not know what the outcome would be for Shimon, but that it could be a trial board hearing, even court action.

The police superintendent, not due back from his vacation until next Wednesday, cut short his holiday to hold the press conference. With him during the conference were Inspector Clarence Talley, acting superintendent; Inspector Robert S. Bryant, chief of detectives, and Capt. Robert V. Murray, assistant chief of detectives.

Barrett said the complaints against Shimon were being investigated by Bryant and Murray and that the investigation would probably be completed sometime next week.

Asked for Reason

One reporter asked why Shimon was transferred.

"I transferred him because he is under investigation," said Barrett.

Q.—What is the investigation about?

A.—Why put us on the spot? Someone has jumped the gun and it is not the Police Department Why don't you go to the one who first gave it to you?

Q.—How did the investigation originate?

A.—It originated as the result of two complaints.

Q—Was one of the complaints a result of a recent socially prominent divorce case?

A.—No comment.

Q.—Are there other policemen involved in this investigation.

A—There may be others as the investigation goes on, but not now.

Q—Will Lieutenant Shimon go before the trial board?

A—It may mean a trial board; it may mean court action. We have to be fair. I can't say until the investigation is complete.

Q—Did Lieutenant Shimon make a statement to you?

A—(pointing to Bryant and Murray)—He gave these men a statement as police investigators.

Q—Can we have the contents of the statement?

A.—Are you trying to be funny?

Barrett was asked if he will replace Shimon in Fay's office.

"No," he replied. "As a matter of fact I would like to work out some basis where we have some supervision over policemen in Mr. Fay's office. We pay them but we don't have any supervision over them. They don't make any reports to us on the cases they work on."

Barrett emphatically backed up a statement made Thursday by Acting United States Attorney John W. Fihelly that the investigation and transfer of Shimon did not involve gambling.

Shimon is to report to the Fourteenth Precinct August 29, when he returns from annual leave.

Boy, Deemed Ill With Cold, Dies of Polio

An 8-yearold Bethesda, Md., boy, brought home from camp earlier this week with a cold, died of bulbar polio yesterday, Walter Reed Hospital authorities revealed.

The child, Duncan R. Kirk, was the son of Col. and Mrs. Charles G. Kirk of 5213 Augusta st., Bethesda. A student at the Westbrook School in Montgomery County, Duncan had been attending a youth camp maintained by Army parents at Andrews Field until he became ill.

Colonel Kirk said yesterday that he took his son home Tuesday with what was diagnosed as a cold. The child's condition became worse and he was admitted to Walter Reed Hospital at 11 a. m. Thursday.

Doctors there immediately diagnosed the case as one of infantile paralysis. The child was pronounced dead at 4:25 a. m. yesterday.

His father is attached to U. S. Air Force Headquarters at the Pentagon.

District health authorities yesterday received word that a 14-year-old boy who lives in the 500 block of Franklin st. ne., was ill with polio in a Richmond, Va., hospital.

The youth has been in Medical College Hospital in Richmond since August 11. He became ill while visiting in Richmond.

Maryland Judge Frees Army Man In Accident Case

A Maryland trial magistrate yesterday suspended a reckless driving sentence because, he said, he was unable to get the real culprit into his court.

Alan Bowie of Prince Georges County Police Court suspended a $50 fine against Andrews Air Force Base Corp. Walter E. Smart, who was in an accident August 15 while driving an Army grader with defective brakes. He collided with a car driven by Miss Agnes Duvall, county welfare supervisor.

"This man was driving under orders; so he's hardly to blame," Bowie said. "But the Army should have somebody responsible for the condition of such equipment. If I could get that somebody in here I would give him six months."

An Army representative testified that the grader driven by Smart was one of 35 recently received at the base from Trinidad, 17 of which were found to be defective in some respect.

Auto Breaks Shop Window Avoiding Truck Collision

An automobile smashed through a brand-new show window in a Silver Spring store yesterday when its driver swerved to avoid colliding with a truck.

The car, police reported, was driven by Col. Herbert N. Bean, 70, of 9100 Flower ave., Silver Spring. Colonel Bean told police he had to swerve to avoid hitting a truck making a U-turn.

Damage was estimated at $2500 by officials of the Lerner Shops store on Colesville rd. at Georgia ave. The new store is scheduled to open September 2. Both Colonel Bean and the truck driver, Alan English, 18, of Burnt Mills, Md., were charged with reckless driving. A hearing in Silver Spring Police Court was scheduled for 10 a. m. Tuesday.

2 Senators Told District Has No Slum Action Plan

Mason and Cox Lay Lack to Pattern of Agencies That Take Part in Clearance

The District government has no plan for slum clearance and public housing under the Housing Act of 1949, Commissioners informed two interested Senators yesterday.

Guy Mason, acting president of the Board of Commissioners, and Lieut. Col. L. E. Cox, acting Engineer Commissioner, ascribed the lack to the complicated pattern of agencies that must participate in such planning.

The officials told Senators Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) and John Sparkman (D., Ala.) that three agencies, none of them directly under District control, and one without funds, and deeply involved in planning such projects.

Problem Is Described

The city heads described the problem thus:

The National Capital Housing Authority is preparing plans for construction of 5500 units of low-rent housing under the national act. About 1800 of these would be scheduled for completion in the first year of construction.

NCHA, however, has 18,000 on its waiting list, including 5000 low-income veterans, and others evicted from insanitary housing and razed structures are being added to the list daily.

The Redevelopment Land Agency, set up by Congress to handle city slum clearance, is operating without funds, the city officials reminded the Senators. The agency may not undertake any redevelopment until the National Capital Park and Planning Commission first prepares detailed plans for the project and confirms that the work will be consistent with the commission's yet unpublished comprehensive plan.

These plans are then submitted to a public hearing by the Commissioners, who may approve or disapprove. If approval is accorded, under the housing act the RLA may then apply for funds from the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

In the case of Marshall Heights, pioneer project of the RLA, the planning and discussion took more than a year, and then was tabled when Congress did not appropriate funds.

Need Is Emphasized

The city officials emphasized that public housing is needed to provide space for "displaced persons" from slum structures before the latter may be razed. An attempt is being made to have NCHA earmark a fraction of its new construction under the national act for this purpose.

The two Senators told the city officials they intended to spark slum clearance here as an example for the rest of the Nation and perhaps for the rest of the world.

They thanked the city officials, who were accompanied by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, for their exposition of the city situation and indicated further conferences will be held.

Later in the day they announced they will tour Marshall Heights next week and hold a hearing on the project before the Housing and Rent Subcommittee of the Banking and Currency Committee. Senator Sparkman heads the subcommittee.

The Senators, who toured Washington slums and described them as some of the country's worst, indicated disappointment that Washington, unlike other cities, does not have plans ready for public housing and slum clearance.

Johnson Calls Party Label Idea 'Foolish'

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP)—Walter Johnson, Republican candidate for governor, today called "childish and foolish" a theory that antiorganization Democrats are bound morally to support Senator John S. Battle, Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

Such a theory "strikes at the very core of our Government he said in an address broadcast here.

"Every citizen does have a moral obligation when he or she votes," he said. "It is the high obligation of voting his or her best judgment. He or she who votes party label instead of his or her best judgment is not carrying out the high duty and responsibility of citizenship."

Johnson referred to a statement made by G. Alvin Massenburg, Democratic State central committee chairman, after Johnson in a radio address last week invited antiorganization Democrats to vote Republican in November.

Massenburg said participants in the Democratic gubernatorial primary were morally bound to vote for the party's nominee. Johnson had invited those Democrats who had supported Remmie L. Arnold, Horace H. Edwards and Francis Pickens Miller, the unsuccessful Democratic candidates, to support the Republican candidate.

In his address today, Johnson noted that 42.6 per cent of the Democratic primary vote went to Battle, who had the support of the organization, while 57.4 per cent went to the other three candidates.

"These figures disclose," he said, "that a great majority of the people are thinking in terms of better government than is possible through the machine method."

Almond Disputes GOP Primary Write-in Action

Richmond, Va., Aug. 19 (AP).—J. Lindsay Almond, jr., today wrote the State board of elections that he "was not and could not legally be a candidate" for attorney general in the Republican primary last August 2.

The reason: He is already the Democratic nominee to succeed himself as attorney general.

Almond's letter sent to the board today tended to ease a unique situation which developed when the elections board canvassed the vote last Tuesday in the State's first dual primary.

It was discovered that Almond and Julian Hickman, Roanoke and Harrisonburg attorney, both had received seven write-in votes for the Republican nomination for attorney general. There was no regular GOP candidate for the job.

As a result of the tie the board notified both men that lots will be drawn August 30 at 3 p. m. to determine the GOP nominee.

Levin Nock Davis, secretary of the elections board, said he will await Hickman's reply before it is definitely decided just what procedure will be taken.

5-Block Run

Painter Faces Check Charge After Chase

The check-cashing record of a house painter was checked by police yesterday after a five-block auto chase.

Patton

The painter, James E. Patton, 36, of 3620 Jennifer st. nw., was arrested by a Goldenberg's Department Store detective after a chase. He had attempted to cash a check at the store.

Hugh Robey, retired detective sergeant, now a store detective at Goldenberg's seized Patton after chasing him down five flights of stairs in the store to the street, where Patton fled in a cab. Robey pursued him in another taxi.

During the chase, Robey spotted a police cruiser and the two vehicles followed Patton to the Painters Union hall, 6th and G sts. nw., where Patton leaped out, ran into the hall and to the third floor. Robey captured him there.

He was booked on charges of forging and uttering.

Patton fled from Goldenberg's while the store's credit department was checking with police on Patton, who was trying to cash a $10 check there. His description tallied with that on a man sought by police.

FCC Heads See Color Test On Television

The lady with colorful scarves performed in Baltimore yesterday for Federal Communication Commissioners who watched her antics on color television receivers here.

Occasion was the first full-dress rehearsal of colorcasts a Philadelphia drug firm hopes to beam from Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, to physicians assembled in Washington in December.

Owners of black and white television receivers in the area received yesterday's broadcasts only as four small, blurred images on their viewing screen corners. The program wasn't meant for them; their receivers were not awry, radio technicians said.

At the District's National Guard Armory, however, the lady with the flashing scarves showed up, loud, clear and colorful on special receivers set up for the FCC inspectors. It pleased the representatives of Smith, Kline and French, the sponsors, and Columbia Broadcasting System engineers whose equipment was being used.

The Federal officials, as was announced beforehand, withheld their judgment and decision.

Yesterday's tests were required for FCC authorization of a request to color televise a program of surgical operations and medical clinic procedures from the Baltimore hospital to the interim convention of the American Medical Association, here, on December 6-8.

2 Pleasant Days Expected Here; High of 78 Today

With Canada still exporting cool air here, fair and pleasant weather is forecast for the District for the next two days, the Weather Bureau said yesterday.

A high of 78 is expected today, with Sunday warmer but the weather growing cooler again by Tuesday night.

Showers are slated for Monday or Tuesday with ½ to ¾ inch of rain expected. Temperatures are expected to average "near normal" (83 high; 65 low).

Yesterday's high was 82 at 4:40 p. m. Low was 65 at 5:34 a. m.

Nevitt Relieved As Adjutant of District Guard

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt was relieved yesterday of his duties as adjutant general of the District National Guard, and signed in at Fort Myer (Va.) in response to orders for separation from active Army duty.

His relief from the adjutant general post had been asked by Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, new Guard commander.

Colonel Nevitt's transfer to inactive Army status, expected to be completed sometime next week, will return him to civilian life, but he will retain his colonel's rank in the Guard.

General Abendroth, who has selected a reserve officer as his new adjutant but has not named him, was out of town yesterday on a brief leave. He is expected to name a successor, probably next week.

Jap Quaker Balks At Paying Taxes For Military Use

Indianapolis, Aug. 19 (U.P.).—A Japanese-American Quaker was told today that he will have to go to jail for a year or pay a $1000 fine unless he sends Uncle Sam $4.50 in back income taxes by September 1.

Katsuki James Otsuka, a student at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., and a farm laborer between terms, refused to pay all of his tax because he said he learned from a yearbook that 29.12 per cent of the money would be spent "for military purposes."

Assistant U. S. District Attorney Elda L. Branigin, jr. told Federal Judge Robert C. Blaltzell that he understood other Quakers in the Richmond area also were withholding part of their Federal income taxes for the same reason.

And directly from Hope, Ark., will come a carload of watermelons especially for the Arkansas State Society of Washington. These melons, from a place noted for its production of large fine watermelons, coupled with the picnic supper brought by the members and their guest will highlight the picnic, opening the Arkansas State Society social calendar.

Meeting at Palisades Park at 4 p. m., society members will have a chance not only to meet Miss Arkansas but the home State Congressional delegation. Before the picnic supper at 6 p. m., there will be softball and horseshoe contests with the watermelon being served at 7 p. m.

Friends Say Farewell to Ambassador, Mrs. Andrews

By Marie McNair

THE South African Ambassador and Mrs. Harry Andrews, soon to leave for Paris, said their first round of farewells at a reception in their honor yesterday, given by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris at their home on Linnean ave.

There'll be little time left for the Andrewses to say goodby as they leave August 31 for New York.

Mrs. Morris, wearing a long black net gown crossbarred in gold threads, stood at the doorway to greet first comers. In the cool, high-ceilinged drawing room the Ambassador stood with Mr. Morris and Mrs. Andrews, who wore a pale blue gown and a purple orchid pinned to her shoulder. Guests stood in the path of a setting sun on the rolling lawn, which dips down suddenly to Rock Creek Park; or gathered on the terrace to admire the view of a white church spire rising from green treetops.

Quickly oriented at a Washington party were the Minister of Finance of South Africa and Mrs. Klaas Havenga who had just arrived from New York yesterday and will be here for the Anglo-American-Canadian economic parley opening September 7. Dr. Havenga found a friend in Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, while Mrs. Havenga chatted with Mrs. Snyder, whose black frock was topped by a close black hat.

In the group too, were Dr. Jack Holloway, Secretary of Finance.

Summer Thrnog

Who's left in Washington during August? It's a flourishing summer resort, judging by the numbers that turned up yesterday. There were the Burmese Ambassador and Mme. So Nyun, the Ambassador of Korea, Dr. John Myun Chang, the Ambassador of Ceylon and Mme. Corea, and the Minister of Ireland, Sean Nunan. Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General, was there, and the Charge d'Affaires of Spain, German Baraibar, with Senora de Baraibar in dark blue.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the Mint, in a summertime print frock, was introducing her guest, Mrs. Patrick J. Quealy of Wyoming. With Mrs. Irene Caldwell, just back from a holiday was her guest, Miss Bryer of Chicago. Saw Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, the new Treasurer of the United States, sampling the cold turkey and salad; Mrs. Stanley Embick, but not the General; and Mrs. Leslie Biffle the center of a group of friends.

Judge Richmond Keech and the new lady on the bench—Edith Cockrill of the Juvenile Court, were there. Others were former Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Commodore Fritz Aage Kjoelsen, in the uniform of the Danish Navy; Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews and Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez.

Mrs. Frederick Coleman held court from a chair on the terrace; the Agricultural Attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Echegaray took chairs on the lawn. Also there were Mrs. Fred Britten in black lace; Admiral and Mrs. Emory Land, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dawson, David Lynn, Mrs. James O'Donnell Moran, Mrs. Edward H. Conger, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Effingham Townsend, who's back after a visit on Long Island and a stay at Gibson Island; Admiral Russell Train and Mrs. Train, she in a becoming coral linen frock and black brimmed hat; Mrs. Ernest Norris, Judge and Mrs. George Neilson and Mrs. Claude Houchins of Falls Church, Va.

SENORA DE DILLON, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador (left), was hostess, and Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General, poured tea at a benefit party held yesterday afternoon at the embassy. The picture was taken in the ivory drawing room where Senora de Dillon received her guests. Proceeds from the tea went to the Emergency Relief Committee for the Ecuadorian Disaster

Tea at Ecuadorian Embassy Benefits Disaster Relief Fund

Senora de Dillon, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador, was hostess yesterday at a preconcert benefit tea held at the embassy. The tea was the first of several events planned by the Emergency Relief Committee for the Ecuadorian disaster. A concert at the Pan American Union will be held August 25.

Guests were received after 5 in the ivory drawing room. In the white paneled dining room tea and coffee were served, with a variety of small sandwiches and iced cakes. French doors opened onto an inviting garden with circular fountain and reclining chairs.

Senora de Dillon was her usual perfection in short Paris bob and a Navy blue dress from Jean Desses.

She expressed her gratitude for the really remarkable help which North America has sent to Ecuador. All the Latin-American countries, she said, were contributing, too. All medical supplies have been provided, and now clothing and food are pouring in.

Mrs. Jesse A. Donaldson, wife of the new Supreme Court Justice, and Mrs. Donald Dawson, wife of the military aide to the President, headed the group of prominent people who poured tea during the afternoon.

Mrs. Stephen Verges, whose husband was personal physician to the present President of Ecuador when he was resident in Washington, was busy discussing plans for the Pan-American concert on August 25. Other guests in the gathering were Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Robert Elliott Freer, and Mrs. Edward Lehman of San Francisco, Calif., who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Boas.

Senora de Boattmar, wife of the new Ambassador of Paraguay, attended the tea. She is young and pretty and arrived in Washington just a month ago.

Pan-American Committee Sends Food Shipment

One-half ton of food for the earthquake victims in Ecuador will leave here today via air to Quito. It is the first of several food shipments to be sent by the Pan American Liaison Committee of Women's Organizations which launched its mercy campaign last week.

The Phillips Packing Co., through its manager, G. H. Holland, donated the food products. Capital Airlines, through former Representative Jennings Randolph and Braniff Airways, Inc., through its manager, Col. Jess B. Bennett, offered free shipment. Next week the PALC will underwrite additional food supplies for the Ecuadorians.

Preus Entertain At Buffet Supper

MR. AND MRS. Wilhelm C. Preus of Minneapolis, Minn. entertained at a buffet supper last evening in their suite at the Shoreham Hotel in honor of their son, David Heide Preus, and Miss Doris Moses, daughter of Col. and Mrs. P. C. Moses, whose marriage will take place at noon today in the Georgetown Lutheran Church.

The guests at the supper last evening included the prospective bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. P. O. Heide, of Minneapolis, who is here for the wedding; members of the wedding party and other out-of-town guests.

Ask Anne
About Making Good Coffee

I have an electric percolator which has been refinished on the inside. Since then, I am unable to make a good tasting coffee. Can you help me? N. L. H.

Try scouring the inside of the pot with steel wool soap pads. When thoroughly scoured, let a solution of soda and water stand in it overnight. Use two or three tablespoons of soda to a pot full of hot water. At the end of the soaking period, wash thoroughly, using a small brush to clean the spout and tube to the basket. Hold the basket to the light to see if there are any coffee grounds lodged there. If so, brush out. When washed, leave open and unassembled to air completely between uses. If this doesn't completely remove foreign flavors, I suggest you discuss the matter with the firm which refinished the inside.

My husband has made some lovely handles for beer mugs. We have been told that old wine bottles may be cut in half and used very effectively with brass or copper straps and these handles. Could you please tell us how to cut the bottle?

M. I. A.

If these are very old and highly prized bottles, I'd suggest you take them to one of the professional glass repairmen listed under "China and Glassware—Repairing" in the yellow pages of the telephone book to have them cut. They use a diamond disk for cutting and although the work is usually done at the customer's own risk, it is generally successful.

If, on the other hand these bottles have little value and you have enough of them to permit some breakage, you may wish to try to cut them with this method: Wrap string three or four times tightly around the bottle at the place it is to be cut. Soak the string with alcohol or kerosene (alcohol is best because it burns hotter with a cleaner flame) and ignite. Revolve the bottle continuously as the string burns to heat the glass evenly all the way around. When the flame begins to loose force, immediately put the bottle under cold water. The bottle should crack only at the place where the burning string has heated it. When broken, file the edge smooth with a metal file.

"Yes, but wait'll she turns around and they see she's got three freckles on her nose!"

TRY IT USE OLD NEWSPAPERS TO PRESS LEAVES

START DRYING AND PRESSING LEAVES FOR A COLLECTION

This is a good time of year to start a green leaf collection for the days are often too hot for active sports. The collecting of leaves gives you an opportunity to walk quietly under the broad cool shade of the trees and study the shape of the leaves. Many Scouts are required to know the trees for test passing, but whether you are a Scout or not, you will enjoy the collecting.

When gathering leaves select the most perfect specimens that you can find, and try to remember the other characteristics of the tree such as the bark, seeds, and general shape. If you have a tree book, see if you can find the unfamiliar trees in it, and as you place the leaves between folded newspapers write the name in crayon at the side of the leaf. Place some heavy object on top of the papers to press the leaves flat. The moisture in the leaf is absorbed by the newspaper.

You will soon have a collection that can be mounted in a scrapbook during the long winter months—if you had just as leaf!

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Children like to wander all over the house. To confine them to a few selected spots in rarely workable. When they are very young the job of dragging playthings from one room to another is bothersome for both parent and youngster.

Arranging for caches—places where a few things can be kept—in spots where the young fry is likely to spend a good deal of time seems to be a good idea. Part of a low shelf in the living room, a place in the kitchen cupboard, a box in mother's room are some "natural" locations.

If there are always some suitable playthings at hand, Junior is less likely to fool around with things that he may damage. If he has a few pots and pans of his own, he won't want to play with dishes and other kitchenware that might be easily damaged. If there are favorite toys in the front-room bookshelf, books aren't likely to seem so attractive.

Belated Greeting

My greeting may be somewhat late . . . But still it is sincere . . . And I am wishing you the best . . . Of happiness and cheer . . . I wanted to remember you . . . Right on that very day . . . But other things surrounded me . . . And took my time away . . . I hope you will forgive me for . . . The fact that I am late . . . And understand how much I longed . . . To help you celebrate . . . And if your heart will hear me now . . . I how that you will find . . . That all your laughter lies ahead . . . And all your tears behind . . . I wish you everything that life . . . Could ever hold for you . . . And all the magic you may need . . . To make your dreams come true.

You'd Butter Not Read This Too Fast

Bates the Sightseeing Man (he insists he has no first name) caught me off guard in Bassin's the other day.

"If butter is 76 cents a pound," he demanded earnestly, "how much can you get for a cent and three quarters?"

"Hmmm." I replied vacantly, "I'm afraid I'd need a pencil for that one."

"Nonsense," snapped Bates. "You'd get one pound. A cent and three quarters. Get it? Three quarters. C'mon, son, you're slow today."

I'm so glad he added that "today."

PERSONAL NOTES

George E. Sarmond, 3321 Blaine st. ne.: It may sound strange, but actually it's a serious matter with these folks. More than half of the Give-Aways are from people who are leaving Washington or moving to apartments where pets aren't permitted.

The Rev. J. J. Clark, 1244 V st. se.; Mrs. Melvin J. Anthony, 2319 24th st. se.; Mrs. Marion A. Baublitz, 2319 Skyland pl. se.; William L. Quaid, 1430 V st. se.: Thanks for listening, and for the kind words. It's a worthy cause and I'm glad we had room to give it a boost.

Mrs. L. L. Reece, 4114 North 4th st., Arlington, Va.: All the missing radios have been replaced at the Home for Incurables, but your offer is appreciated. Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Rickerson, 2807 Newton st., Silver Spring, Md.: Your letter has been forwarded to our circulation department, and I can assure you that you'll get prompt action.

TWO OF A KIND

It looks like the only way to be Happy-Though-Married-to-a Punster is to become one yourself.

Martin Russell of 546 S. 18th st., Arlington, Va., reports that the following conversation occurred the other morning as his wife was trying to feed the baby:

She: What will I do? He won't eat his Pablum.

He: Don't take such a cereal view of it.

She: Maize well get used to it, eh?

He: For Pete's sake, how corn you pun like that?

She: You started it. If it weren't for you, wheat never gone this far.

He: This punning rice between us has got to stop.

She: Yes, it must. For the baby's sake. If he should grow up to talk like this he'd be branned for life.

He: Anybody who talks like this oat to be.

Wife: Stop! I can barley stand it.

At that point, Martin says he conceded defeat—with a rye smile, no doubt.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four striped kittens, 6 weeks old; also one gray kitten, 4 months old." (Franklin 3819.)

"Large female dog, expecting; good watch dog. Also three female cats and one female kitten, good mousers." (Warfield 3035 after 4:30 p. m.).

"Two 6-week-old kittens and their big sister." (Randolph 5174.)

"Sleek black year-old mother cat, good mouser; beautiful multicolored 6-week-old, housebroken kitten." (Hobart 4641.)

"Two beautiful black kittens, housebroken and very frisky. We've got to find them homes or we won't be able to take a vacation." (Wisconsin 2352.)

"Sweet-natured beige-colored male foxhound type dog, about 9 months old; owner is going abroad." (Elmwood 300.)

"Beautiful 9-week-old blue-eyed kitten, marked exactly like a tiger cub." (Atlantic 5411.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Can something be done about those silly little tags attached to arrow traffic signals and bearing the words "Thru Only," "Thru Right," and "Thru Left?"

I have yet to meet a single driver who can read these signs from across an intersection at night.

And they're also hard on pedestrians, who wait for the "Walk" sign only to be endangered by motorists who can't read the directions alongside a "Thru Only" arrow.

Why in heaven's name can't these useless signs be removed, and replaced by double arrows which plainly show the directions in which traffic may move?

J. L. Paulhus,
4804 Park ave. nw.

Dear Mr. Paulhus:

For the first few years that I published similar questions and complaints, I was brushed off with: "We get very few reports of difficulty over these arrows. Most motorists seem to get along very well with them."

A couple of years ago, however, Traffic Director Keneipp reached the conclusion that the arrows were indeed hard to obey—especially for the out-of-towners who bring so much revenue to the District each year.

He has since begun replacing the unreadable signs with easily understood arrows. But these things cost money, and it's going to take a long time to change all our traffic signals. Bill.

COINCIDENCE?

Sheldon Klein of 4611 15th st. nw, reports that the guy who laid out the window display for Brentano's Pentagon shop must have been suffering from the effects of a rough weekend.

One part of the window is devoted to "Day Without End." The other part to "But Morning Will Come."

6 U. S. Agency Shift Plans in Effect Today

By The Associated Press

Federal agencies get a mild reshuffling effective today, when six of President Truman's reorganization plans go into effect. About 3300 Government employes are affected.

Citizen's at breakfast today can chalk up the following things that had happened in their Government overnight:

The United States Employment Service moved back into the Labor Department. It was the fifth transfer for the employment unit in 10 years. Labor Department officials were jubilantly celebrating their new strength. (One party in the department this week reportedly lasted until 4 a. m.)

The Postoffice Department Civil Service Commission, and Maritime Commission were revamped with the aim of greater efficiency. In each case more administrative power was centered in a single official.

The 500-million-dollar-a-year Bureau of Public Roads, headed by Thomas H. MacDonald, became a part of the Commerce Department.

Two of Mr. Truman's top advisory boards, the National Security Resources Board and the National Security Council, became parts of the Executive Office of the President instead of independent agencies. This had little apparent effect, except perhaps further to emphasize civilian, rather than military, control of defense planning.

The President made all these changes under the reorganization Act of 1949. Their general purpose was to increase efficiency. Very little money was expected to be saved immediately, though the President has said major economies can follow in time.

So far as they went, the plans were roughly in line with the recommendations of the commission headed by former President Herbert Hoover. Hoover indorsed the plans as "preliminary steps."

The President sent the six plans to Congress on June 20. They automatically become effective now because 60 days have passed and neither house of Congress has vetoed them.

Another plan submitted June 20, to create a Department of Welfare, was killed Tuesday by the Senate, 60 to 32.

The police were attacked by the Hillmen while searching for Communists believed to be in hiding.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

New Members Make Mark in 81st

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

By Robert S. Allen

There is little of commendable note in the record of the "eighty-worst" Congress, but it is outstanding in one regard.

That is the group of able, dynamic and courageous new members in the House.

ALLEN

Most of them are Democrats, as a result of the big overturn last year. Representing all sections of the country, most of them are young, but all have one thing in common. They are liberal-minded.

As freshmen, they are nominally "back seaters" under the rule of seniority. They have tail-end places on committees, some of minor importance. But it is significant of the caliber and fighting qualities of the group, that every one has already made his mark as a leader on at least one major issue.

Noteworthy is that several of the most outstanding rookies are Southerners. In outlook, vigor and forthrightness, these yearlings are in striking contrast to many of the old-timers from their section.

The following are distinctive representatives of the group from the East, South, Midwest and Far West.

The East

Foster Furcolo, 38-year-old Massachusetts Democrat and war veteran, who has specialized in fighting "pork barrel" grabs. After one slashing floor fight, Furcolo was warmly commended by Chairman Clarence Cannon of the Appropriations Committee with, "That was the most effective debating I've heard in a long time. You saved the taxpayers millions of dollars."

The South

Hugo Sims, 27-year-old South Carolinian who won the DSC and several other combat decorations as a paratrooper. Although the youngest member in Congress, Sims has demonstrated he is a born leader and a militant exponent of the "new South."

Pat Sutton, 33-year-old Tennesseean who was twice wounded in battle and is the most decorated member in Congress. Conscientious and independent, Sutton has repeatedly made his weight felt on liberal issues.

Middle West

Andrew Jacobs, Indianian, hard-working and outspoken. Jacobs has become a recognized authority on labor legislation.

Ray Karst, St. Louis attorney and war veteran who votes as liberal as he talks. Karst practically singlehanded blocked action on a bill to circumvent the Supreme Court's decision outlawing the basing-point price system.

West

Cecil White, California rancher and former artilleryman. Although a big cotton and grain grower, White has gone 100 per cent down the line for the Fair Deal program. He has battled particularly for measures to aid farm tenants and migrant workers and for public power development.

Reva Beck Bosone, Utah, only woman in the group. A former Salt Lake City judge, Mrs. Bosone has made a notable record as an effective exponent of reclamation legislation and low-cost public housing. She is highly regarded in the House and was singled out to deliver this year's Memorial Day address, the first woman to do so.

Washington, Hugh Mitchell; California, Clint McKinnon; Colorado, John Marsalis and Wayne Aspinall; Nevada, Walter Baring; New Mexico, John Miles; Arizona, Harold Patten; Oklahoma, Tom Steed and George Wilson.

Lie Backs U. N. Staff In Senate Probe Stand

Lake Success, Aug. 19 (AP).—Trygve Lie, United Nations Secretary General, warmly supported his staff workers today for condemning what they called "outrageous tactics" of congressional probers while he was away on vacation.

Lie said he was gratified that the secretariat had denied and protested circulation by a Senate committee of testimony by a mystery "witness" that the U. N. was ridden by Communists. He spoke at his first news conference since returning from a trip to his native Norway.
